No. 5. Section 216—The words "Rosa rugosa" are added after "multiflora." This is a most important change; it makes Rosa rugosa seedlings 3 years old or less dutiable at $1 per thousand unquestionably. The government can not now collect duty of $10 per thousand, as roses, on Rosa rugosa seedlings sold at $3 per thousand, as under former tariffs. This will save honest importers much expensive litigation and will largely prevent fraudulent entries of budded roses as brier roses.

No. 6. Section 600—The word "coniferous" is prefixed to "evergreen seedlings," and the words "4 years old or less" are added. This correction is of inestimable value to the government and the honest importer. It should prevent boxwood, bay trees, rhododendrons, Koster blue spruce, kalmias, etc., being brought in free of duty by reason of fraudulent entries as "evergreen seedlings." It will also make large evergreens, 5 years old or more, dutiable at fifteen per cent ad valorem under Section 216.

Simplified and Corrected.

These amendments correct and simplify the tariff immensely as applied to horticultural imports. It will make it much easier for the customs officials to detect and correct fraudulent entries; it should avoid expense to honest importers now that the rates of duty are clearly defined, and it will prevent largely the confusion and abuses which have arisen under former tariffs, owing to incorrect and varying treasury decisions handed down at different ports of entry on one item. These amendments do not change the rates of duty on proposed tariffs in any way. To have recommended them would have meant the defeat of our important demands, namely, a tariff free from errors and ambiguities. The benefits of these changes are obvious to every florist, nurseryman and seedsman in the United States who either directly or indirectly handles imported stock.

A Practical Suggestion.

Now I am going to make one recommendation, but before I do so let me explain that the tariff is made up by our legislators to comply with what they consider the country needs. The first report of changes comes from the ways and means committee, so that unless corrections are made in that committee they must be in the form of amendments, and to be effective must be carried by a majority in the House and Senate. Our legislators consider that plants, nursery stock, bulbs and seeds are in the same general class. They are mixed together in the same schedules, so that any recommendations of changes or corrections must be presented or indorsed jointly by florists, nurserymen and seedsmen. Owing to the lack of coöperation between the three organizations, I feel sure that had it not been for the active support we got from New York importers and custom-house officials, we never would have gotten one amendment through the House or Senate.

I, therefore, recommend that, as far as practicable, your tariff committee shall include one man in the import business, one man resident in Washington, and that all members be in active working touch with nurserymen, seedsmen and others interested, so that only men will be in this committee who can intelligently work and publicly speak on the entire schedule, which includes all horticultural imports.

Thanks are due James McHutchison, of New York city, a member of this committee, and without whose material assistance little, if anything, could have been done. Representative Taylor and Assistant Secretary of Agriculture B. T. Galloway are entitled to our thanks also.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

[Wm. F. Gude, as Washington representative of the S. A. F., presented at the Minneapolis convention the following brief general summary of the last year's progress in legislative matters.]

The last year has been a busy one for your representative in the national capital, particularly as to tariff matters affecting the members of our organization. I have tried to keep constantly in touch with what was going on in that line, and a full report of what has been accomplished will be made by our tariff committee at this session.

By this time, I had hoped we would be able to report a successful experimental rose garden in Washington, under the direction of the United States Department of Agriculture. However, the official legal machinery necessary to put this project in motion has been working slowly, but we indulge the hope that the papers will receive the signature of the secretary of agriculture in a short time and the garden will be a properly established factor.

Sentiment is being aroused toward securing from Congress suitable legislation in reference to the Wm. H. Smith memorial, and we hope in the near future to secure the assistance needed toward the erection.

It is a pleasure to report that the year has been a prolific and prosperous one in and about the capital in our calling. Crops and business have been good, and the florists generally have had a prosperous twelvemonth.

THE ALLIED SOCIETIES

LADIES' SOCIETY.

The Ladies' S. A. F. held its annual meeting at Minneapolis Wednesday, August 20, with a large attendance. The organization is one of the most flourishing of the dozen or more that meet during convention week. The election of officers resulted in the selection of Mrs. Chas. E. Critchell, of Cincinnati, as president. Mrs. Charles H. Maynard, of Detroit, was reëlected as secretary.

Of late years the ladies have been fully as busy as the men at the August convention and the Ladies' S. A. F. has become one of the most active and important of the auxiliary societies. This year the number of ladies attending was relatively larger than usual and the entertainment features had been planned specially with a view to seeing that they enjoyed themselves. Not only did they participate in all the social affairs for the men but they had a number of affairs all to themselves. Wednesday afternoon they were the guests of the ladies of the Minneapolis Florists' Club on an automobile trip around the city and through the park system, with luncheon at the Minnikahda Club. Friday morning they were the guests of the St. Paul florists, being taken in special trolley cars to "the other twin," where they were met by automobiles and given an opportunity to see the many points of interest of the city, with luncheon at one of the popular resorts and return to Minneapolis in the late afternoon.

The Ladies' S. A. F. held its annual reception and dance in the Gold room at the Hotel Radisson Thursday evening, August 21. It was a replica of the Tuesday evening's reception except that the affair was entirely in the hands of the ladies. This has become one of the features of convention week.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

The Chrysanthemum Society of America, which holds its annual meeting in November, held a special meeting at Minneapolis this week. C. H. Totty is president. Secretary C. W. Johnson, of Morgan Park, Ill., had prepared the following report:

"As ordered at the annual meeting, the special prize awarded at the National Flower Show held in New York city in April, 1913, was paid over to the flower show committee and a letter of appreciation for our participation was received from Secretary John Young. A ticket of admission to the National Flower Show was mailed to all members of the society in good standing.

"In accordance with the invitation extended by the Horticultural Society of Chicago and the Chicago Florists' Club to the Chrysanthemum Society of America to hold its next meeting and exhibition at Chicago in November, 1913, they have arranged for the exhibition to be held at the Art Institute, Chicago, November 5 to 7. The preliminary premium list has been mailed with the Chrysanthemum Society's annual report to all members. Extra copies of the premium list can be obtained by applying to R. J. Haight, secretary of the Horticultural Society of Chicago, 536 South Clark street, Chicago, to whom all entries for the show are to be made.

"Reply postal cards concerning the compromise scale as suggested by ex-President Elmer D. Smith were mailed to all members of the society for their vote on the question. The response has not been so large as it ought to have been. From the answers received, the majority of the members are in favor of more points for color than as suggested by Mr. Smith and I have concluded that the nearest scale that could be arrived at from the views expressed would be as follows: Color, 25; form and fullness, 20; size, 30; stem and foliage, 25; total, 100.

"The question of ribbon awards as voted at the annual meeting has been taken up by your secretary and is presented to you for consideration."

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the society, participated in by many members, held at Minneapolis, August 21, it was decided to hold the next annual convention and exhibition at Cleveland, O., in January, 1914. A premium list was prepared.

It was voted to accept the invitation to take charge of the carnation classes at the spring show at New York in March, 1914. The first of the society's medals of merit was awarded to Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass., for the origination of the variety Beacon.

A. F. J. Baur was named to represent the society on the advisory board of the department of horticulture at the San Francisco world's fair.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

A meeting of the American Rose Society was held at Minneapolis, August 20, President Wallace R. Pierson in the chair. There was taken up for consideration the matter of uniform vases for exhibitions. A committee was appointed, consisting of F. H. Traendly, Harry O. May and Robert Simpson, with power to act and to purchase such vases as the society may require. The question of labeling was considered, and the secretary was authorized to procure proper labels for all cut flowers exhibited at the annual exhibitions of the society. The subject of special prizes was discussed, and on motion it was ordered that all special prizes must be paid into the society before being advertised in any premium list of the American Rose Society.

Regarding next place of meeting, it was voted to leave the matter in the hands of the executive committee, with power to act.

The matter of test gardens of the American Rose Society was referred to a committee with power to act, the committee consisting of Alexander Cumming, Jr., Theodore Wirth and Wm. F. Gude. Prof. Beal appeared for Cornell, Theo. Wirth for the city of Minneapolis, and W. F. Gude for the agricultural department at Washington.

As to the question of affiliation of amateur societies with the American Rose Society, this was on motion referred to the executive committee, with power to act.

President Pierson appointed the following membership committee to be added to the original committee, which consists of Philip Breitmeyer, J. H. Dunlop and Eber Holmes, as follows: George B. Hart, J. F. Ammann, E. G. Hill, J. Roehrs, W. L. Rock, Aug. F. Poehlmann, C. C. Pollworth, Fred. Burki, Walter Coles and Edward George.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

The fourth annual exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society in connection with the S. A. F. conventions was staged at Minneapolis Wednesday, August 20. While no increase in the size of the exhibition was apparent, there was a noticeable improvement in the quality of the stock shown. The premium list carried twenty-eight classes, with prizes donated by firms in the gladiolus bulb trade. The awards in the classes that filled were as follows:

Twenty-five spikes Dawn—Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., first.

Twenty-five spikes Mrs. James Lancashire—E. E. Stewart, Brooklyn, Mich., first.

Vase Chicago White—H. W. Koerner, Milwaukee, silver medal.

Vase Mrs. Francis King—E. E. Stewart, silver medal.

Vase Princep[illegible] W. Koerner, silver medal.

Twenty-five spikes Golden Queen—H. W. Koerner, first.

Twelve varieties not now on the market, three spikes of each—H. W. Koerner, first.

Collection of ten varieties, six spikes of each—H. W. Koerner, first. D. W. C. Ruff, a local amateur, was given a special prize for his entry in this open class.

Twelve spikes any white variety—Jacob Thomann & Sons, Rochester, N. Y., first, on Rochester White.

Six spikes any white—Jacob Thomann & Sons, first, on Rochester White, winning the Michell silver medal; D. W. C. Ruff, second, also on Rochester White.

Six spikes any yellow—Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, first, on Schwaben, winning the Michell bronze medal; Perkins-King Co., second, on Niagara.

Twenty-five spikes any white—Jacob Thomann & Sons, first, on Rochester White; W. W. Wilmore, Jr., Denver, second, on Reine d la Anjou.

There also were prizes in eight classes open only to amateurs, in which D. W. C. Ruff was the principal exhibitor.

President I. S. Hendrickson called the annual meeting of the American Gladiolus Society to order at Minneapolis Thursday morning, August 21. Of all the special flower societies this is the one that is most active at this season of the year. Not only did the society contribute largely to the exhibition, but the attendance at the business meeting represented an excellent percentage of the total membership of professional growers.

The following officers were elected: President, Montague Chamberlain, South Natick, Mass.; vice-president George S. Woodruff, Independence, Ia.; secretary, L. Merton Gage, South Natick, Mass; treasurer, Carl Cropp, Chicago. Executive committee—I. S. Hendrickson, Mrs. A. H. Austin and Alex. Henderson. Nomenclature committee—A. C. Beal, I. S. Hendrickson and Leonard Joerg.

The reports of officers showed the society to be in a flourishing condition, with $475 cash in bank.

I. S. Hendrickson, Carl Cropp and Arthur Cowee were appointed as a committee to take up at once at Washington the matter of getting a duty on gladiolus bulbs that will be adequate to protect American labor, the present rate of 50 cents per thousand being much too low for the interests represented in the society.

Secretary L. Merton Gage had prepared the following report: "There is almost always a critical period in every society's life that affects its future existence. I will not say that we have arrived at that period, but the germ is working, so we must be alert to destroy it before it gets established beyond control. The first indication of this germ's presence is the waning interest of the majority of our members in contributing material for our bulletin. If we do not get this material, our bulletin will not continue to be a factor in holding our membership, especially our amateur members. I want to say this much, that the amateurs must do their share in keeping up the interest and standard of the bulletin by contributing to its pages.

"It is about time that something more than mere pen-slinging was done concerning the renaming of varieties and the naming of other growers' seedlings without consent of the originator. At a recent exhibition of gladioli in Boston I had the pleasure, or rather displeasure, of seeing two of Groff's varieties exhibited as seedlings, and one of these has already been named by Mr. Groff. If this sort of piracy is allowed to continue, what protection can the American Gladiolus Society hold out to the honest producer of new varieties?

"Concerning the matter of newspaper publicity, I wish to especially commend the articles published through the courtesy of M. S. Morton, of the Portland Evening Express, and J. M. Adams, of the Hartford Times.

"Our membership has increased to the number of twenty-three, but it could easily have been raised to double that number with very little effort on the part of our members.

"At the International Flower Show in New York last spring our society offered an attractive prize schedule, but it seems that the time is not yet ripe to bring out a good exhibition of forced gladioli, for the only exhibitors at New York were John Lewis Childs and Chamberlain & Gage.

"At the meeting of the society which was held in New York it was voted, upon the recommendation of the color chart committee, to adopt the "Repertoire des Couleurs" published by the French Chrysanthemum Society.

"By direction of the executive committee the society's medals were sent to the Central New York Horticultural Society and the El Paso County Horticultural Society, Colorado Springs, Colo."

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

The Florists' Hail Association held its annual meeting at Minneapolis this week. The number of members now is 1,613, more than the paid-up membership of the S. A. F. itself. E. G. Hill is president, Joseph Heacock treasurer and J. G. Esler secretary. The yearly reports showed:

The association now insures 38,500,538 square feet of glass for its members. The losses for the year were 118,745 square feet of single-thick glass and 85,136 square feet of double-thick glass. Since the organization of the association in 1887 1,960 losses have been adjusted at a total of over $278,000.

FLORISTS' TELEGRAPH DELIVERY.

The retailers' association had the best meeting in its history at Minneapolis this week. The attendance was larger than ever before and the free exchange of ideas showed how great has been the increase in interest in the business of delivering flowers at distant points.

The reports of President Bertermann and Secretary Pochelon showed the work that had been done and the plans for the future. The report of Treasurer Rock showed a bank balance of $2,253.14.

Officers were enthusiastically reelected, as follows:

President—I. C. Bertermann, of Indianapolis.

Vice-president—W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.

Treasurer—W. L. Rock, Kansas City, Mo.

Secretary—Albert Pochelon, Detroit, Mich.

Directors for three years—I. C. Bertermann, John Bertermann, W. L. Rock.

The holdover directors are A. B. Cartledge, W. F. Gude, F. H. Meinhardt, Philip Breitmeyer, E. Wienhoeber and George Asmus.

W. L. Rock read a paper in which he made comparisons of various ways of getting business, the showing being decidedly in favor of the F. T. D. Albert Pochelon read a paper on the history of the F. T. D., including experiences of the officers in the exploitation work, with suggestions for the extension of the association's influence and usefulness. There was an animated general discussion of the work, P. Breitmeyer,

E. Wienhoeber, H. B. Howard, George Asmus, I. L. Pillsbury, Sam Seligman, C. H. Plumb, George Heinl, A. Pochelon and others taking part. Emphasis was put upon the fact that the organization will do all in its power to discourage those who are not content to make the recognized profit of twenty per cent on outgoing orders.

REPORT ON SMITH MEMORIAL.

[Wm. F. Gude, as chairman of the committee on memorial to the late Wm. R. Smith at the national capital, presented the following report at the Minneapolis convention, August 22, 1913.]

Your committee, appointed at the convention held in August, 1912, in Chicago, has been at work on the preliminary arrangements toward securing funds for a suitable memorial to the late Wm. R. Smith.

Your committee did not feel at liberty to proceed until after interviews had been arranged with the government officials, with Andrew Carnegie and with the trustees of the library left by Mr. Smith.

Consideration of what type of memorial would be best suited to commemorate our late friend for all time to come has not been taken up as yet.

In an interview this spring between your chairman and Mr. Carnegie, the latter expressed himself as much interested in the project. He did not wish to take the initiative, however, and asked your chairman to see first what the florists of the United States would do. These being heard from, he desired to know the result, as he did not want the memorial erected without having the privilege of contributing toward the expense of its construction.

In the late spring of 1913, your committee sent a letter to all secretaries of our kindred organizations, some sixty in number of record, in the United States. A number of replies received stated that the matter would be taken up individually or collectively by members from many cities. Encouraging reports have come from other sources, and while no money has been asked for as yet, the sum of $145 has been received and deposited in bank with the Munsey Trust Co., of Washington, D. C., four per cent interest being paid on this deposit.

The committee proposes to start an active campaign in the early fall for funds, giving all persons interested in the memorial an opportunity to subscribe.

REPORT ON ROSE GARDEN.

[The following is the report by Wm. F. Gude, chairman of the committee on the proposed experimental rose garden, as read at the Minneapolis convention.]

The committee appointed in March, 1912, to secure permission from the United States Department of Agriculture to establish an experimental rose garden on the Arlington Farms, Virginia, under the direction of horticultural experts of the United States government, has been actively at work. The following official application was filed by the committees of the Rose Society and the S. A. F.:

May 29, 1913.

Hon. David F. Houston,
Secretary of Agriculture,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir: The rose growers of America, as represented by their reapective societies, feel the desirability of having at some accessible point as large a collection of rose species and varieties as will thrive at any one place. The advantages of such a collection would be the opportunity for study and comparison by those most interested, including growers and hybridizers, and the educational value to the general public.

Feeling that the value of such a collection is not confined to commercial rose growers, that such a collection could be well fostered and maintained under the present organization and equipment of your department, and that the climate of Washington is favorable to the growth of a large number of varieties, we respectfully ask that a rose garden be established on the Arlington Farms under the care and supervision of the government.

In order to coöperate as far as possible in establishing and maintaining such a garden, these societies will supply, free of cost to the government, stock true to name, and provide funds for the labeling of the collection, the government to supply the necessary land and labor for the cultivation and care of the collection.

Very respectfully,
Wm. F. Gude,
Washington Representative S. A. F.,
Chairman Special Committee.

In addition to filing the foregoing letter, the committee has had a number of interviews with the department officials. It had been hoped that before this report was submitted the garden would have been established, but owing to the change of administration some delay has been experienced. The committee feels, however, that ere we meet in convention again we shall have a good report from a rose garden actually established and in operation at Arlington Farms, Virginia, where roses from all sections may be treated officially.

REPORT ON PUBLICITY.

[The following is the report of W. R. Pierson, chairman of the publicity committee of the S. A. F., presented at the Minneapolis convention, August 22, 1913.]

At the last convention in Chicago the publicity question was brought forward for discussion and a motion was passed by this society authorizing a committee, to consist of one representative of each florists' club in the United States and Canada, to appoint a publicity committee and elect a delegate to membership in this national publicity committee. At the same time President Vincent appointed a committee of three, with Albert M. Herr as chairman. On Mr. Herr's resignation from this committee, I was appointed chairman in Mr. Herr's place. The validity of the appointment of this committee is in question, and the national committee has never been able to secure a meeting.

Throughout the year the question of general publicity and organized advertising has been freely discussed by the various florists' clubs in the country; in the cities there has been great progress made, and the improvement in business conditions in the cities, according to reports, has been quite satisfactory. At the International Flower Show in New York a meeting of the national publicity committee was called for, but during the strenuous days of the exhibition it was never possible to get more than a few members of this committee together, although a great many florists' clubs had appointed delegates to this committee meeting.

There is a wonderful field for the florist in properly placing before the public his product, in combined advertising and in keeping in touch with other cities to know how they are handling the problem. The matter has been taken up with the Daily Newspaper Association, which is anxious to put the florists' clubs in touch with newspapers in their own communities and would explain to the florists' clubs or their committees the benefits that could be derived from combined advertising.

Your committee requests to be discharged, but recommends that a meeting of the national committee be called for the purpose of organization and that this committee report back to the convention a plan for the organization of a publicity bureau, this plan to be acted upon before adjournment by the convention assembled.

CONVENTION SNAPSHOTS.

Nobody could find "where the wall fell down" without a guide.

The usual little testimonial in silver was presented to the president at the close of the convention.

Secretary John Young has got to know the exhibitors' likes and dislikes the way one's wife knows hubby's whims. Consequently everything runs as smoothly as clockwork.

The Minneapolis cartoonists like to make pictures of florists—and the florists don't seem shy. Emil Leuly, who biked from Jersey, was a center of interest to the local pencil pushers.

J. R. Fotheringham was in a washout in Minnesota that sent most of his train into the ditch and delayed his arrival at the convention for thirty-seven hours. He came from a Pacific coast trip.

The conductor of the Minneapolis park band, William Warvelle Nelson, has dedicated a composition to the S. A. F., played for the first time at the concert Friday night.

The American Sweet Pea Society had a time allotment in the program, but no meeting was held. President Sim was not present. Secretary Bunyard and A. C. Beal, who has charge of the trial grounds at Cornell, had a conference.

Mrs. August Poehlmann, of Chicago, slipped in alighting in front of the armory on the first day of the convention and the fall sprained her ankle so painfully that she was confined to her room at the Radisson for most of the week.

A new scheme that worked well was credited to Guy French, of Morton Grove. Each visitor was asked to sign a card. The cards were punched with a hole to hang on a rack according to the alphabet. The card gave each visitor's home and hotel address.

The armory is an ideal place for such an affair. The big drill floor is ample for any ordinary exhibition and the company rooms are fine for meetings. And the rent, by the way, is just half what the Coliseum at Chicago cost last year and about an eighth what the Grand Central Palace in New York cost per week.

The souvenir album published by the Minneapolis Florists' Club was a fine example of the printers' art; it was a departure from the form of previous souvenirs, being of standard magazine size. J. A. Ridgway, the chairman of the committee in charge, acknowledges that this was another place in which the tireless energy of Theodore Wirth counted for a great deal.

The outing was postponed this year till Saturday, to give additional time to the business affairs of the society and to give the visitors better opportunity to do justice to the trade's display. These desirable objects were attained, but it was at the expense of the attendance at the outing, for many of the visitors found it necessary to start for home without waiting for the picnic and sports.

Adolph Poehlmann, of Chicago, who drove his machine to the convention, had a breakdown on the last leg of the journey. W. J. Keimel, of Elmhurst, Ill., happened along and took Mrs. Poehlmann aboard, leaving the owner of the machine to get it repaired and follow when he could. He lost a day. August Poehlmann got through about on schedule, leaving Chicago August 14 and reaching Minneapolis in the evening of August 18.

BOSTON.

The Market.

While business remains quiet, the last week showed a little improvement on its immediate predecessor. Roses, although they are largely short-stemmed, are improving. Among the newer varieties, Mrs. George Shawyer, Mrs. Charles Russell and Milady are going well, Mrs. Russell particularly so. Among the old varieties, some really nice Perle des Jardins are seen, in addition to the other three yellows, Sunburst, Hillingdon and Ward. American Beauties are good for the season. A few carnations are still coming in. They are poor, however. Lilium longiflorum, which has been rather scarce, is more plentiful. Good auratums and speciosums are also coming in.

Asters are less of a glut than they were a week ago, with the passing of the early varieties, but prices remain low. Gladioli are selling a trifle better. America hangs fire; its flowers bruise easily, and now that it is abundant, the buyers turn against it. Sweet peas are all short-stemmed and are decreasing in numbers. An occasional bunch of Golden Glow chrysanthemums comes in, and some fine dahlias. Cosmos sells poorly, and the demand for bachelor's buttons is less robust.

Cattleyas are scarce. A few Gaskelliana and Harrisoniæ only are seen. Oncidium Rogersii is arriving. Valley remains of good quality, but sales are slow. Some of the new gardenia crop is arriving. Demand for green supplies is light.

Various Notes.

A large number of friends went to see the Boston travelers to the Minneapolis convention off, August 15. The weather was simply ideal. There were twenty-two in the number, including among others: J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Frank Manor, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Patten, Thomas Roland, F. J. Dolansky, E. A. Peirce, S. J. Goddard, Miss Helen Goddard, Patrick Welch, Edward Welch, W. J. Stewart, James B. Shea, superintendent of Boston parks; F. C. Green, Providence, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. Eber Holmes, Wm. P. Rich, T. J. Grey and M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.

Neil Boyle, of Malden, has built a new rose house, 48x135, in place of two old ones. His specialties for the coming season will be Killarney, White Killarney, Hillingdon, Richmond and Milady.

The auction sale of stalls at the Boston Coöperative Market will be held Saturday, August 30; that at the Boston Flower Exchange one week later, September 6. Each market has had a successful season and is reaching out for more stallholders. The former has reduced the rent to $20 a year to all stallholders, whether stockholders or not.

F. J. Dolansky started cutting his new crop of gardenias August 15, and Cattleya labiata the present week. He still has a few C. Gaskelliana and is cutting some excellent Oncidium Rogersii. He has built three extensions to his cattleya houses, each 100 feet long, to hold his increasing collection.

H. S. Rogers, Penn's advertising manager, is passing cigars. It is a ten-pound girl. Mother and baby are doing well.

The Montrose Greenhouses are sending in some good flowers of the old Perle rose. Other varieties they are growing this season are Russell, Double White Killarney, Double Killarney, Cardinal, Richmond, Taft, Hillingdon, Milady and Ward.

William Patterson, of Wollaston, has the best dahlias so far seen this season. All are varieties imported from England. He also has bachelor's buttons and longiflorum lilies in quantity. He has the foundations in for a new Garland sidehill house, 48x120, to be used either for carnations or asparagus.

The New England Rose Conservatories are shipping to the Boston Flower Exchange nice flowers of Ward, Killarney Queen, Killarney, White Killarney and a fine new seedling, Scarlet.

A. S. Parker, of Stoneham, one of the directors of the Boston Flower Exchange, is a candidate for representative on the Progressive ticket from the thirty-first Middlesex district. Mr. Parker is a good orator and a witty one.

William Jurgens, of Newport, is sending to the Flower Growers' Sales Co. fine speciosum and giganteum lilies and lilies of the valley, as fine as I have seen this season.

Julius A. Zinn, on Park street, in his window decoration August 16 had numerous vases of Ward roses with spikes of dark blue Veronica longifolia subsessilis arranged with them. The effect was quite good. Masses of long-stemmed auratum lilies were at the back of the window.

W. R. Finlay, salesman for the Flower Growers' Sales Co., is at Raymond, N. H., for his vacation, where fishing is good.

J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., Auburn, R. I., sends large daily rose shipments to the Boston Flower Exchange. The quality is good for such early shipments. They find that Tafts, Shawyers, Double White Killarneys and Double Killarneys sell specially well. Other varieties they have are Russell, Sunburst and Milady.

M. C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., arrived in Boston on the morning of August 15 and left for Minneapolis with the Boston band.

Penn's duck farm is still a prime attraction with the public. Store business for August has been quite good. Henry Penn decided at the last moment to stay and rest near the ocean rather than go to Minneapolis, as he had planned.

Mann Bros., among other growers, are shipping quantities of montbretias, globe amaranths and Gladiolus America.

John Barr, of South Natick, says he has sold about 35,000 surplus field carnations, and the demand seems insatiable.

Members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston are invited to join in a special inspection trip to the experimental gardens of the H. F. Michell Co., at Andalusia, Pa., Wednesday, August 27. A special train will leave the Broad street station at 11:15 a. m. Recognition tags will be furnished to all who can make the trip.

OBITUARY.

C. Leslie Reynolds.

C. Leslie Reynolds, superintendent of the National Botanical Gardens, at Washington, D. C., dropped dead from heart failure August 13, while chasing some boys who were throwing stones at the greenhouses.

Mr. Reynolds was a native of Montgomery county, Md., and was 55 years of age. His record of service with the government is an enviable one and covers a period of over forty years. He started out in 1872 as a senate page and March 5, 1873, he became a messenger boy at the Botanical Gardens. From that time on his rise was rapid; he soon became an apprentice gardener under the late William R. Smith and advanced steadily until he became the right-hand man of Mr. Smith. During the latter's illness he had full charge of the work at the gardens.

On the evening of August 12 he was one of the guests of Edward S. Schmid at the annual crab feast tendered the Washington Florists' Club, of which he was an honored member, and his death comes as a great shock to his associates and fellow members. Mr. Reynolds was also a Mason and a member of the Society of Oldest Inhabitants of Washington. He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Elizabeth Noonan, who was employed at the Botanical Gardens before her marriage about five years ago.

Mrs. Amasa Kennicott.

Mary Seeley Kennicott, widow of Amasa Kennicott, died August 13, at her residence, the Grove, near Des Plaines, Ill., after a three weeks' illness. Three sons, Ransom, Walter and Harrison Kennicott, survive her. Mrs. Kennicott was 67 years old. She was born near Wauwatosa, Wis., the daughter of Edwin Seeley. She was the sister-in-law of Flint Kennicott and her husband was the pioneer grower of peonies in large quantity as cut flowers for the Chicago market. Interment was at Arlington Heights, beside the Kennicott brothers, who preceded her only a few years.

John K. Hoskin.

John K. Hoskin, aged 69 years, died August 8, at his home, 1512 Haak street, Reading, Pa., of a complication of diseases. He had been in failing health for five years. Mr. Hoskin was a native of England, and came to this country forty years ago, locating directly in Reading. He formerly conducted a greenhouse and nursery at Schuylkill avenue and Greenwich street, in Reading, and for many years was a private gardener. He was a member of the Episcopal church. His wife died a number of years ago.

Charles Kennedy.

Charles Kennedy, for twenty years with the Robert Craig Co., at Philadelphia, Pa., died suddenly of heart failure on his way to work at Norwood, August 16. He was about 40 years of age. He was one of the fern growers at Forty-ninth and Market streets, Philadelphia, and had been transferred to Norwood temporarily.

William M. Evans.

William M. Evans, of Philadelphia, Pa., died late Saturday night, August 9, at his home, 4921 Florence avenue. He is survived by a daughter, Miss Mary B. Evans. The funeral was held Auguest 13.

publicity committee was called for, but during the strenuous days of the exhibition it was never possible to get more than a few members of this committee together, although a great many florists' clubs had appointed delegates to this committee meeting.

There is a wonderful field for the florist in properly placing before the public his product, in combined advertising and in keeping in touch with other cities to know how they are handling the problem. The matter has been taken up with the Daily Newspaper Association, which is anxious to put the florists' clubs in touch with newspapers in their own communities and would explain to the florists' clubs or their committees the benefits that could be derived from combined advertising.

Your committee requests to be discharged, but recommends that a meeting of the national committee be called for the purpose of organization and that this committee report back to the convention a plan for the organization of a publicity bureau, this plan to be acted upon before adjournment by the convention assembled.

CONVENTION SNAPSHOTS.

Nobody could find "where the wall fell down" without a guide.

The usual little testimonial in silver was presented to the president at the close of the convention.

Secretary John Young has got to know the exhibitors' likes and dislikes the way one's wife knows hubby's whims. Consequently everything runs as smoothly as clockwork.

The Minneapolis cartoonists like to make pictures of florists—and the florists don't seem shy. Emil Leuly, who biked from Jersey, was a center of interest to the local pencil pushers.

J. R. Fotheringham was in a washout in Minnesota that sent most of his train into the ditch and delayed his arrival at the convention for thirty-seven hours. He came from a Pacific coast trip.

The conductor of the Minneapolis park band, William Warvelle Nelson, has dedicated a composition to the S. A. F., played for the first time at the concert Friday night.

The American Sweet Pea Society had a time allotment in the program, but no meeting was held. President Sim was not present. Secretary Bunyard and A. C. Beal, who has charge of the trial grounds at Cornell, had a conference.

Mrs. August Poehlmann, of Chicago, slipped in alighting in front of the armory on the first day of the convention and the fall sprained her ankle so painfully that she was confined to her room at the Radisson for most of the week.

A new scheme that worked well was credited to Guy French, of Morton Grove. Each visitor was asked to sign a card. The cards were punched with a hole to hang on a rack according to the alphabet. The card gave each visitor's home and hotel address.

The armory is an ideal place for such an affair. The big drill floor is ample for any ordinary exhibition and the company rooms are fine for meetings. And the rent, by the way, is just half what the Coliseum at Chicago cost last year and about an eighth what the Grand Central Palace in New York cost per week.

The souvenir album published by the Minneapolis Florists' Club was a fine example of the printers' art; it was a departure from the form of previous souvenirs, being of standard magazine size. J. A. Ridgway, the chairman of the committee in charge, acknowledges that this was another place in which the tireless energy of Theodore Wirth counted for a great deal.

The outing was postponed this year till Saturday, to give additional time to the business affairs of the society and to give the visitors better opportunity to do justice to the trade's display. These desirable objects were attained, but it was at the expense of the attendance at the outing, for many of the visitors found it necessary to start for home without waiting for the picnic and sports.

Adolph Poehlmann, of Chicago, who drove his machine to the convention, had a breakdown on the last leg of the journey. W. J. Keimel, of Elmhurst, Ill., happened along and took Mrs. Poehlmann aboard, leaving the owner of the machine to get it repaired and follow when he could. He lost a day. August Poehlmann got through about on schedule, leaving Chicago August 14 and reaching Minneapolis in the evening of August 18.

BOSTON.

The Market.

While business remains quiet, the last week showed a little improvement on its immediate predecessor. Roses, although they are largely short-stemmed, are improving. Among the newer varieties, Mrs. George Shawyer, Mrs. Charles Russell and Milady are going well, Mrs. Russell particularly so. Among the old varieties, some really nice Perle des Jardins are seen, in addition to the other three yellows, Sunburst, Hillingdon and Ward. American Beauties are good for the season. A few carnations are still coming in. They are poor, however. Lilium longiflorum, which has been rather scarce, is more plentiful. Good auratums and speciosums are also coming in.

Asters are less of a glut than they were a week ago, with the passing of the early varieties, but prices remain low. Gladioli are selling a trifle better. America hangs fire; its flowers bruise easily, and now that it is abundant, the buyers turn against it. Sweet peas are all short-stemmed and are decreasing in numbers. An occasional bunch of Golden Glow chrysanthemums comes in, and some fine dahlias. Cosmos sells poorly, and the demand for bachelor's buttons is less robust.

Cattleyas are scarce. A few Gaskelliana and Harrisoniæ only are seen. Oncidium Rogersii is arriving. Valley remains of good quality, but sales are slow. Some of the new gardenia crop is arriving. Demand for green supplies is light.

Various Notes.

A large number of friends went to see the Boston travelers to the Minneapolis convention off, August 15. The weather was simply ideal. There were twenty-two in the number, including among others: J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Frank Manor, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Patten, Thomas Roland, F. J. Dolansky, E. A. Peirce, S. J. Goddard, Miss Helen Goddard, Patrick Welch, Edward Welch, W. J. Stewart, James B. Shea, superintendent of Boston parks; F. C. Green, Providence, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. Eber Holmes, Wm. P. Rich, T. J. Grey and M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.

Nell Boyle, of Malden, has built a new rose house, 48x135, in place of two old ones. His specialties for the coming season will be Killarney, White Killarney, Hillingdon, Richmond and Milady.

The auction sale of stalls at the Boston Coöperative Market will be held Saturday, August 30; that at the Boston Flower Exchange one week later, September 6. Each market has had a successful season and is reaching out for more stallholders. The former has reduced the rent to $20 a year to all stallholders, whether stockholders or not.

F. J. Dolansky started cutting his new crop of gardenias August 15, and Cattleya labiata the present week. He still has a few C. Gaskelliana and is cutting some excellent Oncidium Rogersii. He has built three extensions to his cattleya houses, each 100 feet long, to hold his increasing collection.

H. S. Rogers, Penn's advertising manager, is passing cigars. It is a ten-pound girl. Mother and baby are doing well.

The Montrose Greenhouses are sending in some good flowers of the old Perle rose. Other varieties they are growing this season are Russell, Double White Killarney, Double Killarney, Cardinal, Richmond, Taft, Hillingdon, Milady and Ward.

William Patterson, of Wollaston, has the best dahlias so far seen this season. All are varieties imported from England. He also has bachelor's buttons and longiflorum lilies in quantity. He has the foundations in for a new Garland sidehill house, 48x120, to be used either for carnations or asparagus.

The New England Rose Conservatories are shipping to the Boston Flower Exchange nice flowers of Ward, Killarney Queen, Killarney, White Killarney and a fine new seedling, Scarlet.

A. S. Parker, of Stoneham, one of the directors of the Boston Flower Exchange, is a candidate for representative on the Progressive ticket from the thirty-first Middlesex district. Mr. Parker is a good orator and a witty one.

William Jurgens, of Newport, is sending to the Flower Growers' Sales Co. fine speciosum and giganteum lilies and lilies of the valley, as fine as I have seen this season.

Julius A. Zinn, on Park street, in his window decoration August 16 had numerous vases of Ward roses with spikes of dark blue Veronica longifolia subsessilis arranged with them. The effect was quite good. Masses of long-stemmed auratum lilies were at the back of the window.

W. R. Finlay, salesman for the Flower Growers' Sales Co., is at Raymond, N. H., for his vacation, where fishing is good.

J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., Auburn, R. I., sends large daily rose shipments to the Boston Flower Exchange. The quality is good for such early shipments. They find that Tafts, Shawyers, Double White Killarneys and Double Killarneys sell specially well. Other varieties they have are Russell, Sunburst and Milady.

M. C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., arrived in Boston on the morning of August 15 and left for Minneapolis with the Boston band.

Penn's duck farm is still a prime attraction with the public. Store business for August has been quite good. Henry Penn decided at the last moment to stay and rest near the ocean rather than go to Minneapolis, as he had planned.

Mann Bros., among other growers, are shipping quantities of montbretias, globe amaranths and Gladiolus America.

John Barr, of South Natick, says he has sold about 35,000 surplus field carnations, and the demand seems insatiable.

Members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston are invited to join in a special inspection trip to the experimental gardens of the H. F. Michell Co., at Andalusia, Pa., Wednesday, August 27. A special train will leave the Broad street station at 11:15 a. m. Recognition tags will be furnished to all who can make the trip.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

KANSAS has had the hottest summer ever known and the florists there, as well as in the adjacent states, have lost a great deal of stock.

IT looks as though five days is too long for a trade convention. The interest is not sufficient to hold the attendance at the hall for more than a part of the time.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

ONE advertiser in The Review reports having sold 240,000 chrysanthemum plants this season and says many more might have been disposed of had the stock been available.

P. O. MUMMA, mayor of Leesburg, O., is starting in the greenhouse business. Incidentally, he says he gets "a world of information" out of The Review. The first thing a beginner does is to subscribe.

FOR those who remember what they read last week it may be stated that last week's edition of The Review consumed 7,865 pounds of white paper—and it was no special edition, sample copy circulation, either; just the regular weekly run. Practically four tons of white paper are used each issue the year around, with about six tons on special numbers.

EVERY few days someone asks The Review to tell him of a favorable location for starting in business of one kind or another. A location may be well or poorly chosen, but success in any branch of the florists' business depends more on the ability and energy of the florist than on any other factor. One man gets rich where other men merely make a living—but there are surprisingly few failures in this trade.

WHAT READERS NEED.

Whatever our readers need, they turn to our advertising pages to find. The man whose advertisement is on the spot prepared to supply what readers need, is sure to get the business. If the advertisement is in response to a need, the buyer will look it up. It is for this reason that a little Classified advertisement is such a wonder-worker. Two lines brought business and satisfaction to this man, for the readers needed his tobacco stems:

Wish to say that we got good results from the classified advertisement and it will not be necessary to run it any longer at this time.—L. S. Boucher Cigar Co., Joplin, Mo., Aug. 7, 1913.

The Great Central Market.

With a steady increase in the supply and an indifferent demand, the market for the last week or ten days has been anything but brisk. Each day has seen large quantities of stock thrown on the market, while the wholesalers were doing their best to move the surplus along in the face of an almost discouraging demand. Roses are probably more plentiful than they have been for a number of years at this time, and with the exception of the white varieties, which are scarce, there are more than enough to go around. While Killarneys, Marylands and the other summer roses are to be had in large lots, the greatest oversupply is in Beauties. Every possible effort is being made by the dealers to force the sale of these. City buyers have taken away large numbers, but there are still enough left for the wants of the out-of-town buyers. They are available in almost any length, but there are more of the medium and long stems than of the shorter ones. Just how long the oversupply will last is a question; the cloudy weather early in the week gave the wholesalers hope that the cuts would decrease until the demand could catch up. Of the other roses, the new crops are all that could be expected in the way of color, foliage and stem, but it is hard to keep the flowers in condition, as the heat causes them to open quickly, and those that will stand shipping are not in abundance. There are increasing cuts in many of the new varieties, and Mrs. Russell, Milady and one or two others are more in evidence as the summer advances.

Asters are being shipped to the market in larger quantities than before, but the quality is lacking, and the good ones are the only kind that are worthy of attention. There is no outlet for the poor ones, and they hardly bring enough for the growers to pay the express charges. The good ones are more readily disposed of, although the demand is hardly a brisk one. Gladioli are in the same boat, and only the better grades will bring any price at all.

Carnations have been cut in larger numbers during the last few days, and in some quarters reasonably good flowers are to be found. They do not show the weakness of stem that was the defect of the carnations last season, and while most of them are short-stemmed as yet, there are a few good long-stemmed ones. Another two weeks should see the first good cuts of the longer stems.

Lilies are in fair supply, with a demand just strong enough to carry away those that are being cut. Valley is

Enormous Supply

THE LARGEST OF ANY CUT FLOWER HOUSE IN AMERICA

BUT THE POLICY OF THIS HOUSE has been to be conservative in all things. Moderation has been the keynote of our advertising, believing that boastfulness leads to overstatement and to claims that cannot be lived up to. We have asked for business on the quality of our stock, and on the efficiency of our service, rather than on the MERE SIZE of our place—yet we believe it to be literally and absolutely true that we handle more dollars' worth of cut flowers in a year than any other cut flower house in the United States.

FANCY ROSES

The steady average high quality of our roses has been the talk of the Chicago market for years, but we never have been so well fixed as we shall be in the approaching season. Already we have a splendid cut. The crop is heavy and the stock fine; plenty of medium to long roses, the scarce kind. Note we have a full line, the varieties that every retailer needs in quantity: Milady, Sunburst, Ward, Bulgarie, Radiance, Killarney and White Killarney.

BEAUTIES

We aim always to have Beauties in the ice-box awaiting your wire, and there never is any doubt of our ability to supply anything you want in Beauties if we have your order early in the day. At present the cut is so large we never run out.

FANCY DAISIES

Now that daisies are practically out of the market, buyers will be glad to know that we have a crop that is first-class in every particular. It is not Shasta, but a seedling raised by one of our own growers, so near like Shasta that few will note the difference in the flower.

FANCY ASTERS

Besides the special fancy, of which we have the best supply of the season to date, we can furnish smaller stock as low as $10.00 per 1000.

GLADIOLI

We can supply America, Augusta and King, the three best sellers, in any quantity.

FANCY VALLEY

You can depend upon us at all times for valley. If you run short, a wire to Amling will bring the valley you need.

EASTER LILIES

We can supply fine Easter Lilies in large quantity every day in the year. A specially good crop now on.

Summer Flower Show.

The unfavorable weather showed its effects to a certain extent at the summer flower exhibition of the Horticultural Society of Chicago, which was held August 14 and 15 in the Art Institute. The principal displays were, of course, of gladioli. In several classes no entries were made and the exhibitors of gladioli who figured in the list of prize-winners numbered only three: Vaughan's Seed Store, W. W. Barnard Co. and Bidwell & Fobes, the latter of Kinsman, O. The popular named varieties constituted the bulk of their displays. A wonderful collection of unusual varieties, including those of the ruffled type, were shown by A. E. Kunderd, of Goshen, Ind., for exhibition only.

Entries in the private gardeners' and amateur classes were not numerous. Paul Dieball, of Hubbard Woods, took first prizes for his displays of lilies and gladioli, and C. Antoszowski, of Glencoe, took two second prizes in the classes of gladioli and cut hardy annuals, no first prize being awarded in the latter. A. Anthes, gardener for Mrs. R. J. Dunham, Hubbard Woods, took the silver medal offered for hydrangeas and the bronze medal for nasturtiums. The silver medal in the latter class was captured by J. J. Krupa, gardener for N. W. Harris, of Lake Geneva, who also took the silver cup for the collective exhibit of perennials and annuals, offered by Ernst Wienhoeber, vice-president of the society. Mr. Krupa's display was a fine one, comprising more than 100 vases of distinct varieties, which covered a large table and extended along one side of the wall against the statuary. Paul Dieball was given second place in this class. Some good asters won first prize for G. Swenson, Elmhurst, Ill. Quite a fine show of phloxes for display only were sent by C. O. Youngstrand, of Golf, Ill. E. F. Winterson showed a handsome vase of Meehan's Mallow Marvels grown at his residence.

Association Meeting.

Allie Zech presided at the monthly meeting of the Cook County Florists' Association at the Tavern August 14, President A. C. Kohlbrand being confined to his home by an attack of lumbago. F. D. Wallace and W. S. McGee were elected to associate membership and the application of James Morton was received. The principal work of the evening was preparation for the convention, now a matter of the past. Committees were appointed to meet visitors at the depots August 18. The committee reported everything in readiness for the picnic at Karthauser's grove September 7.

Various Notes.

John C. Michelsen is letting the contracts for a new home in River Forest.

There were a lot of visitors in town in the last week, first salesmen working toward Minneapolis, followed by the men the salesmen went to meet, but not so many of either as had been expected.

D. E. Freres says his growers are selling their surplus carnation plants in quick time this year.

Friends of O. W. Frese regret to learn that Mrs. Frese is not so well as they would wish. Little Miss Frese is progressing finely.

That new 6-cylinder Locomobile is occupying a large part of N. J. Wietor's attention this week. C. A. Alles says it is so noiseless you can not hear it coming, it runs so fast you can scarcely see it go by, and about all you get is the smell of the exhaust unless Mr. Wietor invites you to take a ride.

Tim Matchen and wife reached home August 16, after a most enjoyable trip south. They went as far as Columbus, Miss.

QUALITY SECOND TO NONE

In the quality of stock we are none too boastful when we assert that in this market there is none better. Don't forget that. We stand ready to prove it at any time and a trial order is the quickest means of putting our challenge to a test. Nevertheless we stand ready to back it up. When you get sick and tired of the variation in the quality you are getting send us a standing order for a few weeks and we will prove what we say is true to your complete satisfaction. Our roses and gladioli are especially fine at present. In roses—all summer varieties—we have the best. We are strong on American Beauties of the famous summer blooming qualities. You make no mistake when you order Beauties of us.

Most of the week's visitors were bound conventionward, but Mr. Brown, of the Livingston Seed Co., and Mrs. Brown were on their way home to Columbus after an outing in northern Wisconsin.

Emil Schloss, ribbon merchant, made an interesting comment last week. He said he had just visited all the principal cities from New York west and that the August activity in the trade in Chicago is far head of anything seen elsewhere.

Guy French says Poehlmann Bros. Co. has promised him a new range of houses next season for his carnations.

W. J. Keimel and wife started August 17 to motor to the convention.

Albert F. Amling, who is vice-president of the Maywood State Bank, is devoting the greater part of his time to the institution during the vacation season for its other officers.

George Wienhoeber, of the Fleischman Floral Co., has been storing up energy at the summer resorts preparatory to opening a fresh campaign early in September.

Miss Nettie Parker returned to the office of the Chicago Carnation Co. in time to let A. T. Pyfer get away for the convention.

So many florists have opened accounts in the State Bank of Oak Park that it has contributed quite a little toward the showing of $33,000 increase in deposits since last report to the state auditor. The deposits August 9 were $297,729.14. This is the bank of which E. C. Amling is president.

The obituary column this week records the death of the widow of Amasa Kennicott, pioneer peony grower.

The Chicago Florists' Club's annual picnic promises to attract a good crowd to Ehrhardt's grove, Park Ridge, August 31. Tickets are on sale in most of the wholesale houses.

It is stated that the receiver for E. H. Hunt, Inc., has $2,400 cash in the bank, besides book accounts and a quantity of merchandise turned over to Erne & Klingel for disposal. Among those who motored to the convention were C. W. McKellar and wife, who had George Asmus and wife as their guests on the tour. They left August 14.

An outfit of new tables is being installed in the cut flower department of the A. L. Randall Co., several of them built around posts to utilize space not otherwise available.

H. N. Bruns did not visit Minneapolis for the convention. He left for New York August 17, to meet his mother and sister, who will arrive from Hamburg, Germany, to pay him a visit. This is the first time they have been in the United States.

R. S. Woodyard, of Sharp, Partridge & Co., left for the convention on the special train August 18. Sharp, Partridge & Co. have experienced an unusually heavy business in greenhouse glass and their stock on hand, while large, is in danger of being used up before new stock can be secured.

The importance of the S. A. F. convention to the Kroeschell Bros. Co. can be judged by the fact that Fred Lautenschlager dropped business to make a flying trip to the convention city. Mr. Lautenschlager intended to leave on one of the special trains August 18, but was delayed and left next day.

The houses of the Deerfield Nurseries that were damaged in the tornado last spring are again in working order, and nearly three houses have been replanted with gardenias. The larger house that was used for gardenias last year is now planted with mums. John Kruchten, who has an interest in the firm and who disposes of the stock at his market store, says the gardenias look especially fine and he is looking for a good fall cut.

An Opportunity of a Lifetime

A five-year-old Paper Shell Pecan Orchard, owned by W. T. Jackson, at Baconton, Ga., valued at $2000.00 per acre this year. Photographed July 17, 1913.

LARGE SUMS INVESTED IN PECANS IN THE ALBANY DISTRICT, GEORGIA

The most extensive commercial pecan development being recorded is in Southern Georgia, in what has become widely known as the Albany district.

The peculiarly adapted soil, ample rainfall, acceptable climate, and successful bearing groves have caused hundreds of thousands of dollars to be invested in pecan orchards in the Albany district.

INCOME UNLIMITED

HARRY U. JACKSON, who is owner of a seven year old grove at Baconton, had an income last year of $300.00 AN ACRE. This year his income will be considerably more.

THE JACKSON GROVES are private groves, PLANTED AND CARED FOR under the personal supervision of Mr. C. C. Batey, HORTICULTURIST of the JACKSON PECAN GROVES CO., who up to the present date has no equal in the culture of budded Pecan trees. Each five acre tract contains five of the leading varieties, namely, SCHLEY, MOBILE, STUART, TECHE, and FROTCHER or VAN DEMAN.

THE REASON for the sale of these privately planted groves is the closing of the estate of the JACKSON BROTHERS and Mr. C. C. Batey, of Baconton, Georgia.

Jackson Brothers, owners of these groves, are bankers, merchants, and owners of several thousand acres of cotton land at Baconton, Georgia. They are absolutely responsible and give a Bond for Deed with every contract of purchase; the bond also guaranteeing specific performance of each clause of the contract as to the care and development.

COMPETITION ON WALNUTS BUT NOT ON PECANS

The importations of Pecans from Mexico for 1911 were valued at only $158,312. The U. S. produced about 15,000,000 lbs., chiefly from the wild trees of the Southern States. There is no foreign competition; on the other hand we have the whole world for a market and will begin to export pecans as soon as we have a surplus at home. "The pecan is wholly an American species (of the same family as the hickories, the walnuts and the butternuts), found only in certain parts of the United States and Mexico."—Bureau of Plant Industry Bulletin No. 251, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

HIGH PRICES WILL CONTINUE

The price of the best varieties of paper shell pecans in the retail stores of Chicago averages $1.00 per pound and has for a number of years. The price to the producer at Baconton, Ga., last year, for "Schley" and "Mobile" Pecans averaged 80c per pound. It is the consensus of opinion among owners of groves and experts in nut-culture that the price for choice pecans will not drop to less than 40c per pound to the grower within the next 25 years, probably during the present century, as it is estimated that we are not now supplying one per cent of the demand. On account of the thinness of shells, superior keeping qualities and fine flavor, paper shell pecans are actually worth two or three times as much as other nuts. The price of all nuts is advancing.

Why not investigate this wonderful income producing proposition? It will cost you nothing to get full information.

Charles Erne, of Erne & Klingel, says the carnations this year appear to be in much better shape than last year, when the majority of the first arrivals of the longer stems from the new crops were weak. This season the plants had less rain in the field and are making a better showing.

The Geo. Wittbold Co. reports a heavier business this summer than ever before. Alterations at Edgebrook to accommodate a new rose house have been completed and things are in shape for the winter. Fred Nelson, manager of the retail department, is on his vacation and will be gone about three weeks, touring Colorado in the neighborhood of Denver and Colorado Springs. Miss Frances Nagler has returned from her vacation in Wisconsin.

Leon E. Sawicki left Monday for the convention at Minneapolis. From there he goes to accept a position at Wenatchee, Wash.

In order that he might attend the convention at Minneapolis, Oscar Leistner returned from his eastern trip August 17, and left for the convention city August 18. Mr. Leistner's trip took him to all the big floral centers of the east, and he reports the demand for American oak sprays to be far greater than at this time last year.

Astermums have found a steady demand this summer, according to A. L. Vaughan, who says they needed no boosting, but sold at a good deal better price than the ordinary asters. Mr. Vaughan found it impossible to get away to the convention this year owing to the rush of business, but held an open house for all those who went to Minneapolis via the Windy City.

Three new roses were cut this week by Weiland & Risch and at the market store Milady, Mrs. Russell and a new seedling of their own, Dolly Varden, a pink tea rose, were standing side by side. John Risch is well pleased with the Mrs. Russell.

Another who is predicting popularity for the new Mrs. Russell is John Sinner. He says the first few cuts have shown excellent selling qualities. He expects a good crop shortly from the 500 plants now in the houses at Evanston.

Zech & Mann report that the Beauty cut they are receiving at present averages about 2,000 each day, and Mr. Zech says from the present indications there will be plenty for all from now on. He adds that the new ice-box has proven itself equal to the test and works like a charm. This week was the first time it was put in full operation. The old one will be used for any overflow that may develop.

The Eastern Market.

Business is rather dull. There are good days and poor ones. Opinion is fairly evenly divided as to whether conditions are as good as they usually are in midsummer; let us take a hopeful view and believe that they are. Good flowers are in much better demand than poor ones. The prices are so low that no one objects to the price; the thing is to get the flowers in the proper stage of development. Beauties, locally grown, are finer and more plentiful than a week ago. There are some good Killarney and a few nice White Enchantress. A few really superb asters are offered and some fancy dahlias show what is to come. The other flowers show little change from a week ago. Most of the business is for funerals, but some large entertainments at the fashionable seashore and mountain resorts have made heavy demands on the market and there are always a few flowers used for gifts.

A Triumph.

Last May Edward Reid received a telegraphic order for flowers to be sent to a distant point C. O. D. Through an error of the Western Union Telegraph Co., that part of the order given to carnations read 2,000 instead of 200. This error caused the bill, amounting to $67, to so greatly exceed the expectations of the florist who sent the order that he declined to accept the shipment. Feeling that he had carried out his part faithfully, Mr. Reid would not interfere. The telegraph company admitted its error, but declined to make good. Its New York attorneys wrote one of those nonsensical letters that corporation lawyers sometimes indulge in when dealing with supposedly weak individuals. Mr. Reid promptly brought suit, notified all his out-of-town customers that it would be better not to use the Western Union lines and ordered his call box removed. The telegraph company quickly came to terms, paid the amount of the bill and all costs and asked that the ban on their wires be removed, as they were getting letters of inquiry from all over the country. Mr. Reid was graciously pleased to accede to their request.

Our Western Delegation.

Some years ago the late Edward Everett Hale came to our house to supper. While here the dear old gentleman told a story of how he was going out to West Philadelphia in the trolley the night before to deliver a rather dry lecture at the university. The car rapidly filled with girls and boys, who crossed the river with him. He thought how nice it was that all these girls and boys were going out to "Penn" to hear him lecture. When they all got out of the car to go to a popular show—I think it was a circus—he felt it was better so. I was reminded forcibly of this story when the newspaper men gathered in Broad Street station last Sunday morning to see our delegation off for Minneapolis. There were four of them, Thomas J. Lane, Fred J. Michell, Jr., Theodore Shober and Antoine Wintzer. Evidently Waretown and Ocean City drew the crowd. Where was John Westcott? Inquiry over the telephone revealed the fact that the train from Barnegat bay had not been belated, but the great commodore was resting quietly at home. The man who had led our delegation so bravely year after year to every city in the country felt that the time had come for him to withdraw. Counting those who went before, sixteen Philadelphians are known to have gone to the convention; they will give a good account of themselves.

Charles D. Ball.

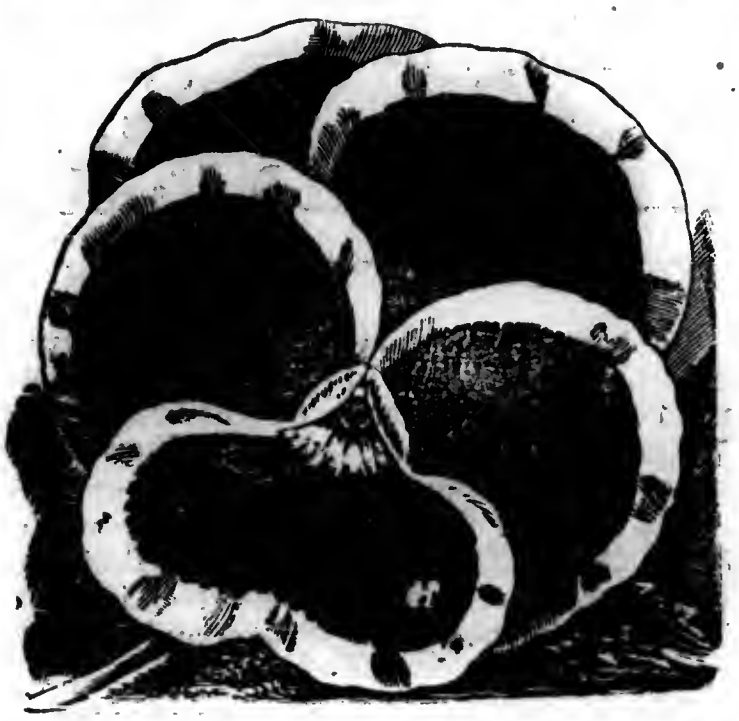
not an easy thing but something that requires intelligence, ability and perseverance—that is what Charles D. Ball has accomplished. It is something to be proud of, the production of kentias today that are as good as any kentias that he has ever grown and probably quite as good as any that have ever been grown elsewhere. To grasp the full meaning of this, just think of all the florists you know who have grown this or that variety of plant wonderfully well at some time or other. Are they growing them as well today? There is the rub.



Mr. Ball has perfected his method of growing kentias so that the same amount of work produces better results than formerly. He says that he believes his place is as free from insects as it is possible for any place to be. The plants agreed with him; they looked extremely well. Mr. Ball is a firm believer in making up plants of robust health only. The center plant in a made-up pot of kentias should, of course, be a little stronger than the other three, but they must not be weaklings, far from it, or that perfect symmetry of habit so much admired in the finished specimen is lacking. While kentias in both varieties and every size are the feature of Mr. Ball's place, there are others, like the fixings to the turkey. Notable among them are the arecas, while of less import are the cocos, dracænas, pandanus, ardisias and small ferns.

There is a point about Charles D. Ball's place that always impresses the visitor; the houses are old, yet the stock in them is fully abreast of the times, in the front rank, too. When it is considered that some of these houses are thirty-four years old, that they are built with much wood and small glass, that they have never in that whole thirty-four years received a coat of paint inside since they were finished, it is little short of marvelous.

Forty-ninth and Market Streets.

Robert A. Craig believes that the ferns on his place this season are better than they have ever been before. Seven of the leading varieties are grown in quantity in all commercial sizes. So rapidly has the demand increased that the only question is: "Can we produce enough of this or that variety?" Robusta and tuberosa plumosa are the interesting novelties. Ficus Craigii is a sport from the variegated ficus that has won friends. It sported seven years ago, but has only lately been taken up in earnest. Its habit makes it a desirable plant. Chrysanthemums will be a feature of the place next fall. There are a number of houses devoted to the leading varieties. They are in excellent condition and will be followed by the Christmas-flowering plants.

Various Notes.

J. C. Schattmaier, of Washington, D. C., was here August 18.

Herbert G. Tull is at Rangeley lakes, in Maine.

Dr. L. L. W. Wilson has sold his greenhouses at Gwynedd Valley, Pa., to a Mr. Strassburger, who is attached to the American legation at Tokio, Japan. The place will be run semi-commercially, as heretofore. D. Kline is manager.

Harry Berger is at Seaside Park.

Otto Didden, of West Philadelphia, is sending magnificent asters to the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. They have large, well formed flowers in all the colors, borne on extra long stems. The company is also receiving nice White Enchantress.

John Holze, of Seattle, Wash., and R. G. Bowersox, of Lewistown, Pa., were here recently.

B. Eschner is building a garage, connected with his house by a porte-cochere, at Elkins Park; it will be the home of a fine limousine next month.

James Thoirs, of Camden, N. J., is renovating his store; it will be finished in ivory. There will be several improvements and some alterations.

Charles Kennedy, for twenty years with the Robert Craig Co., died suddenly of heart failure on his way to work at Norwood, August 16. Mr. Kennedy, who was about 40 years of age, was one of the fern growers at Forty-ninth and Market streets. He had been transferred to Norwood temporarily.

John R. Andre, of Doylestown, Pa., is sending fine Killarney to the Leo Niessen Co. Mr. Andre has rounded out his season's improvements with a new 100 horse-power boiler.

L. K. Peacock, of Williamstown Junction, N. J., has commenced cutting fancy dahlias—just a few to feel the pulse of the market.

Max H. Rothe, of Mount Airy, has installed two large steam boilers.

THE FLORISTS' SUPPLY HOUSE OF AMERICA

To the Florist Who Wasn't There:

WE staged an exhibit in Minneapolis this week such as the west has never seen. It was composed of the best novelties on both sides of the water. It brought out enthusiastic expressions of approval from all who saw it. Nothing like it has ever been displayed before. We keep ahead of the times and our exhibits improve year by year.

To keep posted on Florists' Supplies, to get the best that the market affords, get in touch with us — we have the goods and we want to show them to you.

The Market.

Convention week and the one preceding it have been dull these many years, and this year is no exception to the rule. The market is overwhelmed with hydrangeas, gladioli, asters and short-stemmed roses. Many of our leading citizens are at Minneapolis, or still at mountain resorts or at the seashore. It is simply the inevitable yearly stagnation, only more this year than ever. Shipments of roses begin to show a slight improvement. The few first-class Beauties and novelties that arrive are, of course, snapped up quickly. Shawyer and Milady are especially appreciated, and Double White Killarney as well. A general improvement in quality of all the roses is already evident. Of the short-stemmed stock no values can be safely quoted.

Carnations are few and largely unsalable. There is a tremendous loss in asters; only the best and the selected are called for. The great mass of the arrivals go for any price that is offered, and most of them are in the ice-box until crowded into the street and carted away. Almost the same conditions characterize the gladiolus market. Only the new varieties and America seem to be wanted. The most of the shipments sell at 50 cents a hundred and under. Vast quantities do not sell at all. Every retail window is now filled with ferns and Hydrangea paniculata. Valley and lilies are firm at present quotations. Some fine rubrums are in the market. Orchids are lower again, and abundant. The weather has been exceptionally favorable in the east this season for outdoor flowers. There has been no continuous and abnormal heat such as the west has suffered, and there have been abundant rains. Cosmos and dahlias are arriving.

Various Notes.

Chairman Bunyard's report on convention matters August 16 was encouraging. He then anticipated an attendance of forty, and nearly this number had been booked at that time, the inevitable last-hour arrivals being depended on to round out the even number and so fill the two special cars. Every comfort for the excursionists has been provided and a delightful trip is anticipated for all.

The consolidation of the firms of Geo. Cotsonas & Co. and Lecakes & Co. was the event of the week in Twenty-eighth street. The new firm will be known as the New York Florist Supply Co., Inc., and the Greek-American Supply Co., successors to Geo. Cotsonas & Co. and Lecakes & Co., Inc. Headquarters for the present will be at 127 West Twenty-eighth street.

John A. Foley, who has been manager for Lecakes & Co. for a number of years, will devote his entire attention to his express business, with headquarters at 53 West Twenty-eighth street.

Louis Schmutz, Jr., and wife, and C. Bouquet, of Bouquet & Sons, Flatbush, leave this week for a six weeks' visit in Holland, Belgium, France and Germany. A family celebration and bon voyage took place at the residence of Mr. Schmutz, Friday evening, August 15. Louis Schmutz, Sr., will shortly pass his seventieth milestone.

Arthur T. Boddington returned August 11 from his summer vacation much improved in health. The firm is busy. A thousand cases of French bulbs arrived August 15 on the steamer Canada. Mr. Bunyard will enjoy his holiday after the convention.

R. MacNiff will remain until the middle of August with his family at his cottage, "Heart's Content," at Bushnellsville, N. Y., in the Catskills. The first auction of the new season will take place September 16.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. has its new and thoroughly up-to-date store nearly ready for occupancy. Nothing better or more complete could be desired. Every improvement and facility for an immense business has been installed. Over 2,500 square feet on the ground floor is available.

Harry Riedel, of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, Inc., left August 18 for his annual jaunt to Montreal and vicinity, after a week's recuperation at Sea Cliff, L. I.

Millandre Bros. are adepts at unique window decoration at their fine stores, at 2077 and 2703 Broadway.

W. G. Badgley is sending to the market some fine Sunburst and Shawyer roses.

many improvements in their plant headquarters at 41 West Twenty-eighth street, enlarging the store and office space and building a conservatory at the rear.

In the absence of H. E. Froment, who is at Lake George and the Adirondacks, the store is being thoroughly redecorated. The same improvements are being made by Gunther Bros., Traendly & Schenck, and, in fact, every wholesale house in the cut flower district. Every place will be spick and span by September 1 and by this date the wheels of business ought to be again in motion.

Tritomas and phlox of splendid quality are seen in M. C. Ford's window.

Mr. Reed, of Reed & Keller, purchased heavily in Europe this summer, including many novelties for Christmas. Importations are now arriving. A new sprinkler worked by compressed air is one of Mr. Reed's latest inventions, and it will be placed on the market early in September.

The new store of the Henry M. Robinson Co., on the ground floor of the Coogan building, will be completed by the end of the week, the enormous icebox installed and the many conveniences of the establishment perfected. This house does a large shipping business.

The Guttman Flower Growers' Co. reports a rapidly growing trade. The greenhouse plant of this company is furnishing some good rose stock of the popular novelties. Mr. Guttman says he is too busy to attend the convention.

Wm. Kessler, the plantsman, is stocking up rapidly for the fall trade, and the cut flower department is promising. A window decoration changed daily is one of the features of this establishment.

W. E. Marshall and family are enjoying their holidays on the company's yacht at Sound resorts, and at Great South bay.

The immense new store of the Stumpp & Walter Co. is rapidly nearing completion. September should see this progressive house in the front rank, as to space facilities and convenience, in America.

The New York Florists' Club's opening session September 8 will be convention night. Many interesting addresses will be given.

Business is splendid this year at Newport. All the New York branches are busy. The Kervan Co. has been making large daily shipments there.

Cattleya gigas, Percivaliana, Harrisoniæ and Gaskelliana; Lælia elegans, Dendrobium formosum, Oncidium varicosum, Vanda cærulea, phalænopsis, etc., are the listed varieties James McManus says he will handle this season.

These are busy days at S. Jacobs & Sons' big factory in Brooklyn. This has been the banner year of this fast growing enterprise. Early building additions are a necessity.

F. G. Sealey, with the Julius Roehrs Co., was married June 25 to Miss Olga Sebeth, of Millbrook, N. Y.

David Clark's Sons are redecorating their immense store at 2139 Broadway.

No. 1497 Attica

"Antique as Attica, Artistic as Athens"

MODERN craftsmen are reproducing the lines and proportions of ancient masterpieces formed from native products. This particularly applies to willow and reed as used in the art of basketry. The growing use of baskets in floral decorations and the approach of the indoor social season make it imperative that your stock be replenished and new features added. A perusal of our catalogue will show an abundance of designs both practical and artistic.

Our Motto—Promptness and Quality

Business has been ahead of other summers all season, they say, and the outlook for a brilliant fall and winter is encouraging.

Fred Vogel, of Thos. Young's force, and Miss Anna Green were also among the summer's matrimonial acquisitions.

Otto Verilhac, a retail florist of Arlington, N. J., died last week. He leaves a widow and fourteen children.

John Donato, formerly with Young & Nugent, is now with Woodrow & Marketos.

M. A. Bowe reports a satisfactory summer. Funeral work has been exceptionally large. Mr. Bowe sent two men to Pittsburgh, August 15, with many large designs for the funeral of President Locke, of the Philadelphia Baseball Club.

P. B. Rigby, New York manager of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., and his wife are vacationing at the Maine resorts.

W. A. Manda has been doing things again over in Europe. He won twenty prizes at the great exhibition at Ghent, Belgium.

Paul Meconi's glass front in his new store is immense. Another week will see the establishment in fine shape.

The Julius Roehrs Co. will be represented by Julius Roehrs, Jr., at the Minneapolis convention. The immense plant of this firm, over 100 greenhouses, is

EIGHT PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists — has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

During the last week an extra fine lot of astermums have been coming in, with stems two feet long and flowers four inches in diameter, in exceptionally fine colors. American Beauties have been fair, and in quantities sufficient to go around. Funeral work, of course, is the principal business, but the custom of sending flowers for birthdays and to sick persons is steadily increasing. Planting in all the large places is about completed. Damage by the storm has been repaired.

Club Meeting and Crab Feast.

Members of the Florists' Club of Washington, the officers of the Minute Men of America, who are soon to depart for Germany as a special color guard of the German-American veterans who will take part in the German military maneuvers, and others were guests of Edward S. Schmid last week at his annual crab feast, which this year was held in the conservatory at the rear of the store of F. H. Kramer, at 916 F street, northwest.

The conservatory was gaily decorated with flags, bunting, potted plants, cut flowers and Japanese lanterns. The regular monthly business meeting of the club was cut short, that the time might be given over to the entertainment features. William F. Gude acted as toastmaster. Mr. Schmid and Mr. Kramer, who acted jointly as hosts, were among those called upon to respond to toasts. Colonel Robert L. Montague was the orator of the evening and kept his audience entertained with some amusing stories. Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., had something to say about the convention and proposed a toast to the memory of the late William R. Smith, "the father of horticulture in America." Several vocal selections were rendered by Milton J. Filius, and Walter Elliot led the singing of popular airs by the entire assemblage.

The feature of the evening was an entertainment provided by members of the Queens of Paris company, playing at the Gayety theater, who arrived at the feast shortly after eleven o'clock and entertained the company so well that it was with regret that an adjournment was taken after midnight.

Among those present were: W. E. McKissick, Otto Bauer, David G. Grillbortzer, John Robertson, Robert MacLennan, C. Albert Schopfer, W. A. Furmage, G. E. Anderson, Harry B. Lewis, George C. Dalglish, John J. Barry, W.

A notable feature of the trade this summer is the inquiry for wedding decorations. Gude Bros. Co. had four unusually fine wedding decorations last week, three in and about Washington, and one at Bramwell, a mining town in West Virginia. This firm has also booked three wedding decorations for the present week, including an elaborate one for the wedding of the youngest daughter of Professor Menefee, proprietor of the Washington College for Girls.

An occasional wedding, with some funeral work, has just about kept everybody from becoming completely dormant. The supply is ahead of the demand and hundreds of fine blooms are daily thrown away.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

W. Atlee Burpee returned to his office this week after his European trip.

The western sweet corn for seed has suffered serious loss of condition in the last fortnight.

It is said that lily of the valley pips from cold storage will be a scarce commodity before the new crop arrives.

L. C. Barrett, of the Spokane Seed Co., at Spokane, Wash., is superintendent of the apiary department at the interstate fair.

Charles H. Vick, of James Vick's Sons, Rochester, is in charge of the floral department of the state fair, to be held at Syracuse September 8 to 13.

The Laughlin Seed Co., San Jose, Cal., has bought out the seed interests of Laughlin Bros. Co., Nappanee, Ind., and has established a branch office at that place.

The vine seed growers in the middle west have been on the anxious seat for some days. There has been rapid deterioration in their crops in the fortnight of extreme heat and drought.

Information in insurance sources is to the effect that the losses on the stock and building of the Lake Shore Seed Co., Dunkirk, N. Y., which burned June 18, aggregated $100,000.

Nothing new is coming from California. The growers have painted things so black that there is nothing further to say and they are not yet ready to admit that prospects are not quite so bad as they have seemed.

It appears that the 1913 crop of hyacinth bulbs will be likely to get through the custom houses before the duty is raised 500 per cent by the new tariff law. The Senate will not, apparently, get to a vote for some weeks yet.

The seed growers are having a bad season. Weather conditions have been unfavorable almost everywhere: too little rain; too much heat. And still there will be seeds enough so that everybody will have some to sell.

It was F. W. Bruggerhof, dean of the craft, who remarked in a crop scare some years ago: "Seed growing has become so big a business, and so widely distributed over the world, that there never again will come a time when there will be no seed for sale; seeds always can be had, somewhere."

Joseph J. Budlong, head of the big onion set growing concern, the L. A. Budlong Co., has been elected president of the Lake View Trust and Savings bank, one of the most successful of the banks outside the business center in Chicago. Mr. Budlong is said to be the largest stockholder.

Word comes from Washington that consideration is being given by the postmaster general of a demand to include books and printed matter in the parcel post at the zone rates. At the time the parcel post law was passed the seed trade was strongly opposed to imposing the zone rates on catalogues and those still of the same mind had better get busy again. VETCH A NEW CROP.

Vetch is grown on practically every type of soil in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia. Nearly all the plantings are small, as most growers have just begun to plant vetch, but on some farms where it has become well established fifty acres or more are planted annually. Vetch is used for hay more than for any other purpose. At Augusta, Ga., where hay made from vetch and oats is well known, it sells on a par with cowpea hay. Liverymen buy it extensively, and it is shipped in considerable quantities to the sawmills and lumber camps of Florida. From one to three tons to the acre are common yields, which, at prices varying from $15 to $20 a ton, make it a profitable crop.

Inasmuch as narrow-leaved vetch seed is difficult to obtain and is not commonly sown, nothing definite as to the quantity of seed required has been determined by the recent investigations of the United States Department of Agriculture. As the seeds are small, twenty-five pounds per acre probably are sufficient. With common vetch

IMPORTANT NOTICE

¶ One of our representatives who has just completed a short journey on our behalf in U. S. A., amongst the Wholesale Seed Trade, informs us that there is a demand for our specialties in HARDY PLANTS on the part of the Nursery and Seed Trade of America.

¶ We need hardly say that we shall be very pleased indeed to receive orders from your good selves for Peonies, Delphiniums and Hardy Border Plants of any kind, Gladioli, etc., as well as for Seeds.

¶ Our real desire is to get into close touch with the TRADE throughout the States. We shall be pleased, therefore, to allow you a trade discount of 33⅓% from the prices quoted in our well known General Catalogue, KELWAY'S MANUAL OF HORTICULTURE, a copy of which work will be mailed on application.

¶ WE HAVE NOT APPOINTED, AND WE HAVE NO INTENTION OF APPOINTING, ANY GENERAL AGENT IN AMERICA OR CANADA, NOR HAVE WE ANY WISH TO PUSH ANY RETAIL PLANT BUSINESS TO THE DISADVANTAGE OF MEMBERS OF THE TRADE, AND CERTAINLY HAVE NO INTENTION OF OPENING ANY RETAIL BRANCH, NOR OF CANVASSING BY TRAVELERS AMONGST PRIVATE PERSONS. We trust, therefore, that we may be considered whenever you are in the market for Seeds, Hardy Plants, Gladioli, etc. Our consignments of Hardy Plants almost invariably arrive in any part of America in good order and give universal satisfaction, as we have had experience in exporting extending over three generations.

¶ As you are probably aware, we are particularly able, and in the finest possible situation, as growers, to deal with your requirements in Seeds, both for Garden and Farm, as our own Farm Lands consist of suitable seed growing land in the excellent climate of Somerset, in the Southwest of England. We have extra special stocks of Root Seeds (Mangels, Swedes, etc.), leading select strains of Vegetable Seeds and choice Flower Seeds, and IT IS AS WHOLESALE GROWERS THAT WE COMMEND OURSELVES ESPECIALLY TO YOUR KINDLY NOTICE.

¶ Our Special Offers of Seeds at lowest prices are at your service on demand, and our complete descriptive Catalogue from which to sell our Hardy Plant, Bulb and other specialties is also at your service for permanent reference on the part of your customers or yourselves.

¶ Kindly reply to the suggestions made in this letter, and let us know if you are at all interested, even in the slightest degree. We are always pleased to hear from our friends across the sea.

¶ Any suggestions you feel disposed to make for our mutual benefit will be most acceptable.

¶ If you are not too busy, perhaps you will write us your ideas by an early mail, and if you feel it would lead to business, we shall also arrange to call upon you later on, at a time most convenient to you as buyers.

¶ Awaiting reply, we are, dear sirs,

Yours very faithfully,

forty-five pounds are used by the best growers. In order to facilitate the harvesting of the hay, it is customary to sow from one-half bushel to a bushel of oats per acre with the common vetch. Thirty pounds of good hairy vetch seed and from one to two bushels of oats per acre are usually sown. Where hairy vetch has been grown previously, twenty to twenty-five pounds of vetch seed and two bushels of oats, handled properly, will give good yields on fertile soils. If vetch is used for soiling, from fifty to eighty per cent more seed should be sown than when planted for hay. If used as a winter cover crop, smaller quantities will give good results. The seed should be tested before planting and the quantity of seed sown per acre regulated accordingly, because of the variability in the germination of vetch seed. This variability is due partly to the unevenness of the ripening of the vetch seed and partly to the fact that some of the seed must necessarily be harvested in an immature state.

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The wholesale markets are still loaded up with stock that is poor in quality. The long dry spell has fairly burned up the outdoor stock. From reports of the wholesalers, extremely little business is going on at present, and low prices are prevailing on all grades of stock. The retailers say that if it were not for funeral work, there would be absolutely nothing some days. They are looking forward to a revival of business when the schools open the first Monday in September.

In looking over the stock at the different wholesale markets, we find a glut in single everblooming tuberoses, which are being offered as low as $1 per hundred, and even cheaper in thousand lots. Gladioli, too, have been coming in too strong for this market during the last week. Asters are coming along better, and some extra good stock was seen last week, but the bulk of it is poor. Roses are plentiful. The hot weather caused the shipments to arrive in poor shape. A fine lot of Easter lilies come in daily. Good stock in carnations is out of the question now. Smilax is still scarce, but all other greens are in plenty.

Various Notes.

Samuel Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., of New York, spent part of last week with the trade here. Mr. Seligman arranged to meet the St. Louis florists at Quincy and to travel with them to the convention city.

Wm. R. Karlstrom, of W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., received a letter while here, from Mr. Manda, informing him that the firm had received twenty prizes in the show held at Ghent, Belgium.

Otto Lang, of the Lang Floral & Nursery Co., Dallas, Tex., passed through here on his way to Minneapolis. Mr. Lang reports that they are building a range of new glass costing $30,000.

President-elect Pilcher and Vice-President-elect Jaenicke are formulating plans for the fall and winter meetings of the Florists' Club, and with them in harness some highly interesting meetings may be looked for.

At Angermueller's, while the boss is away attending the S. A. F. convention, the place is being overhauled and re-

Ayres' Winter-flowering Sweet Pea Seeds

"America's Perfection Strain"

THEY ASSURE A CROP FROM THANKSGIVING DAY ON

That we have attained Perfection in the following varieties of Sweet Peas is best shown from the fact that so many of the florists in America and Europe are our customers.

WILLIAM L. ROCK PERFECTION SPENCER—One of our most highly prized and beautiful originations although it is not yet fully fixed. The ground color is pure white with a very distinct margin of rose-pink. The stems are long and carry from three to four fine flowers. Oz., $2.00.

Ayres' American Beauty Perfection. A Winner. You know what an American Beauty shade will do for your bank account during the winter months. This is truly a gem, and everyone raves over it. Oz., 50c; ¼ lb., $1.50; lb., $5.00.

Bloomhurst Orchid Mixture. While this mixture contains Spencer Winter bloomers, we wish our customers to know that there will no doubt be the Grandiflora and Unwin type among them, due to the fact that many Spencers sport back. However, the colors are all very beautiful, and they are immense in size. We do not feel that it is yet time for the Spencers to supersede the beautiful Grandifloras and Unwin Winter-Flowering varieties from the fact that the latter are much superior as shippers, keepers and trueness to color. 1 oz., $1.50; ¼ lb., $5.00.

Ayres' Christmas Pink Perfection. One of the earliest and most profitable Sweet Peas. 1 oz., 15c; ¼ lb., 50c; lb., $1.50.

Ayres' Christmas White Perfection. The same clear pure white as the Perfection carnation. Blooms along with its companion Christmas Pink; very prolific. 1 oz., 15c; ¼ lb., 50c; lb., $1.50.

Ayres' Christmas Blue Perfection. In a great many cases we have known this beautiful violet shade to away oversell Sweet Violets. You should not fail to include this in your order. 1 oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.50.

Ayres' Thanksgiving White, Watchung or Snowbird. The earliest white under cultivation. An extraordinarily prolific variety. Being black seeded it is easier started than any other white. 1 oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

Ayres' Angelino Perfection. Self pink. 1 oz., 35c; ¼ lb., $1.00; lb., $3.00.

Ayres' Mrs. Alex. Wallace Perfection. Fine lavender, one of our best commercial varieties. Oz., 30c; ¼ lb., $1.00; lb., $2.50.

Wallacea Perfection. A very large lavender, similar to Mrs. Alex. Wallace, except much larger. 1 oz., 40c; ¼ lb., $1.50; lb., $4.50.

Mrs. E. Wilde Perfection. Excellent dark pink or Am. Beauty shade. Oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

Mrs. F. J. Dolansky Perfection. Beautiful day-break or shell pink. Oz., 35c; ¼ lb., $1.00; lb., $3.00.

Mrs. J. F. Hannan Perfection. Carmine. Oz., 30c; ¼ lb., $1.00; lb., $2.50.

Mrs. C. H. Totty Perfection. Sky blue. Oz., 30c; ¼ lb., $1.00; lb., $2.25.

Christmas Meteor Perfection. A good red. Oz., 30c; ¼ lb., $1.00; lb., $2.50.

Ayres' Mrs. Wm. Sim Perfection. Salmon pink. This is without doubt the most valuable of the commercial varieties, owing to its unusually long stems and beautiful coloring. No florist should be without this. Oz., 30c; ¼ lb., $1.00; lb., $2.25.

Florence Denzer Perfection. An old standby; pure white. Oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.00.

Pink Beauty Perfection. A very large open flower, rose-pink. Oz., 50c; ¼ lb., $1.50; lb., $4.50.

Le Marquis Perfection. Navy blue. Oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.50.

Canary Perfection. A good yellow and a prolific bloomer. Oz., 30c; ¼ lb., $1.00; lb., $2.50.

Zvolanek's Pink. Good flower, soft pink. Oz., 50c; ¼ lb., $1.75.

Governor Fort. Large salmon pink. Oz., 50c; ¼ lb., $1.75.

painted. A lot of improvements are being made for handling the stock and trade the coming season.

Joe Hauser, of Webster Groves, is consigning a fine lot of Astermums to the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., which are having a good demand.

The Kirkwood florists say that the dry season killed their violet plants, and that there will be a great shortage in these this fall and winter.

The Ladies' Home Circle met at the home of Mrs. O. G. Koenig, on Florissant avenue, August 13, and spent a most pleasant afternoon. Those present were Mesdames Weber, Sr.; Weber, Jr.; Beneke, Steidle, Schray, Meyer, Windler, J. Koenig and Miller. The next meeting of the circle will be at the home of Mrs. J. Steidle, at Olivette, Mo.

The young mum plants at the establishments of Schray, Held, Beyer, Windler and Fillmore, on the south side, are in splendid shape.

Dave Geddes reports that he will open a florists' department in the big Vandervoort department store, at Tenth and Olive streets, for the company. The opening will be September 15. All fixtures are being built by the St. Louis Bank Fixture Co. The big refrigerator, built by the same company to match the fixtures, is ready to be installed. Mr. Geddes says that this department will be kept high-class and on a large scale.

Those bound for the convention got away safely on Thursday morning, August 14, on the steamer Quincy, which left at 10 a. m. with the following on board: Miss T. Meinhardt, J. J. Windler, F. W. Windler and Mrs. Windler, their mother; F. X. Gorly and wife, F. C. Weber and wife, C. A. Kuehn, wife and daughter; F. W. Bruenig and wife, W. C. Smith and wife, J. F. Ammann and wife, E. W. Guy and wife, George Angermueller and wife, Edwin Denker and O. G. Koenig. Those going by rail were: W. C. Young, A. Jablonsky, F. Meinhardt, C. C. Sanders and F. Robinson.

The announcement that a local florist had been appointed superintendent of the coming fall flower show, given by the Coliseum management, caused the Florists' Club committee of twenty-five to hold a special meeting at the Coliseum building, Tuesday night, August 12. The meeting was called to inform the management of the Coliseum that unless they lived up to their promise to the members that no florist should have a hand in the managing of the affairs of the show, they would withdraw their financial and moral support. It is now up to the board of directors of the Coliseum to accept or reject their aid. The committee awaits its answer. J. J. B.

Sweet Peas of C. W. Curtis, Irondequoit, N. Y.
Raised from Boddington's Quality Seed.

BODDINGTON'S "QUALITY" CHRISTMAS-FLOWERING

Sweet Peas

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once.

Mr. Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great Winter Sweet Pea Specialist, sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stocks of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliness of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions, grown for seed, from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3000 lbs. No kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality, germination and trueness to type.

GREENWICH, CONN.

The third annual outing of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held at Rye Beach, Rye, N. Y., August 12. The games, which started at 10 a. m., provided excellent enjoyment both for those contesting and for the onlookers.

At 2 p. m. a halt was called to repair to the Beach hotel, where T. Edwards had provided an excellent shore dinner, well knowing that the exertions of the morning, coupled with the bracing sea air, had whetted the appetites of all. About 135 sat down to dinner and, after all had done full justice to the good things provided, President Robert Williamson spoke of the pleasures he derived from presiding over such a notable gathering, of the splendid work the society was doing, and also the honor accorded the society by the presence of so many representatives of the trade. Short speeches were also delivered by J. Manda, William McTaggart, S. Burnett and other members of the trade.

On continuing the games, keen rivalry existed between the counties in the baseball and football matches, Westchester coming out victorious in each event.

The following were the prize-winners:

Shot put—W. J. Seeley, first; J. B. Roy, second.
Hundred-yard dash—W. J. Seeley, first; B. Berg, second.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Business remains quiet, but there is every prospect of its immediate improvement. The weather continues warm in the afternoons, but chilly in the mornings and through the night. As a consequence, stock of all kinds is getting better in quality daily and is also becoming more plentiful. This does not refer to sweet peas or gladioli, as these are past their prime. Princess of Wales violets have made their appearance, but are short-stemmed and small-flowered and do not keep well. It will be two months at least until they will fill all requirements. Most of the growers have finished replanting their houses with carnations and roses, and these flowers are coming into town in better shape than they have for some weeks. Chrysanthemums are being held at rather stiff prices, but they are gradually showing a downward tendency. Japanese lilies have not sold as well as as they should for the last week; there is apparently a slight overproduction, due to the warm weather of two weeks ago. Orchids are between two seasons and are quite scarce. Valley is plentiful and moves well. Amaryllis is cheap and good. Other lines of stock are about as usual.

Various Notes.

The present week will see the ending of the greenhouses of John H. Sievers, on Van Ness avenue. Since the death of Mr. Sievers, several years ago, the business has gradually been wound up, until at the present time there is practically nothing left but the houses. With the demolition of these, this well known firm, for over forty years in San Francisco, will have entirely disappeared.

P. Orr and Fred. Jaeger, of the Fairmount Floral Co., are both on the sick list. Mr. Orr has been at the German hospital for several weeks, but is now convalescent, while Mr. Jaeger is able to be around with a pair of crutches.

The Art Floral Co. has improved the chance offered by the summer quietness to entirely renovate the Powell street store. It is now one of the most artistic as well as one of the most conveniently fitted stores in town.

Arthur Zirkman, representing the M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia, is in town.

Charges against the administration of A. J. Cook, state horticultural commissioner, made by a number of county horticultural commissioners, fruit growers and nurserymen in various parts of the state, were the subject of a formal all-day hearing August 14. This took place before Governor Johnson, at Sacramento, and the outcome will be watched with considerable interest by many interested importers and jobbers in the plant trade.

Bids for the furnishing and fabricating of the structural steel and iron work of the Palace of Horticulture have been called for by the buildings and grounds committee of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and these are to be received at 11:30 a. m. on Thursday, September 4.

Leo Diederichs, for several years foreman in the greenhouses of the E. Gill Nursery Co., at Oakland, is on a trip to his former home in Chicago. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business remains the same as previously reported. There is little demand for any stock. The supply is large in quantity and variety. Rubrum lilies and gladioli are having a heavy cut and make a good appearance in the stores. The new crop of roses is gradually increasing in quantity, but is short-stemmed and of poor quality. Sweet peas have about run their course. Salable stock is hard to secure. Asters are improving in quality and becoming more plentiful.

Various Notes.

Arthur Zirkman, of the M. Rice Co., called on the trade last week with an extensive line of ribbons and baskets. He reports business satisfactory.

A. M. Le Grand, of Milwaukee, Ore., sold his greenhouses and five acres for $15,000. This is considered a good price, as the purchaser will remove the houses.

George W. Erickson, of Astoria, was in town last week, arranging for shipments of plants and supplies.

W. L. Crissey, of Baraboo, Ore., invited the florists to inspect his gladiolus farm August 10. Many made the trip and reported an enjoyable time.

M. Schmoekee, of Nasoma, Ore., has added one house to his present place, which will be planted with carnations.

H. J. Bigger, of Oregon City, had two semi-iron houses constructed by the Thompson Greenhouse Co., 24x100 feet each, a much needed improvement to his increasing business.

F. J. Fredler, formerly of Elgin, Ill., has taken charge of the mum section of the Martin & Forbes Co.

Herbert & Fleishauer, of McMinnville, find the supply of water from their new well insufficient; so they will sink a nine-foot well to a depth of approximately 150 feet, in order to irrigate their present field of asters.

E. R. C.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Business continues dull, and with the unusually hot weather, flowers keep poorly. Carnations have been selling fairly well, and the supply some days is not up to the demand. Gladioli are now here in all their glory and are selling moderately well, but, as is usual with most outside flowers here, the price regulated by the supply is poor. Sweet peas of good quality are scarce and bring better prices than they did a few weeks ago. Asters are on sale, some Oregon stock arriving in fine shape. Funeral work has been the salvation of lots of florists lately.

Various Notes.

The Woodlawn Seed & Floral Co. is making fine displays in its window of late, water lilies generally forming the foreground of the arrangement. Of these they have a constant supply, and they certainly are attractive. This company has been busy all through July and so far in August, and considering its capital location, this is no matter for surprise.

John Holze, of the Queen City Floral Co., started on his eastern trip two weeks ago. He was planning to take in New York, Philadelphia, Washington and a few other cities before returning by way of Minneapolis and the convention.

Charles Muench is getting his store fitted out elaborately. There will be a grand opening soon. The building in which the new store is located is one of the finest in the city and is attracting high-class tenants.

Harry Risdon now has complete charge of the Risdon plant at Brighton. He has the houses all planted to carnations and chrysanthemums, with a few bouvardias, poinsettias, etc., for variety. Cucumbers were a profitable crop at this place this year, and it is his intention to do still better with them next year.

Andrew Matthieson is sporting around the boulevards in a motor car these days. It looks as though we would all be in the cucumber business soon.

Fred Gust, of the Rosery, and Gus Peterson, of the Hollywood Gardens, have been on their vacations lately. With our remarkably sultry weather, it was a good time to be away from the store.

Joseph Stuber and Ralph Richardson started on their eastern visit August 15. Thomas Wylie went August 12.

T. W.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Stock has piled up to some extent, but there has not been much wasted except in the poorer grades of outdoor flowers. A few chrysanthemums have appeared and asters are greatly improved, the latter hindering to some extent the sale of gladioli for funeral flowers. Carnations are a little better than they were, and a new one, called White Fair Maid, is showing up well from outdoors. Inside roses are scarce, but are of good quality for the season. Orchids and valley are scarce owing to a big demand, but this is only temporary. Greens of all kinds are plentiful and good. There is more small pot stock than usual.

Various Notes.

Fine kentias and especially good America gladioli have been the principal features at the store of Howard & Smith, at Ninth and Olive streets. The store is well adapted for this bold style of decoration, as there is ample height and breadth to show the fine contour of large plants.

The Freeman-Lewis Co. had a magnificent pall of valley and orchids for a recent funeral. Two hundred cattleyas and 2,000 valley were used, while the workmanship was in C. Lewis' best style. Mr. Lewis sang with great success at a Long Beach concert August 9, showing his talents are not all devoted to floral art.

S. Murata left for his vacation August 11, Mr. Newman having returned from his automobile trip to the north. The latter reports a splendid time all through and has returned looking well and sunburnt.

The H. N. Gage Co. is busy building and replanting bulbs at the Montebello ranch.

his mountain trip looking fit, and says he had a record time for enjoyment.

Fred Sperry left for a short vacation August 11, Charles Morton having returned that day. Mr. Morton says he had a good time notwithstanding the doctors' attendance.

H. Turner, of Montebello, and C. Morton were at the Santa Monica road race, August 9. Mr. Turner picked up Walter Armacost at Sawtelle on the way down. All report an excellent time.

Polder & Groen are growing the new Astermum. As seen here, it is quite a pretty plant, as well as fine for cutting. The flowers are large and graceful, clear in color and last well. Doubtless it will be much more grown as a cut flower.

Gus Swenson has a magnificent lot of chrysanthemums out at Eagle Rock; his Appletons and Bonnaffons look especially well.

Joseph Craig, of Chicago, was a visitor here this week.

William and Arthur Grosser, at the Ferndale Nursery, on Central avenue, have their new rose and fern houses looking well and report trade good for the season.

Fine stocks of cyclamens, Gloire de Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias, ferns and other plants are coming along nicely at the Superior Nursery. Every corner is filled with good stock, and a great deal of propagating is going on, so that the houses will be kept filled. Poinsettias here look well and healthy.

Tony Tassano is back again from San Francisco, having left his brother in charge there. They have also opened a new store in Oakland, at 387 Eleventh street.

Mr. Freeman, of the Freeman-Lewis Co., left April 14 for deer shooting at Clear Valley.

Frank Lichtenberg has his store in good shape now. His new lights are fine. The lamps give a nice soft light, being hidden in bowl-like vases, which hang by means of chains from the ceiling. The location here is excellent, and Mr. Lichtenberg said he is delighted with the success so far.

At J. W. Wolters' store on Hill street, a window filled with the beautiful red Eucalyptus ficifolia was a great attraction. The water liles here are also fine.

H. T. Clinkaberry, formerly with the Roebling orchid collection, at Trenton, N. J., and since then of Chicago, now has charge of the orchids at the Doheny place here. Mr. Clinkaberry will also have charge of the new palm house when finished. His advent in California is a good omen, for we want men of his caliber out here. Mr. Clinkaberry has long been well known, both in this country and in England, as an orchid grower, and those who are acquainted with his famous hybrid, Cypripedium Leeanum Clinkaberryanum, will be glad to hear that he is now in a position where he will soon be able to use his abilities along this line again.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

FLETCHER BOHLENDER, of the Spring Hill Nurseries, at Tippecanoe City, O., is in the east at a nurserymen's convention.

THE death of John K. Hoskin, who formerly conducted a nursery at Reading, Pa., is reported in this week's obituary column.

ONE middle-western nurseryman who this season imported 100,000 evergreens has lost two-thirds of them as the result of no rain from June 24 to August 16.

W. K. TIPTON, of the Little Rock Nursery Co., at Little Rock, Ark., will spend several weeks in the northwest after attending the Minneapolis convention. He will study the park systems of the cities in that region.

AT the summer meeting of the Michigan State Horticultural Society, at Lawton, Mich., August 14, Robert A. Smythe, of Benton Harbor, gave a discussion of the fruit package marking law, which went into effect the following day.

THE nurseries in the heat and drought afflicted area in the middle west report young stock as having made, in many cases, less than half the normal growth, with the prospect that, if there is a wet autumn, proper ripening will not be secured.

WM. A. PETERSON, Chicago, has been devoting the month to visiting the nurseries in the middle west, returning to Winona Lake, Ind., for the week ends. Mrs. Peterson is a leader of the Bethany Girls, who have a cottage for sixty at the lake.

THE New Haven Nurseries, New Haven, Mo., is the property of J. Bagby & Son Co. A wholesale and retail business is done. The business was established in 1872 and incorporated in 1892. The officers of the corporation are: President, Julian Bagby; secretary, John L. Bagby; treasurer, R. J. Bagby.

THE Florida Nursery & Trading Co., with Alex. McRae as manager, conducts what is known as the Piney Woods Nursery, near Florala, in southern Alabama, close to the Florida border line. About 160 acres of the nursery have been planted with Satsuma orange and pecan trees.

LITTOOY ON PRODUCTION.

In his address before the Idaho State Nursery Association on "Orchard Planting Not Overdone," Secretary J. F. Littooy stated that east of the mountains probably not more than twenty-five per cent of the total number of trees planted were ever commercially profitable. Under irrigation the productiveness increased, raising the number that were profitable to perhaps fifty per cent. In his estimation, there will be less commercial planting for the next year or two, but within five years the production and distribution will be so well in hand that increased planting will prove profitable. According to Mr. Littooy, the growing, grading and packing will all ultimately be under the supervision of the central sale association.

THE QUESTION OF QUARANTINE.

"I doubt not that some of you will honestly object to quarantining a locality," said A. J. Cook, the California commissioner of horticulture, before the Northwest Inspectors' Association recently. "I know it may injure a nurseryman who may be wholly innocent. The purple scale is one of our most destructive insect pests. The young, as they come from eggs beneath the parent scale, are extremely minute. The best inspector would generally fail to detect them. They spread by crawling on the feet of birds or onto insects and being carried to other trees, perhaps rods away. Thus the trees of a nursery in the region of purple scale infestation may carry these minute larvæ, too small for detection, to an orchard and county which before was free of the insect. Were I purchasing citrus trees, I would not on any account purchase trees in a nursery in close apposition to trees infested with purple, red or black scales. I hold that I should be as cautious in safeguarding the interests of others as I would those of my own.

"The next question is also one which is likely to brook opposition. Are we warranted in rejecting an entire shipment when on inspection possibly only a single specimen is discovered? In the case of melanose on the citrus and of peach-borers, I positively know that a small infection or a just-hatched peach-borer it is impossible to detect with certainty. In this case must we not reject an entire shipment, if we find a single case of infestation? This is the rule we have adopted."

WORKING OUT THE PROBLEMS.

"In connection with the general nurserymen's problems, the question arises as to just what is the best method of working out these problems," said Prof. H. S. Jackson, of the Oregon Agricultural College, in his paper on "Nurserymen's Problems in Fungous and Bacterial Diseases," before the A. A. N., at Portland. "On account of the fact that the time of our experiment station workers is entirely taken up with the producers' problems, it is difficult for them to arrange to make special investigations of the nurserymen's problems. It would seem, therefore, that it would be most desirable for the nurserymen to take up the matter of investigating these problems themselves. This work, however, should, if possible, be carried on in coöperation with agricultural colleges and experiment stations.

"One of the best methods of working out the problems of a special industry, such as the nurserymen's, is that adopted by the Cornell, N. Y., experiment station. The plant pathology department of that institution has arranged for the establishment of what they term investigatorships, or industrial fellowships. Several of these investigatorships have already been established, and some of them have been in successful operation several years. One of these has been in coöperation with various nursery companies for the investigation of the method of control of the fire blight, which is a serious nurserymen's problem in New York state. Under the terms of this investigatorship, the association or company wishing the work done provides funds for the hiring of one or more assistants whose duty it shall be to investigate thoroughly the problems in question. The work is under the close supervision of those in charge of the department of plant pathology at the experiment station, who outline the work and give advice and direction, as needed. The final results are published, and thus become available to all concerned.

"Under this method the nurserymen of any particular state could coöperate in raising a fund for the investigation of problems which might be peculiar to the conditions of that state. This same method could also be applied to the investigation of nursery problems other than those relating to plant diseases."

ROOT GALL NOT DANGEROUS.

According to the report of E. A. Smith, chairman of the committee on root or crown gall, at the Portland convention of the A. A. N., the investigations which have been carried on during the last year would indicate that root, or crown gall, is not so dangerous as some state inspectors believe. In spite of the fact that consignments of stock have been burned and heavy losses inflicted upon the nurserymen because some inspectors have detected traces of crown gall, the investigations seem to show that its effect is trifling, if any, other than causing trees to bear early.

The Maryland sub-committee, J. G. Harrison & Sons, stated: "Our own plantings and experience the last year confirm the belief, more than ever, that root gall is less dangerous than it has been considered in the past. Some people want a tree that will mature fruit at an early age. I am inclined to think that root gall is not severe on a tree, as it has a tendency to have it come into bearing at an earlier stage."

A. E. Robinson, the Massachusetts sub-committee, reported: "So far as we can see, there is no perceptible difference in the growth made by trees infected with crown gall, previously planted by us, and trees not infected at this time. I have made another planting this season, which is to be under the direct observation of our state nursery inspectors.''

In New Zealand the question is being discussed as strongly as here, but the agricultural department seems to have been caught in some unfortunate blunders. The following clippings from the New Zealand Herald, which were presented by Mr. Smith, show the situation there, and perhaps it is not far from that in this country:

''The agricultural department declared root knot an infectious disease in New Zealand, but fixed upon perfectly natural excrescences on apple tree roots as the disease in question. An examination of the roots was made, and it was proved that they were not affected with root knot. Some of the worst samples were taken to one of the greatest authorities, who, after carefully examining the roots under a microscope, declared there was no disease present. The department had taken perfectly natural root forming material for the disease known as root knot. Seeking to get further information, another expert was sought, who confirmed this opinion.''

''The action of the agricultural department in New Zealand has caused a loss of from $100,000 to $150,000 to the nurserymen alone.''

planted by us, and trees not infected at this time. I have made another planting this season, which is to be under the direct observation of our state nursery inspectors."

In New Zealand the question is being discussed as strongly as here, but the agricultural department seems to have been caught in some unfortunate blunders. The following clippings from the New Zealand Herald, which were presented by Mr. Smith, show the situation there, and perhaps it is not far from that in this country:

"The agricultural department declared root knot an infectious disease in New Zealand, but fixed upon perfectly natural excrescences on apple tree roots as the disease in question. An examination of the roots was made, and it was proved that they were not affected with root knot. Some of the worst samples were taken to one of the greatest authorities, who, after carefully examining the roots under a microscope, declared there was no disease present. The department had taken perfectly natural root forming material for the disease known as root knot. Seeking to get further information, another expert was sought, who confirmed this opinion."

"The action of the agricultural department in New Zealand has caused a loss of from $100,000 to $150,000 to the nurserymen alone."

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Up to the time of writing, the month has proved one of the slowest summer months this market has had in many years. Plenty of good stock is to be had, but there is little demand for it. As a result, the prices are extremely low. This same state of affairs, generally speaking, has existed since the first of the month, except that as the month progressed the call for stock seemed to decrease more and more.

Asters are of better quality and are arriving in larger quantities than at any time heretofore. The first of the large branching asters have made their appearance and have, up to this time, sold nicely. Plenty of stock in the full range of colors is to be had. The gladiolus market is still crowded. Only the blooms of real quality sell at all readily; a good many must be jobbed to move them; the poor stock finds no market. The rose market, too, is overcrowded. Almost all the growers shipping into this market seem to be in crop. The receipts include some fine Maryland, Kaiserin, Taft and Killarney. The request for these flowers, however, is so limited that the best of them are hardly cleaned up. The amount of short stock is large. There are again plenty of Easter lilies, but the demand for them is not particularly active. Other offerings include auratums, pond lilies, hardy hydrangeas and Golden Glow. The green goods supply is sufficient, with the exception of smilax.

Various Notes.

C. L. Baum, of Knoxville, Tenn., spent Sunday in this city and Newport, Ky., on his way to the convention.

C. E. Critchell received during the last week large shipments of artificial flowers and supplies, which place his stock on hand in its normal condition again.

E. G. Gillett, who has been sojourning in Traverse City with his wife and daughter, writes that he will be home on Saturday, August 23, after a short visit in Grand Rapids, Detroit and Toledo.

Frank Volz is making an extended vacation trip through the east.

The Best That The Future Has To Offer

IT IS our custom to handle only varieties we believe to be worthy of a place in the best commercial establishments. The new Roses we have offered in past seasons have made a reputation for themselves and the character of stock we have sent out has made an enviable reputation for our firm. ¶ We offer Killarney Brilliant in the belief that it is the coming standard of perfection. We have arranged with the originators for eyes for grafting purposes. We can supply any quantity you may require.

Killarney Brilliant

A sport from Killarney, grown in the open ground in England. Killarney was introduced in 1898, and since then there have been so many sports that Killarney has developed into a type rather than a variety. Messrs. Alexander Dickson & Sons, the original introducers, are to be congratulated, sixteen years after the advent of Killarney, in giving us now this distinct novelty which is undoubtedly the best of all varieties of this type.

Killarney Brilliant has the same habit of growth and the same freedom of bloom as its parent, while the flower is twice as large, having 25 to 40 full-sized petals. It will be as useful for Summer blooming as for Winter forcing. The color is a very brilliant pink and varies like Killarney; in bright weather it is almost crimson, and in dull weather, when Killarney is so pale, it is as bright as Killarney at its best. The sale of Killarney Brilliant a year before its introduction has been larger than that of any other Rose ever sent out in this country.

Grafted Plants, 75c each; $7.50 per dozen; $35 00 per 100; $300.00 per 1000.

New Carnation Gloria

(H. W. Field and A. N. Pierson, Inc.)

In offering this new Carnation to the trade, we offer what we believe to be a paying commercial variety; strong in growth, making a quantity of flowering shoots rather than wonderful length of individual stems. In color, the brightest pink we have ever seen in a carnation, and a color that will sell, which, combined with good calyx, fair-sized bloom and great production, makes this an attractive proposition to a man who knows Carnations.

Rooted Cuttings for December, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

Enchantress Supreme

As the best of the Enchantress family it needs no description. An improvement in color, in form of flower on a race of Carnations that have stood the test of time. We have a large stock.

Rooted Cuttings for December and later, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

A WINNING VASE

NELROSE

is, we believe, the best commercial Antirrhinum yet offered. It is of a new and distinct type and is the forerunner of other varieties destined to revolutionize the culture of this popular flower.

ITS RECORD THIS SPRING: Winner of the Silver Cup, offered for the best cut-flower novelty, International Flower Show, New York. First at the Boston Spring Show—also a gratuity. In the markets of Boston and New York it has regularly sold for 50c per dozen more than any other variety handled.

NOT AN ACCIDENT

We believe it is the first Antirrhinum introduced from the United States that has not come from an accidental seedling. Nelrose, and other varieties we may offer in the future, are the results of years of careful work. They are cross-bred and thoroughbreds.

THE PRICES are based on those usually asked for stock of a new carnation: One dozen, $3.00; 50 for $7.00; 100 for $12.00; 1000 for $100.00. 5% off where cash accompanies the order. Deliveries, in rotation, from December 1.

"The Story of Nelrose," a little booklet that tells the story of several years' persistent work, and also gives considerable information concerning different strains of Antirrhinums, hints on culture, diseases, etc. Your copy will be forwarded on receipt of stamp.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society.

The Newport Horticultural Society held an interesting meeting on Tuesday evening, August 12, when several matters of importance were considered, including arrangements for the society's autumn flower show and annual dance, which will be held at the beach; an invitation from the Garden Association to join in an outdoor and tent exhibition next summer, and the presentation of a watch to Daniel J. Coughlin, who has been secretary of the society for several years. Mr. Coughlin, who has been for the last twelve years gardener for E. Rollins Morse, at Villarosa, is to leave Newport next month to take charge of the large estate of H. P. Davison, of New York, at Locust Valley, Long Island.

The committee announced that the society's autumn show would be held in the Convention hall at the beach, September 16 to 18, the annual ball to be held in the dance hall on the night of the closing day of the show. A committee of arrangements for the exhibition was named, including James Boyd, James Robertson, Daniel Hay, William P. Smith, John T. Allan, Carl M. Boughold and John P. Hammond. The committee on the ball consists of John T. Allan, James Robertson, William P. Smith, William McKay, John B. Urquhart, William Gray and Frederick Carter.

The office of secretary, made vacant by Mr. Coughlin's resignation, will be filled by William Gray until the annual election in December.

Various Notes.

Dennis Foley, who has been foreman under Daniel J. Coughlin on the E. Rollins Morse estate, Villarosa, has succeeded Mr. Coughlin as gardener.

Stewart Ritchie is busily engaged in benching his carnations, which are in unusually promising condition.

Henry Mollers, employed by Wadley & Smythe, is slowly recovering from the effects of a fracture of an arm, which he received in a runaway accident, when a horse belonging to the firm bolted and threw Mr. Mollers and two other workmen out. W. H. M.

AUGUST FOR DOLLARS

August is the time of sowing for the biggest results from SILVER PINK SNAPDRAGON from seed. Seed for the accompanying picture was sown August 18. By sowing at once a full crop can be had at Easter, which will continue until July, being heaviest at Memorial Day, when this picture was taken. We have said that there was nothing in sight but blossoms and dollars, and it is a fact. Silver Pink from seed is easy to grow and anyone can do as well by following directions. Whether you grow Snapdragons from seed or cuttings, they should be timed to flower with as little pinching as possible. Plants produced ahead of time and held back by pinching lose vitality and often throw blind shoots. By sowing seed now and pinching once you will have fine, stocky plants, ready for the bench in November. Our free cultural directions cover all of the necessary points for success with Silver Pink from seed.

You will note how successful many of our patrons have been. Gude Bros., Washington, D. C., with their six acres of glass and the highest class trade in the country, say it is the best they have seen. C. L. Howe, Dover, N. H., with his acres of glass and chain of stores, says it is fine and that he never had so many snapdragon blossoms. Mr. J. Geo. Jurgens, for Arthur Cockcroft, Northport, N. Y. who does an immense wholesale business, says it is the only one to grow, and that Silver Pink will GO IT ALONE with them this year. Many more strong letters could be given but further proof is not necessary. These are wide-awake florists who do business for profit. What is profitable and good for the big growers is as good or better for the smaller grower with retail trade, where a steady supply of blossoms is required. You can cut and cut from a bed of seedling Silver Pink and each cut will make more blossoms. But sow seed at once for best results.

Price of seed, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 pkts., $2.50; 7 pkts., $5.00, by mail. Cash, please. Plants sold out until October.

Quite a few shrewd florists are buying the larger amount of seed and will market their surplus plants.

The Market.

This month's business in general is entirely the opposite of last month, and the florists and their employees have ample time to take a much needed vacation. Single tuberoses, asters and roses are the principal outdoor cut flowers at present, and the supply easily covers the demand. Although we have had a few weeks of really hot weather during the summer, heavy thunderstorms have cooled off the atmosphere frequently and kept the outdoor plants growing well. Nearly all of the immense lot of chrysanthemums growing here, indoors and outdoors, are now in a healthy, strong condition, and the outlook for the coming crop is optimistic.

Various Notes.

Harry Papworth, president of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., has left for the convention at Minneapolis and other places of interest.

C. W. Eichling is attending the railroad gardeners' convention at Nashville, Tenn., after which he will spend a few weeks in the mountains.

On account of the long distance, few from this city are in attendance at the S. A. F. convention at Minneapolis.

Champaign, Ill.—J. E. Yeats is planning the erection of a house for palms and orchids, 25x30 feet.

Natchez, Miss.—Chris Maier & Bro. have added two houses, 20x50 feet, to their range. All of the houses are now planted to carnations, which are doing well. The firm is laying plans to do a bedding plant trade in the near future.

St. Paul, Minn.—The park board has selected the site for the proposed $57,000 greenhouse. Superintendent Nussbaumer says the house must be ready by the middle of September in order to save $15,000 worth of plants, as the old greenhouses are in a state of collapse.

The Market.

Business was brisk during the Knights Templar week. A considerable number of table decorations were called for, and many palms and cut flowers were used at the different commandery headquarters. Asters and gladioli are in midseason. Sweet peas are scarce and of poor quality. Good roses and carnations are at a premium. There is an abundance of outdoor stock, but no market for it.

Various Notes.

Charles Benson has moved to his own range of glass on South Grant street, as his lease has expired on James Davis' place on Lowell boulevard. James Davis is again in the harness and will grow mixed stock for the market.

Ben Boldt has remodeled his greenhouses and has added an auto truck for delivering.

George H. Cooper has been away on a well earned vacation, but was back at his store for the conclave rush.

There were several visiting florists among the Knights Templar, but the writer was unable to obtain their names. The florists of Denver were represented during the conclave by Sir Knights Ben Boldt and Carl Gross. Several nice window displays were made for the conclave by the Park Floral Co., the Alpha Floral Co. and the Boldt-Lundy Flower Shop. L.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

The plant of the Reeser Floral Co., at Urbana, O., consisting of fourteen houses covered by about 30,000 square feet of glass, and including approximately ten acres of land, has been taken over by the Good & Reese Co., of this city, for a consideration understood to have been about $12,000. The Reeser Co. originally did a retail catalogue mail-order business, but for several years its crops have been sold at wholesale, largely to Springfield florists.

The brothers, John M. and Frank E. Good, who put through the deal, cannot be interviewed at this writing, being on their annual outing at Grand Lake, Mich. It is reported, however, that the product of the place will be taken by the Good & Reese Co., but that a separate corporation will be formed and that Roger H. Murphey and William H. Reeser, both residents of Urbana, will be associated in the management of the growing. Ge Dale.

ROBERT CRAIG CO., 49TH & MARKET STS., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

BRANCH: NORWOOD, PA.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Market conditions are unchanged. Gladioli, asters and short roses are plentiful. Giganteum lilies are fine and find ready sale for funeral work. Valley is plentiful. Green goods are equal to all demands. Field-grown carnations are scarce in this locality and, with the dry, warm weather, are not making much growth. Several firms are completing their plantings this week.

Ohio Gladiolus Show.

The first exhibition of the Ohio Gladiolus Society was held Friday, August 15, and continued over Saturday. The double store room at 5709 Euclid avenue, in which the show was held, was completely filled with spikes of gladioli of every color and hue. Three hundred and fifty vases containing over 6,000 spikes and comprising about 150 to 175 varieties, exhibited by nineteen growers, is the story of the show in a nutshell. The quality of the displays has never been surpassed by any gladiolus show the writer has seen. The Ohio Gladiolus Society is coming back to Cleveland next year with, they say, the finest show ever made.

Exhibits were made by the following firms: H. J. Alford Co., Garrettsville; Werner Bros., Painesville; M. Crawford Co., Cuyahoga Falls; Bidwell & Fobes, Kinsman; Munsell & Harvey, Ashtabula; C. Betscher, Canal Dover; R. E. Huntington, Painesville; Joe Coleman, Lexington; N. L. Crawford, Grafton; A. H. Austin Co., Wayland; Perkins-King Co., West Mentor; W. A. Christy, Warren; J. H. Thomann, Rochester, N. Y.; O. H. Ketcham, South Haven, Mich.; C. W. Brown, Ashland, Mass.; Mapleshade Gladioli Farm, Warren; K. R. Taylor, Cleveland; F. W. Griffin, Cleveland.

Among a number of splendid new varieties shown, the most promising were the following: Mrs. Watt, a deep wine color, shown by M. Crawford Co.; Europa, a white that is white, shown by R. E. Huntington and Joe Coleman; Kelway, pink, shown by R. E. Huntington; Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Jr., a delicate pink with deep red blotches, shown by A. H. Austin Co. and N. L. Crawford; Mongolian, yellow, shown by C. W. Brown; La Luna, an enlargement of the Baby Blushing Bride, shown by R. E. Huntington.

Joe Coleman made a fine display of standard sorts and also of a number of Kunderd varieties, the most notable of which were Myrtle, a delicate shell pink, and Chicago White. The H. A. Austin Co. had two of Burbank's new varieties, Pinnacle and Opaline. The florets of these were enormous. W. A. Christy exhibited a fine salmon seedling, unnamed.

The list of awards is as follows:

READY NOW.

We do a very large business each season on carnation cuttings and field-grown plants because we never ship out stock we would not be willing to plant on our own benches. The field-grown plants are ready. This is not surplus stock, left after selecting the stock for our own use, but is stock grown especially for sale to the trade. If we did not know it was good stock, strong, stocky, well branched, and free from disease, we should not offer it for sale. Last year's customers will be back—and this is an invitation to those who have not yet bought here to order of us this year. Immediate shipment.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

RAISING THE FLOW PIPES.

I wish you would advise me regarding a change which I expect to make in my heating system. I have five greenhouses, each 18x40. These are heated with 4-inch cast-iron pipes, all under the benches. I wish to change to an overhead flow pipe. What size of pipe should I use to feed three 4-inch returns, in this Kansas climate? There are two sets of these returns in each house. What is the best way to arrange these flow pipes? Carnations and general bedding stock are grown. W. P. R.

A 2½-inch overhead flow pipe will be sufficiently large to supply three 4-inch returns. Except perhaps in the coldest weather, a temperature sufficient for carnations can be obtained in a house 18x40 feet by using two 2½-inch overhead flow pipes and four 4-inch returns. It will therefore be worth while to place a valve upon one of the returns in each coil.

It will probably answer if one of the flow pipes is carried upon each of the wall plates, although unless the returns are above the level of the boiler a better circulation can be secured if they are placed about two feet below the ridge. Run them with a slight fall, and connect the expansion tank at the highest point.

THE FUEL MARKET.

"The coal operators, for almost a month now, have shown a disposition to discount the coming and promised car shortage and coal shortage," says the Black Diamond, "not only by pushing the sale of coal in summer but lately by an advance in prices. The retail dealers, however, are not buying any large amount of coal at the advanced figures, and from reports coming from the various markets this week it seems that there is genuine and widespread rebellion against some of the prices that have been asked so far.

"Last year New England had a pretty bad scare with the coal situation and does not care to duplicate it this year. As a consequence New England is buying coal now and putting it away. But New England doesn't care to pay in summer premium prices on coal merely to get it to avoid a possible shortage, so while New England is putting some coal down, it does not do so unless the price is right.

"Chicago shows no disposition whatever to pay fancy prices on anything but smokeless coal, but Chicago must have smokeless coal. The belief in the coming shortage of smokeless coal still is strong. Retail dealers want that coal because they must have it to satisfy certain specific demands. The oper-

The conservatories of the President of the United States are located opposite the Washington monument, Washington, D. C. Over 30 greenhouses are devoted to the growing of cut flowers, orchids and decorative stock.

A No. 11 KROESCHELL BOILER was installed in 1900 for the high temperature houses. The boiler made a wonderful record for economy.

The new iron frame range erected in 1910 is heated by a No. 7 KROESCHELL BOILER.

In 1912 two No. 5 KROESCHELL BOILERS were installed for the new range of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, at Rockville, Md.

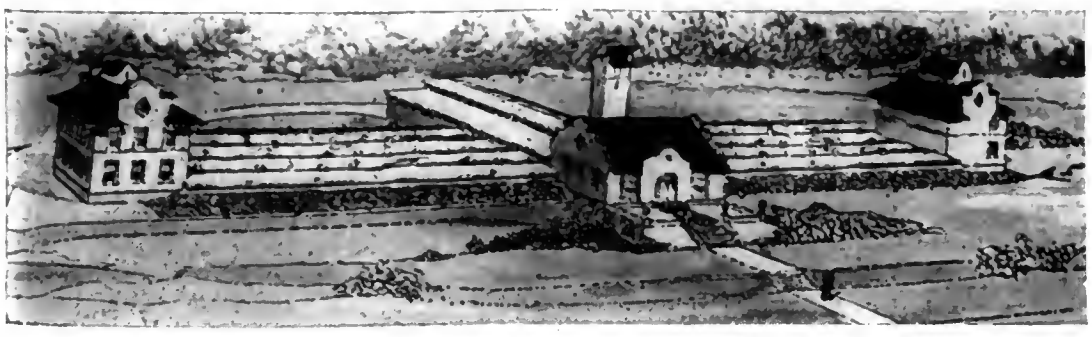
THE WHITE HOUSE CONSERVATORIES, Washington, D. C.



FRANK OECHSLIN'S PLANT RANGE—100,000 sq. ft. of glass—heated by KROESCHELL BOILERS.

Ten years have been sufficient to make the history of the plant trade in Chicago and Frank Oechslin is the man who has in a single decade estabiished this business and built the only exclusive wholesale plant range in the big western city.

The first land (ten lots) was bought in 1902 and the first greenhouses (six small ones) were built the following year—there are now 31 large houses, 600 hot bed sash and ten acres of land in evidence of Mr. Oechslin's skill as a grower.

One of the principles upon which the Oechslin business has been built is to be satisfied with nothing short of the best a greenhouse can be made to produce. To produce the best, only the best in greenhouse material and construction has been employed.

Mr. Oechslin's greenhouses are now the show-place of the city and visitors there are always welcome. Go and see them and when you admire the perfection of the plants and the cleanliness of the place, remember to visit the boiler rooms and note that the name KROESCHELL is found on every one of the boilers.

FALMOUTH MUSHROOM CELLARS, INC., Falmouth, Mass.

We spent $100,000 in building and equipping the largest modern mushroom plant in the world. We purchased in every instance the best of everything we could get, and the fact that we installed a KROESCHELL Boiler to furnish our heat is sufficient evidence of our opinion of same.

Since installing this boiler and operating it we have never had any reason to change our opinion.

ators, having a demand over a wide territory of this same character, are able to maintain circular price and even to get a premium. Thus the mine-run is quoted from $1.50 to $1.60 on the spot market.''

TO IMPROVE THE CIRCULATION.

We have read with interest your answers to other inquiries on heating, and any information you can give us on the following questions will be greatly appreciated, as we feel that our heating system can be greatly improved. We have what is called the uphill system for hot water, with air vents at the end farther from the boiler. These cocks need almost constant attention. We have thought of replacing them with a small pipe running out of the roof to a height above that of the expansion tank. Would this be practical?

You invariably recommend the downhill system to inquirers. Does this kind of system have any advantages over the uphill system? The top of our boiler is almost on a level with the lowest returns. We could lower the boiler about two feet. Would the advantage justify the expense, or is the present plan good enough?

You recommend connecting the expansion tank with the highest point in the system. Our local plumbers say to connect with the lowest point. Which is preferable? What is the rule for calculating the required capacity of the expansion tank? That is, how are we to know whether our tank is large enough?

Are greenhouse boilers rated for hard or soft coal? Is there any difference in the grate surface required for a given amount of heating?

Returns of 1¼-inch pipe, fifty feet long, are giving us much better results than either 1½-inch or 2-inch returns of the same length. Would a return of 1¼-inch pipe 100 to 150 feet long be satisfactory? This is for hot water.

Y. P. C.

The method suggested for avoiding the annoyance of frequently letting out the air in an uphill hot water heating system would correct the difficulty, but might bring about more serious complications. In case the water in the pipe stood above the level of the roof, as would probably be the case, it would be likely to freeze, and thus the escape of

Wright's Employers' Alarm

Wright's Employers' Alarm is a combination of electrical devices operated by clock movement. It is so mechanically constructed that it will sound a continuous alarm within an hour of its last operation, if the night man fails to operate same, as it works with either closed or open circuit.

The Alarm is placed in the employer's or foreman's house (regardless of distance) and is only sounded when the night man fails to perform his duty.

The devices that turn in the alarm may be so adjusted by employer to make it necessary for the night man to operate the Station Box at either shorter or longer intervals than once an hour and thus prevent sounding an alarm.

The night man may operate the Station Boxes as often as he sees fit, but can never go over a longer period of time than that specified by the employer.

The Station Box is operated by adjusting a revolving disk from the outside by the aid of a watchman's key.

Each Station Box may be equipped with a Daily recording sheet, if so desired, upon which a record is made each and every time the watchman adjusts the device, which would automatically (if not adjusted) sound an alarm, then giving you a printed record for future reference.

The mechanism of this Station Box is very simple and of the very best material, and is so mechanically constructed that it is absolutely practical.

It carries a two-year guarantee, but it will last years if given reasonable care. All parts are standard and can be replaced on short notice with little expense.

REASONS WHY YOU NEED THIS ALARM CLOCK

1. It cannot fail to notify you when the night man is not performing his duty.
2. It is so mechanically constructed that it is impossible for the night man to prevent an alarm being turned in if he is not performing his duty.
3. In case of emergency, the night man can reverse disk, thereby sounding continuous alarm instantly.
4. In the event of sickness or injury, the night man being unable to operate the device at the appointed time, the Boxes will automatically sound continuous alarm.
5. The employer may adjust an arm to give the night man a longer or shorter period of time than an hour for making his rounds.
6. This Alarm Box may be adjusted as often as the night man may see fit, but there cannot be a longer interval of time than that predetermined by the employer.
7. If desired, you can place said Alarm Box in a secluded place, so in case of the night man meeting with foul play, an alarm will turn in without burglars' knowledge, thus enabling the employer to arrive on the scene before place could be looted.
8. These Station Boxes may be placed in your Boiler Room, Office, Greenhouses, Mills or any desirable place where it is necessary for your man to be at regular intervals. They are absolutely automatic, and will ring in on any failure of the Night Man.
9. The great Feature of this Alarm System is the fact that you have the Alarm in your house, and it is absolutely Silent as long as your man is performing his duty, thereby letting you sleep. Any failure on his part, it automatically turns in a continuous alarm, awakening you and giving you a chance to find out the trouble before your boilers are ruined or any serious damage has been done to your plant. In case of a steam pipe breaking, your man in making regular rounds will find it before your Entire Stock is Ruined.

the air would be prevented. As reliance might be placed upon the vent pipe, the air might collect until circulation would be impossible, and the temperature in the house might drop until serious loss might result. There have also been instances where the same results occurred from the end of the vent pipe being plugged up by mud wasps. If the end of the pipe, or the water level, is below the glass, there would be less objection to the plan, although mud wasps might be troublesome.

The downhill system has two advantages: First, it makes it possible to connect the expansion tank with the highest point in the system and thus avoid the bother of vent cocks; second, a better circulation can be secured than with an uphill system. The circulation in a hot water heating system depends primarily upon the difference in weight of the water in the flow pipe—that is, between the boiler and the highest part of the system—and that of the water in the return pipes, or from the highest part of the system back to the boiler. The warmer the water in the flow pipes and the colder it is in the returns, the greater will be the difference in weight, and the more rapid the circulation. For this reason the distance between the boiler and the highest point in the system should be as short as possible, for a given elevation, and the flow pipes should be large, while the return pipes should be small. However, it is not well to have the return pipes too small, or too long, as the matter of friction must be taken into account.

The elevation of the highest part of the system also has much to do with the circulation, and it is far more rapid when the flow pipe rises to a point considerably above the boiler than when it is but slightly elevated.

There are three ways of improving the circulation: First, lowering the boiler as suggested, which is to be recommended if the expense will not be too great; second, elevating the flow pipe, or at least the highest point in the system; third, attaching a mercury generator, which will make it possible

Gentlemen:

Surely to yours of the 4th Inst will say that your No 4 Boiler has given entire satisfaction. I consider this boiler a great improvement over the other style boilers in my place, of which I have two. For quick results it has them all beat. I have never been so well satisfied with any change I have made as I have been with the change from the other style boiler to the Superior. Any one wanting to see this boiler can see it working on my place, and will only be too glad to show them to raise the temperature of the water in the flow pipe, thus lessening its weight.

It makes no difference where the expansion tank is connected, except that if attached at the highest point it will do away with the necessity for air valves. The expansion tank should be large enough to supply the water likely to evaporate from the system, as well as for the expansion of the water. The latter is usually about two and one-half per cent in an open system, and from three and one-half to four per cent in one that is closed. In a general way it will answer to use a tank with a capacity of one gallon for each 100 square feet of radiating surface, plus five gallons for an open tank system, and fifty per cent more than this when the system is closed.

The smaller greenhouse boilers are designed for use with hard coal and they are rated accordingly. For use with soft coal the grate surface of such boilers should be increased twenty-five per cent and they should be so arranged that they can be readily cleaned.

Unless the boiler is several feet below the level of the returns, it is not advisable to use pipe as small as 1¼-inch for runs of more than fifty feet, owing to the increased amount of friction in small pipes, except in connection with a closed system.

STEAM OR HOT WATER?

Will you please tell me the number and size of pipes, with the best arrangement of them, for a house 28x120, with roof bars sixteen feet long? There are sixty-four inches of glass in the walls and one end is glass. I want a temperature of 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. What size of boiler would be required for three such houses and which would be the more economical, hot water or steam? In piping for hot water, which way should the feeds slope, up or down, toward the far end of the house? There are no benches in the house, but there are two rows of purlin posts. My location is southwestern Ontario. R. H. E.

Hot water would be preferable for one house, but there would be little choice between steam and hot water if three houses are to be heated. Steam will be considerably less expensive to install, but the cost for fuel will be slightly greater and it will be more trouble to keep up the fire at night. The boiler for the three houses should be of at least thirty horse-power, with a

Some Summer Time Things It's Time to Do

NOW THAT you growers are getting your business methods down to a point where you closely cut the corners on all unnecessary expense, you are appreciating the saving there is in early overhauling your entire heating plant.

This waiting until you want heat before doing anything doesn't agree with the careful way you do other things.

Some inconveniences—like painting—can't be helped. But this getting your heating in shape can be.

If your boiler needs new grates—get them now and put them in.

If some of your pipe hooks have slipped and affected the circulation—give them attention now.

If the circulation in your pipes was sluggish last season, send for one of our expert heating men to go carefully over it and ferret out the trouble.

If you need a new boiler, don't wait until Jack Frost forcibly calls your attention to the necessity. Order it now and make sure of its early delivery and ample time for its erection and connecting up.

Very seldom you are able to accomplish things sooner than you expected. The safe way is to allow more time than you think you need.

The fact that we have been heating greenhouses for going on 64 years, is pretty strong evidence of our ability to heat them the economical way they should be heated.

We shall be looking to hear from you.

Some Boiler Sense

A few flat facts in which we tell why neither cast iron nor wrought iron boilers are the best boilers for all greenhouse purposes

It's an old saying that "A Jack of all trades is master of none." Any boiler that claims to successfully meet all the requirements of all the greenhouse conditions is a Jack-of-all-trades kind of a boiler.

It's no more possible to make such a boiler than it is to brew one kind of medicine to cure all the diseases from mumps to measles.

So let's get right down to facts.

No one, who knows anything about the comparative lasting qualities of iron, questions for a minute that cast iron boilers outlast wrought iron, three to one. Neither do they try to make themselves believe that retubing is "not so bad after all."

Every man who really knows admits that retubing is a nuisance and a big expense. No boiler maker can safely guarantee that his tubes will last a certain number of years. The thing that really decides that, is the kind of water you use and the condition of your cellar.

After you have retubed your boiler you will then know how often it needs to be retubed, and what it costs.

As for setting up a wrought iron boiler; it's an engineering job of no mean proportions.

To secure a wagon strong enough to carry a big wrought iron boiler is a problem in itself. To get it off the cars into your cellar is a very serious matter and an expensive one.

Then there is the masonry work—another thing to be looked after—another expense you must not fail to allow liberally for.

If you contemplate enlarging your range in the next few years, you must buy a much larger wrought iron boiler than you now need, so you will have enough to heat the new houses.

Until you do build, you have a good bit of money tied up in that big boiler; money that is not earning a cent. In fact, it's costing you money. Money lost in interest and money lost in lack of economy; for it's not possible to run a boiler economically that's twice as big as needed for the work it has to do.

Of course you can brick off half the fire box. But right away you spoil the balance between your fire surfaces and the volume of water to be moved, as carefully figured out and allowed for by the boiler maker.

This means, you must do more and harder firing and burn altogether too much coal; or else be content with a sluggish circulation in your coils. There is no way to get around such a condition.

Another thing—wrought iron heats slower than cast iron and soot and scales stick to it more persistently.

Get These Facts:

Now listen to this: Cast iron boilers have their limitations—wrought iron also have theirs. Each is the best for its particular purpose for which it was particularly designed.

For Lord & Burnham to claim that a battery of Burnham Boilers will economically heat a range larger than 30,000 square feet of glass would be decidedly untrue.

But up to this limit there is no single wrought boiler made that has the advantages and the economies of the Burnham Cast Iron Boiler.

This ad. is not a knock at the wrought iron boiler, but simply a fair and square statement of conditions. A placing of each type of boiler in the place where by the very nature of its material and construction it places itself.

Such things are beyond argument, beyond even clever salesmen's talks. They are facts—just plain, common-sense facts.

As for the advantages and economies of Burnham Cast Iron Boilers over other cast iron boilers—that's another story. One we will talk with you about in another week's page.

grate containing twenty square feet of surface, or with a rating of 3,000 square feet of steam radiation or 5,500 to 6,000 square feet for hot water.

For hot water use three 3-inch flow pipes and fifteen 2-inch returns, and for steam one 2½-inch flow pipe and fifteen 1¼-inch returns. In case the steam main or one of the hot water flow pipes cannot be suspended from the ridge, they can be carried on one of the purlin posts, and if hot water is used the other flow pipes can be on the wall plates. Five of the returns can be on each wall and the others on the posts.

A SMALL NOVA SCOTIA HOUSE.

I have a house 12½x25 feet and eight feet high to the ridge, and should like to have you tell me how to pipe it for a temperature of 56 or 58 degrees. How many pipes and of what size will be required, and how should they be arranged? I wish to use one overhead flow, in the center. Will an ordinary tee do to connect the coils with the main return, or should I get a curved tee? I have a curved fitting to branch the flow off to the side coils, but shall have to get the fitting for the return and I want to have it right.

I expect to grow roses in the center of the house. Will it be necessary to run a pipe under the bench in so small a house? I have been told that the roses will not start from the bottom without bottom heat and that they will grow all from the tops. W. C.

To heat a house 12½x25 feet to 58 degrees, run a 2½-inch flow pipe under the ridge, giving it a slight fall, so that the expansion tank can be attached at the highest point. Ten 1½-inch pipes will be required for the returns. These may be partly upon the side walls, but it will be well to place two of them under each of the benches, as they are desirable not only to furnish bottom heat, but to dry out the soil if it becomes wet from drip or overwatering.

The special fittings are helpful, but not necessary. The returns can be connected and carried to the boiler as one 2½-inch pipe or two 2-inch pipes.

SLUGGISH CIRCULATION.

I wish to ask a question in regard to hot water heating. I have two houses, one of them 18x100 and the other 12x50. The flows go directly from the boiler up to the purlins and at that height to the other end of the house; then they drop down to coils under the benches. The coils are made up with return bends, so that the water travels practically 400 feet to get back to the boiler. As the coils are horizontal, it is almost impossible to get a steady fall all the way; hence pockets form and some of the coils are every little while becoming dead. There is one coil on the side wall, and that, having a good fall, heats satisfactorily. But the houses are so arranged that the rest of the coils must go under the benches.

My idea is to take out the return bends and put in manifolds; then I can get a steady fall all the way. The manifolds, of course, would be horizontal. Do you think this would remedy the trouble? I use a mercury circulator. As the small house has only two returns under the benches, the piping is the same in effect as a manifold and works satisfactorily. C. P. H.

The trouble is undoubtedly due largely, and perhaps entirely, to the use of the return bends, and the change proposed will certainly prove helpful and will perhaps remove the difficulty. To get good results, care must be taken that the flow and connecting pipes are of ample size. For a temperature of 60 degrees, if there are two flows they should be 2½-inch, and for a coil of four 1½-inch or 2-inch pipes the connecting pipe should be 2-inch. In addition to the flow pipe, use nine 2-inch or eleven 1½-inch returns, or for 50 degrees six and eight returns, respectively.

The Florists' Club met August 12 for the annual election of officers. Frank Schramm, one of the youngest and most energetic florists of this city, was elected president; Max Spanner was chosen vice-president and George Schramm secretary and treasurer. The outlook of the club for this year is good. Helen F. Patten, Henry Heinl and Will Krueger compose the membership committee, and they hope to be able to interest all the florists of the city in the club's work, and to gain many new members. The new president is one who will leave nothing undone that will increase the helpfulness of the club to all of its members.

Those of this city in attendance at the convention at Minneapolis are Otto Krueger, Henry Heinl, Helen F. Patten and Mrs. E. Suder. The last-named is our pioneer florist and the one to whom is due more credit for the progress the florists' trade has made here than to any other florist of our city.

The Market.

Business for the last week has been quite satisfactory, and the stores in general have been more or less busy. There was a heavy demand the first part of the week, but trade slackened up somewhat towards the end. Cut stock is a little more plentiful now, but the rain, which is needed so badly, holds off, and in a great many places outdoor stock is suffering a great deal. There is a continual cry for asters, but the few that arrive are quite poor, having short stems and small blossoms.

There seems to be an extremely limited supply of all kinds of stock. Carnations, which have been unusually poor, are improving both in color and in size, and every one seems to be needed. Roses are more satisfactory now, but the variety is small. Indiana, which is a good, pleasing rose, would probably sell better if some fragrance were attached to it. Taft roses in all grades are better and sell quickly. My Maryland, Killarney, White Killarney, Bride and Bridesmaid are all good, but the Killarneys seem to have unusually short stems just at this season of the year. Good sweet peas can hardly be obtained, and the few that do reach the market are quickly disposed of. Orchids are extremely scarce. Lilies of the valley are also scarce, but Harrisii lilies are quite plentiful. Wood ferns, Asparagus plumosus, maidenhair and smilax are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Miss Ethel Phillips and Charles Gow were visitors at the horse show at Coburg, Ont., last week. Mr. Gow commences his vacation August 18.

J. Michael Keller, of Mount Hope avenue, leaves August 18 for a trip to Panama. Nine Rochester members of the Damascus temple, of which Mr. Keller is one, will participate in the work of conferring the degree. They will go by rail to New Orleans and thence by boat to Panama; upon returning a stop will be made at Savannah, Ga., and at Atlanta.

Jacob Thomann and his son are planning to visitMinneapolis during the convention week, and will make an exhibit of their new Rochester White gladioli. They hope to dispose of a large number of bulbs, which are of fine quality. Their stock is quite large.

Joseph Werdein made a flying visit to a small town in the southern part of the state August 16 for the week end.

Visitors this week include Mr. Bultman, of E. W. Edwards' florists' department, Syracuse, N. Y.; Harry Balsley, of the Detroit Flower Pot Co., Wallace R. Pierson, of the A. N. Pierson Co., Cromwell, Conn., and Thomas Cogger, of the B. McCarthy Co., Boston, Mass.

The Maurer-Haap Co. had a new store front put in last week. The large business is going on as usual during alterations.

Charles Vick, of James Vick's Sons, is visiting Minneapolis in the interests of the New York state fair. H. J. H.

Gary, Ind.—A. T. Bushong is now sole proprietor of the Gary Floral Co., having recently purchased the interest of John Owens. Mr. Owens, who owns the Boulevard Heights Greenhouses, is preparing to open a florists' shop in the Gary Theater building under the name of the Gary Theater Florists.

The Market.

There has been an abundance of cut flowers, notwithstanding the fact that there has been little rain in this part of New England. Garden flowers, asters and carnations are the best sellers. The demand for roses is small. Carnations are scarce and poor in quality. Gladioli improve day by day and are much more profitable as fall comes on. Asters are coming along in fine shape and are good, considering the drought. Lilies of the valley are small, and, fortunately, there is little demand for them. Orchids sell occasionally for funerals, but that is all. Asparagus and cut ferns are abundant. Sweet peas are on the wane and are therefore quite poor. Centaureas are good sellers just now. Some florists are making up combination bouquets of garden flowers of various colors and kinds and they sell readily for hospitals, sick rooms, verandas and cemeteries.

Private gardeners find it quite a task to keep their lawns in good condition this summer, because of the drought. The high water rates here are also a hindrance to the keeping of fine lawns.

Various Notes.

L. D. Robinson is producing some good gladioli and he has them in large quantities. His asters are mostly late ones.

Osterman & Steele are showing some extra good Lilium auratum in their display window this week.

Robert Schoch, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, was in town for a few hours last week. He was headed for Minneapolis.

N. F. Higgins had an attractive display of fancy baskets, arranged with cut flowers, in his window last week.

Mark Aitken has closed his sale on jardinieres, baskets and glassware, and has moved into his fine new store, at 484 Main street. The new store is most attractively finished in white enamel throughout, and has large display windows and two skylights, which make it practically a daylight store.

Mrs. E. C. Armbrust has returned from her home in New Britain, Conn.

The first of the fruit and flower shows under the auspices of the Springfield Horticultural Society, the Hampden County Improvement League and the Springfield Union, were held August 19 and 20, in the Science Museum. There were $40 in awards for the flowers, while ribbons were given to the winners of the fruit prizes. E. C. A.

More Private Gardeners.

I paid a visit recently to the home of L. A. Linen, president of the First National Bank of Scranton, who was the first in our city to take advantage of the beautiful Abington hills. His gardener, Mr. Reeves, though he has not yet had the experience of many of the old-line gardeners, has developed a liking and experience that is quite surprising, and the grounds look as if they had the care of one with years of experience. The winding drives, golf links and tennis court cover a large area.

I also visited C. D. Simpson's grounds, which are in charge of William Challis, who has been at this place since its beginning. I am always sorry on visiting this place to find that the home, after being burned, has not been rebuilt. Mr. Challis, with the aid of several men, is keeping the place up in fine condition. The flower, shrubbery and vegetable gardens are always interesting places in which to spend a few hours. Mr. Challis is an entertaining gentleman to meet and is always interested in everything pertaining to horticulture. He made the trip with me to C. H. Wells' summer home, a short distance from Mr. Simpson's.

There we found C. A. Hampton, who had recently come to Mr. Wells. He shows that he is a man of much experience in garden work in the way he has rebuilt some of the roads and in the setting of plants for summer effect. The grounds were formerly laid out by Mr. Wirtz, whose health failed him and who is now in Florida. Mr. Hampton is probably more widely known to the trade, having occupied a position in Brooklyn with Mr. Stewart. His chrysanthemums are in splendid condition and promise a great crop of flowers. The shrubbery at Mr. Wells' place is interestingly and effectively arranged. The view from Mr. Wells' place is principally to the north and west, in which the famous Elk hills lie off at a distance of about sixteen miles. The cup-shaped country within this view is such that it would make a magnificent lake. The arrangement of shrubbery, flowers, drives and homes around Abington is beautiful; yet without the magnificent natural views these places would lose something of their charm. G. R. C.

CYPRESS BY TEST. SUBSTITUTES BY TALK.

Is there value to you in an endurance test of 45 years in greenhouse sash? It is reported to us that sash made of heart Cypress by a prominent greenhouse contractor in Chicago and placed in position in a greenhouse at Des Plaines, Ill., in 1868, are still doing service.

Jacob Fries, Bethlehem, Pa., has Cypress sash that have stood the racket for 30 years and are still on the job. And these are not isolated cases—they represent no more than a fair test of "The Wood Eternal" for greenhouse use.

It will serve you as well and save you the nuisance and expense of repairs and replacements.

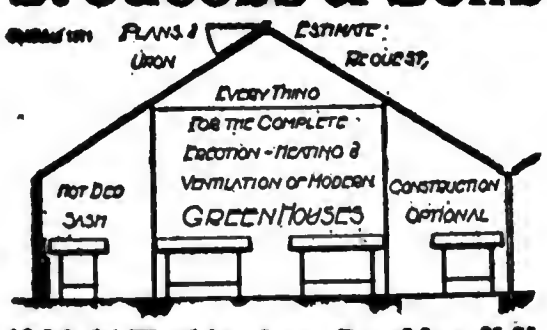
The argument backed by such facts cannot be answered by mere talk. Ask the manufacturer or contractor who wants to give you a "substitute" for Cypress to cite you to an endurance test of 30 or 45 years to the credit of the so-called "substitute."

That is no more than a fair precaution on your part—good ordinary business sense.

If he would meet the Cypress record with more talk, and no test, then there's a "nigger in that wood-pile." You know you would better pass up the "substitute" and stick to the real article, which is Cypress.

"PECKY" CYPRESS. You greenhouse men know how common it looks and how uncommon it lasts. The U. S. Govt. Rept. (Forest Service Bul. 95) says—"That the disease (which produces the 'peck') has been a long time preying upon Cypress timber is apparent from an examination of Cypress logs dug from alluvial deposits many feet below the present level of the Gulf of Mexico. Some of that prehistoric timber is pecky, though it has been buried during a period estimated at no less than 30,000 years. . . . The effect of the disease (known as 'Pecky') . . . . is believed to act as a preservative . . . and to hinder decay."

Is 30,000 years' "hindering of decay" long enough for YOUR greenhouse?



There is no known record of rotten "Pecky." Use nothing else for benches and bench standards. It is cheap, too.

A postal will do, a letter is better—either brings a booklet or two from the famous CYPRESS Pocket Library (a strictly authoritative reference work.) VOL. 3 is all about "GREENHOUSES." It is FREE. Send for it. Also ask for VOL. 2, on "Pecky"—a money-saver. Take no hearsay. GET THE FACTS. Then ACT. VOL. 4 is the Barn Book; VOL. 36 is the Carpentry Book; VOL. 20 is "All Farm Needs Book." All contain plans for building and are profusely illustrated.

Greenhouse and Outdoor Systems

Skinner System Saved Burpee's Sweet Pea Crop

Mr. Earl, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., told the National Sweet Pea Society that the Skinner System of Irrigation saved his crop of Sweet Peas and declared that no other system in use could be compared with it. "I am so well pleased with the Skinner System," wrote Mr. Burpee in a later letter, "that I think it ought to be heralded broadly." With the Skinner System (either indoors or outdoors) you can cover as much area as ten men with a hose—and do it better. You simply turn on the water and go about your work. Then in twenty minutes you return and with the Skinner Patented Turning Device turn the water to the other side. The Skinner System cannot bruise the tenderest, most delicate plants and foliage or cake the ground, because it distributes the water in a mist form that falls gently, like dew.

Pays for Itself—Then Earns Dividends

The Skinner System pays for itself and yields steady profits by making you absolutely independent of weather conditions; by enabling you to bring flowers and vegetables to an early and full maturity; by saving your time, and by saving the wages of men that old methods of irrigation require.

Spending $15 Saves $30,000 to sit up for the first time February 15.

Tuesday night, February 11, about 1:30 a. m., Ben L. Elliott, proprietor of the John Bader Co., was awakened by the ringing of the alarm connected with the thermostat in the greenhouses. On getting out, he found the outdoor temperature down to 16 degrees above zero and the night fireman, who had been a reliable man for years, sound asleep beside the boilers. Mr. Elliott says this is a case where an investment of $15 with the Standard Thermometer Co., for a thermostat, saved him at least $30,000, as undoubtedly his entire place would have been frozen before morning.

It being a sharp night, the temperature in the houses fell to 17 degree. Mr. Ahern's specialties were primulas and marguerites and he has the sympathy of a large body of growers in his misfortune.

THE CONVENTION AFTERMATH

A SMALL MEETING, BUT HIGHLY ENJOYABLE

ALTHOUGH the attendance at the Minneapolis convention was the smallest the S. A. F. has had in a good many years, there never has been a convention that was more thoroughly enjoyed by those fortunate enough to attend. There was as much convention and exhibition as the average person cared for and there were two cities of many attractions and unbounded hospitality to provide every form of amusement that was in demand. The ladies were entertained practically every moment of the time and the hospitalities problem was solved for all future convention cities. Paraphrasing the old saying, "Look out for the pennies and the dollars will look out for themselves," we can say with equal confidence, "Look out for the ladies and the men will look out for themselves" convention week and have a thoroughly good time.

The dispatch with which the business of the society was handled was one of the commendable features, as it gave time for other interests.

Those Artificial Flowers.

The special order of business for the session of Friday morning, the closing day, was the consideration of the following recommendation of the board of directors:

Resolved, That it is the sense of the board of directors that some action be taken by the society whereby exhibits of artificial flowers at our trade exhibitions and flower shows be excluded.

When the subject came up at the Lenten meeting of the board the vote on it was a tie and the president cast the deciding vote in favor of presenting it to the society for consideration. A sharp battle had been expected when it came up on the floor of the convention and a large audience was present, but, much to everybody's surprise, it was laid on the table by an overwhelming vote. The retailers, led by W. F. Gude, opposed any action to eliminate artificial flowers from the trade's display at the convention and expressed the opinion that the managers of national and other shows possessed sufficient authority and discretion to prevent any exhibits of artificial flowers receiving undue prominence.

Affiliation.

Adolph Farenwald's plan that he calls affiliation is to receive a trial. He outlined it in a paper read at the morning session August 21 and printed in full in this issue of The Review. It was referred to the board of directors without much discussion and Mr. Farenwald appeared before the board that afternoon to argue that his plan be given a trial. He talked to such good purpose that the board voted to present the following to the society at the morning session August 22:

It is recommended that the fee for any members of any regularly organized florists' club which wishes to join the Society of American Florists in a body be reduced to $3 for the first year and to $2 for each succeeding year for each member, the dues to be paid to the Society of American Florists by the treasurer of each affiliating club and not by the members individually, and that the constitution and by-laws of the Society of American Florists be amended to conform to this recommendation if adopted.

On the floor of the convention the society promptly adopted the recommendation. It will, of course, require a year's time to make the necessary amendments to the constitution and by-laws.

Mothers' Day.

Mothers' day got into the official records of the S. A. F. when W. F. Gude called attention to the action of the great organization of Moose, with its country-wide membership, in asking each of its members to recognize Mothers' day by wearing a flower on the second Sunday in May. Mr. Gude asked if it would not be well for the society to take some action in the matter. After considerable discussion it was the consensus of opinion that, while the trade certainly welcomes such acts as that of the organization in question, it would be impolitic to recognize them in any way and thereby attract attention to the fact that florists as a body have another interest in the day than the sentimental appeal that is felt by all mankind.

J. J. Hess, of Omaha, brought up the question of uniform commissions in the cases of orders transferred from one florist to another to be filled, but inasmuch as the society always has avoided everything that in any way touched on the fixing of prices, the matter was promptly tabled.

Making the Garden Glad.

A number of the members having asked why no recognition was given the outdoor exhibits in the reports of the judges, a committee consisting of J. R. Fotheringham, E. B. George and Walter Mott was appointed to do what they could under the society's rule that to receive an award the exhibit must be a novelty and be specially entered by the exhibitor. There were few novelties in the outdoor display and none had been entered for award. The committee, therefore, could go no further than to list the exhibits, getting each exhibitor's name and stock into the record. They did, however, go so far as to say of the exhibit of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., that the bed of Meteor was the best bed of cannas on the grounds, mentioning also that this, with Panama, giant salmon, Blanche Wintzer, white, Olympia, crimson, and Beacon, scarlet, constitutes a splendid set of novelties. Of the bed of Lythrum roseum edged with Vinca minor aurea, exhibited by Wm. Tricker, Arlington, N. J., the committee reported that, while past its

"In the opinion of the judges great credit is due Theodore Wirth for the way he has handled the arduous task of getting exhibits together, arranging same artistically and effectively, and for the excellent care shown in the condition of all of the exhibits. The plan of outdoor exhibits so satisfactorily carried out here should be made an annual feature of the convention."

Late Registration.

The following names were put on the register after the list printed last week was made up:

Beaven, E. A., Evergreen, Ala.
Clausen, G. A., Albert Lea, Minn.
Freeburg, J. O., Sioux City, Ia.
Geenen, Wm., Kimberly, Wis.
Gunterberg, M. C., Chicago.

THE OUTING.

The big feature of the outing that closes the S. A. F. convention was not on the program this year. It was a ducking, and what for a moment indicated a tragedy turned out the greatest frolic of the day.

With the picnic held on the shores of Lake Minnetonka, the usual games were supplemented by a number of races on the water and the several piers in front of the dancing pavilion were crowded while these were being run off. Suddenly, without warning, the underpinning along one side of the extreme twenty feet of the south pier dropped out, tipping the planking to the point where everybody at the end of the pier slid off into the water in the sight of fully 300 friends gathered on shore. For a moment there was the wildest confusion, but then it was found that those who had got their bearings had their feet on the bottom and were wading ashore. Others were pulled out onto the pier and into boats. The greatest depth of water was not over five feet, and with the realization that there was no danger the affair turned into a frolic. Of those in the water, many were contestants in the sports, and had on bathing suits, while several of the women were not of the florists' party, but had been drawn to the usually quiet spot by the prospect of amusement. Among the well known persons who went in there were the following:

Poehlmann, A. F., Morton Grove, Ill.
Poehlmann, Miss Virginia, Morton Grove, Ill.
Poehlmann, Adolph, Morton Grove, Ill.
Poehlmann, Miss Vera, Morton Grove, Ill.
Poehlmann, Miss Edna, Morton Grove, Ill.
Poehlmann, John, Chicago.
Michell, Fred J., Jr., Philadelphia.
Roland, Thomas, Nahant, Mass.
Anderson, G. C., Morton Grove, Ill.
Sullivan, Wm., Chicago.

Adolph and John Poehlmann went into shallow water and easily waded ashore, but August Poehlmann and the girls were at the extreme end of the pier. The girls are expert swimmers and looked out for themselves. When August Poehlmann went down he had Mrs. Poehlmann's wrap on his left arm—and it was there when they took him into the pavilion to exchange his wet clothing for a nice dry baseball suit. Several of the ladies were taken to the neighboring summer home of Frank Peterson, of St. Paul, where they were loaned dry clothing in which to return to the city.

The outing was a great success. Eleven chartered cars on the Minnetonka Electric line took the party to Tonka bay, arriving there about 10:30, 500 strong. The first thing on the program was the annual ball game, All Stars against the local team. The result was a victory for the Minneapolis Florists' club, as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	T'l
All Stars	0	0	1	0	0	0	0—1
Minneapolis F. C.	0	0	0	1	0	1	1—2

The teams lined up as follows:

MINNEAPOLIS—		ALL STARS—
Von	ss	Poehlmann	ss
Rovik	1b	Randall	cf
Miller	2b	Burger	2b
Schneiderhun	p	Beuerlein	c
Otto	cf	Graham	1b
Johnson	lf	Zech	3b
Matthews	rf	Jones	cf
Dailey	c	Miller	p
Peterson	3b	Perl	rf

It had been agreed that five innings should be played, but the tied score necessitated a sixth. The home team had the advantage of having played together before and gave Schneiderhun, their pitcher, better support than the other side could do. A. Miller, of Chicago, pitched for the All Stars and with Charles Beuerlein, of Elmhurst, N. Y., for backstop, presented strong defense. The grounds were extremely poor, so that errors were unavoidable. The rooters were busy. The interest far exceeded that taken in the bowling.

Dinner was well served at several long tables set in the grove.

In the afternoon a long program of races kept the boys and girls busy, with an occasional event to tempt the fathers and mothers to renew their youth. At the same time there was dancing in the pavilion and a concert by a military band. The steamer Puritan had been chartered to make hourly trips around the lake.

The sports returned the following prize-winners:

Anderson, Ind.—H. E. Zerby has gone out of the florists' business.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

Action of prime importance to the 1,613 members of the Florists' Hail Association, no less to the owners of the 23,988,651 square feet of double-thick glass insured than to the owners of the 4,999,795 square feet of single-thick glass so protected, was taken at the annual meeting at Minneapolis when the directors were instructed to fix rates annually in future in accordance with the actual cost of insurance for each class averaged for the preceding ten years. It was a radical departure, as in the past a flat rate has been charged, 10 cents per hundred square feet for single-thick and 6 cents per hundred square feet for double-thick. Experience has proved that the rates were not equitable, so the constitution and by-laws were amended in such a way that in future the rates will rise and fall in accordance with the losses on each kind of glass. Based on the average results of the last ten years, the rate next year will be 15 cents per hundred square feet on single-thick and 6 cents per hundred square feet on double-thick.

Another and scarcely less important amendment was one which will be retroactive in the sense that it will apply to losses of the past. It was decided that when a second loss occurs within five years that risk goes at once into the extra hazardous class and for each such loss within five years an additional ten per cent will be added to the rate. A member, then, who has sustained a loss each year for five years will pay fifty per cent more than the rate fixed for those who have not had more than one loss in five years.

The meeting had the usual attendance of active members. The following officers were elected:

President—E. G. Hill. Richmond, Ind., reëlected.

Vice-president—J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.

Treasurer—Joseph Heacock, Wyncote, Pa., reëlected.

Secretary—J. G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J., reëlected.

Directors—A. Rasmussen, New Albany, Ind., and J. C. Vaughan, Chicago, reëlected; Fred Busch, Minneapolis, to take the place made vacant by the death of John T. Temple; C. L. Wash-

best, it shows evidences of considerable merit. The committee continued:

"In the opinion of the judges great credit is due Theodore Wirth for the way he has handled the arduous task of getting exhibits together, arranging same artistically and effectively, and for the excellent care shown in the condition of all of the exhibits. The plan of outdoor exhibits so satisfactorily carried out here should be made an annual feature of the convention."

THE OUTING.

The big feature of the outing that closes the S. A. F. convention was not on the program this year. It was a big one, all right, for a moment me create and gets turned out the greatest crowd of the day.

With the picnic held on the shores of Lake Minnetonka, the usual games were supplemented by a number of races on the water at the several piers in front of the engaging pavilion were crowded while those were being run off. Suddenly, without warning, the undermining along one side of the extreme twenty feet of the south pier dropped out, tipping the planking to the point where everybody at the end of the pier slid off into the water in the sight of fully 500 friends gathered on shore. For a moment there was the wildest confusion, but then it was found that those who had got their bearings had their feet on the bottom and were wading ashore. Others were pulled out onto the pier and into boats. The greatest depth of water was not over five feet, and with the realization that there was no danger the affair turned into a frolic. Of those in the water, many were contestants in the sports, and had on bathing suits, while several of the women were not of the florists' party, but had been drawn to the usually quiet spot by the prospect of amusement. Among the well known persons who went in there were the following:

Poehlmann, A. F., Morton Grove, Ill.
Poehlmann, Miss Virginia, Morton Grove, Ill.
Poehlmann, Adolph, Morton Grove, Ill.
Poehlmann, Miss Vera, Morton Grove, Ill.
Poehlmann, Miss Edna, Morton Grove, Ill.
Poehlmann, John, Chicago.
Michell, Fred J., Jr., Philadelphia.
Roland, Thomas, Nahant, Mass.
Anderson, G. C., Morton Grove, Ill.
Sullivan, Wm., Chicago.

Adolph and John Poehlmann went into shallow water and easily waded ashore, but August Poehlmann and the girls were at the extreme end of the pier. The girls are expert swimmers and looked out for themselves. When August Poehlmann went down he had Mrs. Poehlmann's wrap on his left arm - and it was there when they took him into the pavilion to exchange his wet clothing for a nice dry baseball suit. Several of the ladies were taken to the neighboring summer home of Frank Peterson, of St. Paul, where they were loaned dry clothing in which to return to the city.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

Action of prime importance to the 1,613 members of the Florists' Hail Association, no less to the owners of the 23,988,631 square feet of double-thick glass insured than to the owners of the 1,999,795 square feet of single-thick glass so protected, was taken at the annual meeting at Minneapolis when the directors were instructed to fix rates annually in future in accordance with the actual cost of insurance for each class averaged for the preceding ten years. It was a radical departure, as in the past a flat rate has been charged, 10 cents per hundred square feet for single-thick and 6 cents per hundred square feet for double-thick. Experience has proved that the rates were not equitable, so the constitution and by-laws were amended in such a way that in future the rates will rise and fall in accordance with the losses on each kind of glass. Based on the average results of the last ten years, the rate next year will be 15 cents per hundred square feet on single-thick and 6 cents per hundred square feet on double-thick.

Another and scarcely less important amendment was one which will be retroactive in the sense that it will apply to losses of the past. It was decided that when a second loss occurs within five years that risk goes at once into the extra hazardous class and for each such loss within five years an additional ten per cent will be added to the rate. A member, then, who has sustained a loss each year for five years will pay fifty per cent more than the rate fixed for those who have not had more than one loss in five years.

The meeting had the usual attendance of active members. The following officers were elected:

President E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., reelected.

Vice-president J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.

Treasurer Joseph Heacock, Wyncote, Pa., reelected.

Secretary J. G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J., reelected.

Directors A. Rasmussen, New Albany, Ind., and J. C. Vaughan, Chicago, reelected; Fred Busch, Minneapolis, to take the place made vacant by the death of John T. Temple; C. L. Washburn, Chicago, appointed to fill the vacancy arising from the election of J. F. Ammann as vice-president.

A summary of the reports of the secretary and treasurer covering the operations of the last year was printed in last week's issue of The Review.

LADIES' S. A. F.

[The election of officers and the entertainment features were covered in last week's report.]

The report of the secretary, presented at the annual meeting at Minneapolis, showed 273 members from 1912, with twenty-six added to the roll at Minneapolis, making a total of 299. The treasurer's report showed receipts of $667.01, disbursements of $457.68 and a balance of $209.33.

A national bowling organization was formed, with Miss Matilda Meinhardt as captain, Mrs. Frank Traendly as secretary, and Mrs. George Asmus as treasurer, the dues of $1 per year to be used to buy prizes.

It was voted to establish life memberships, the fee to be $10, the proceeds to be kept in a separate fund and invested.

The retiring president, Mrs. F. H. Traendly, was presented with a bracelet containing a gold watch with locket attached.

The ladies feel that their society was much better represented than was any other, their attendance being sixty-seven, as follows:

The convention closed with a big splash.

Now we shall see how strong a desire there is to affiliate.

It will stand repeating: The outdoor display was the best of the convention.

A. Farenwald was the only Philadelphian present who didn't have something to sell!

The restaurant in the annex saved a lot of time and carfare. The hall is over a mile from the hotel district.

C. E. Schaeffer, of La Crosse, is the season's addition to the list of entertainers. His antics kept the crowd in a roar.

The M. Rice Co. exhibit entire was sold to Miss H. B. Whitted, to whom some refer as the Thorley of Minneapolis.

What effect will the small attendance at Minneapolis have on San Francisco's chances of getting the convention in 1915?

Holm & Olson's establishment in St. Paul attracted many visitors, and they all had something to say of admiration for the facilities and evidences of business to be seen there.

Emil Leuly, a carnation grower of West Hoboken, N. J., bicycled his way across the country to Minneapolis, averaging ninety miles a day.

W. A. Manda came direct from the international show at Ghent, Belgium, to the convention, making a journey of 4,500 miles to be present two days.

Boston has some ambitious plans for next year's convention, looking to a continuation of the outdoor display. There may be a distinctly novel arrangement.

Probably twenty-five parties of convention visitors motored to and from Minneapolis, not to mention Emil Leuly, who biked from New Jersey, 1,500 miles.

Not in any recent year has the gain in S. A. F. membership been so great in proportion to the attendance as it was at Minneapolis. Every fourth man was a new member.

The retail florists who attended the convention said Minneapolis is one town among a thousand; the flower business there is almost as good in the summer as in the winter.

Theodore Wirth is a genius of the kind the philosopher had in mind when he made the remark about the infinite capacity for taking pains. Mr. Wirth does not overlook the smallest detail.

W. L. Rock went to northern Minnesota on a fishing trip after the convention. He likes Minneapolis so well a little encouragement might get him to open a branch store there.

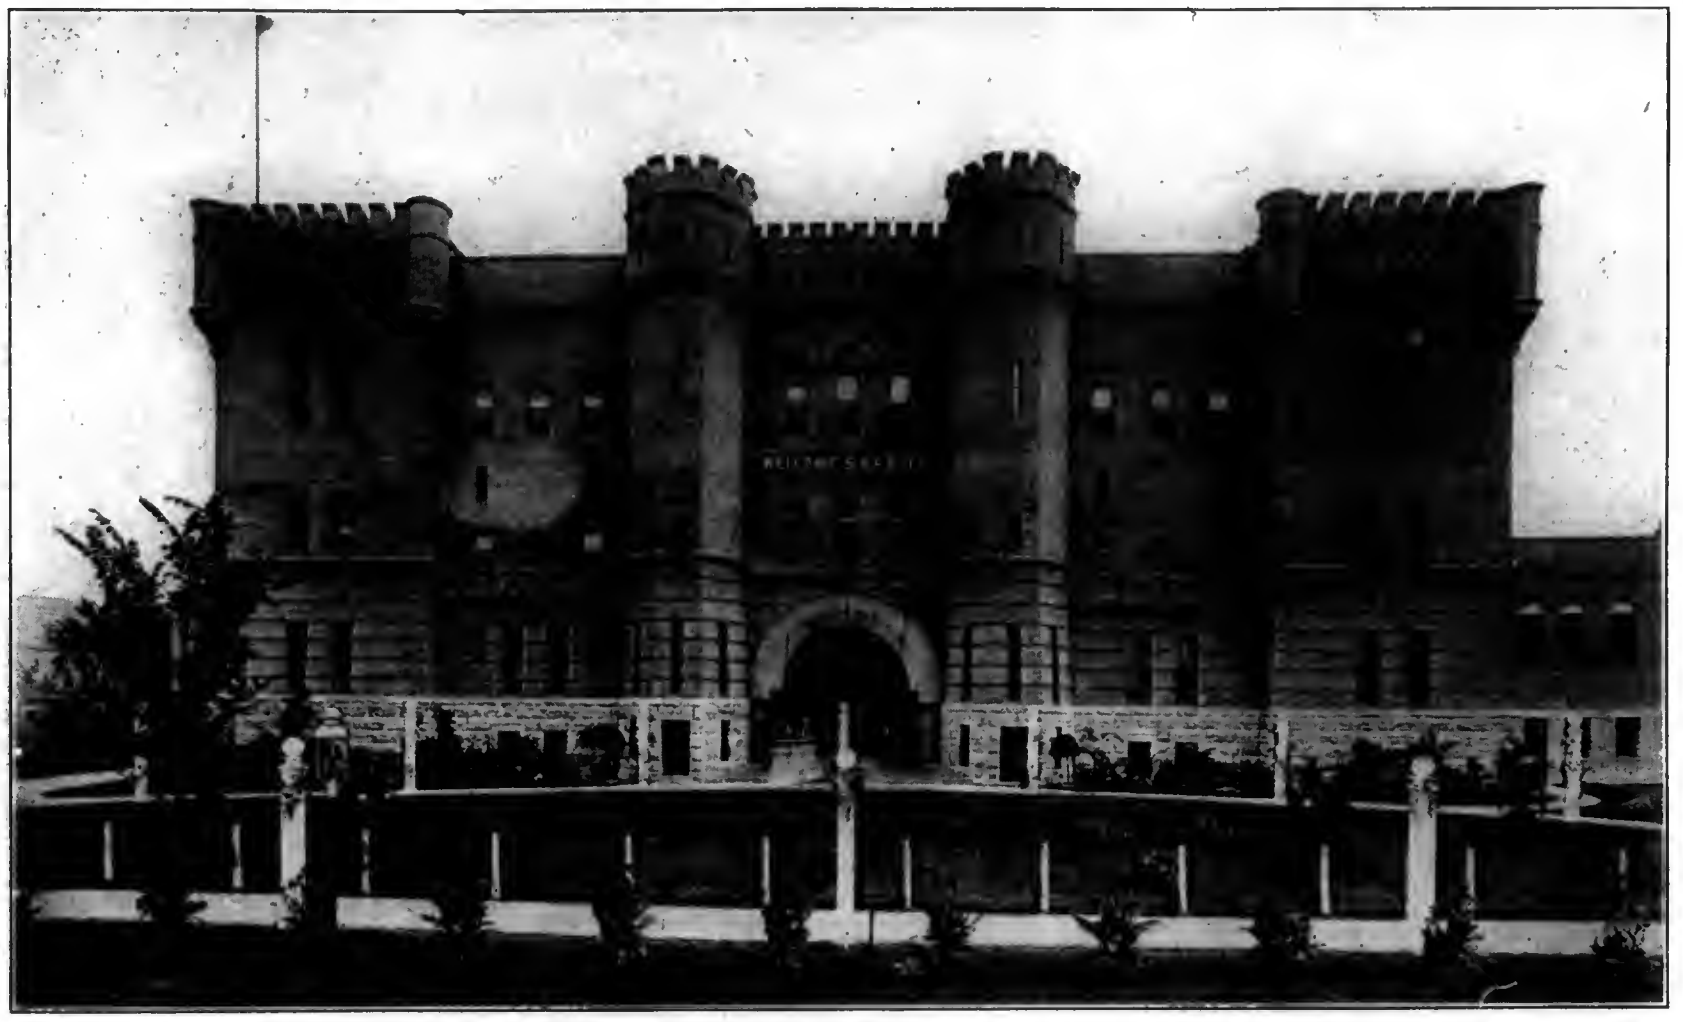
In twenty-five years Harry A. Bunyard has missed only one convention, that at Asheville.

It was noticeable that real novelties were conspicuously few this year. The trade's standards now are so high that a new plant of necessity must possess decided merit to command attention.

James B. Shea, superintendent of parks, Boston, was on his way to Denver, where he is presiding at a meeting of the American Park Superintendents' Association, of which he is president.

Entertaining the ladies rather than the men proved to be a happy hit. The ladies had the time of their lives in Minneapolis and St. Paul, and they all will want to go to the next convention.

The final resolutions, though not many heard them, must have been something out of the ordinary. The committee to draft them, appointed by the president, consisted of W. J. Stewart, Michael Barker and A. T. De La Mare.



No complaint was heard this year from the trade exhibitors because the admission of the public interfered with business. A Philadelphia salesman was seen making his way to the armory one morning with a Phillips novel under his arm.

Wallace Pierson, P. J. Foley, Albert Pochelon and Roman J. Irwin got up at daylight the day of the picnic and had taken forty-eight fish out of Lake Minnetonka before the balance of the crowd arrived there. One of their pickerel weighed six pounds.

The advent of the automobile has added immeasurably to the pleasures of attending conventions. The cars of the local members, and of those who had driven to the convention, always were at the service of those who wanted to make a run to some point of interest.

F. T. D. Pochelon was about the busiest man at the convention. Perhaps no one in the United States is doing more than he to create new business for the trade. Like Colonel Sellers, he believes "there's millions in it"—referring to the telegraph delivery of flowers.

The S. A. F. received official invitation from the Panama-Pacific International Exposition to hold its 1915 convention in San Francisco. Col. Daniel O'Connell Lively, representing J. H. Dennison, chief of the department of agriculture of the exposition, and himself chief of the live stock department, made an address on the last afternoon, telling of the possibilities of the exposition. He told of arrangements being made for the horticultural display and of the capabilities of the climate for floriculture. He also explained the general progress of the exposition, of the arrangements for the Brazilian orchid display, which promises to be the most costly array of flowers ever collected.

Before the close of the convention the Boston delegation had decided that there must be outdoor exhibits next year. It was figured that the park people will help, as they did at Minneapolis, with the garden in the Back Bay fens, close to the Arena and Horticultural hall.

The registration was 408. It included local members and a few of the ladies, but does not represent the total attendance, as many members failed to put their names on the secretary's book, and quite a few non-members were present, as usual, and these do not get on the register.

One of the meetings everybody was interested in was that of the Get Together Club, organized at Minneapolis just before the bowling. There was a celebration at Hotel Andrews that night. Harry Papworth presided and practically the entire Chicago representation was present.

It was explained that the superheated, moisture-laden atmosphere of the first two days was provided so that the visitors might feel at home, and the delightfully cool, bracing weather of the latter part of the week to give an opportunity to appreciate the normal climate of the Twin Cities.

Souvenirs were abundant, but not all of them especially appropriate. Not many offered anything more appropriate than did Hummel & Downing Co., the Milwaukee manufacturers of florists' boxes. Each visitor at the booth was handed a cigar put up in a little folding box that just fitted it.

Arthur Cowee, of Berlin, N. Y., says that he contented himself with taking space for a bed of one variety of gladiolus only, his new white, Peace, in the face of Mr. Wirth's assurance that he would be sorry he did not take space for others. He adds that the minute he walked into the garden he conceded Mr. Wirth was right; he was sorry.

The complimentary concert for the S. A. F. tendered by the park board attracted a big crowd to the pavilion on the shores of Lake Harriet. Nelson and his orchestral band play there nightly. For this occasion a special program had been printed. Each of the eleven numbers bore the name of an officer or director of the S. A. F. in place of the composer, and beneath it was a humorous appreciation of the member. There was much hilarity. "In the Rose Garden" was written by Conductor Nelson specially for this event and dedicated to the S. A. F. The president make a speech of appreciation and presented Director Nelson with a gold-headed cane and a bouquet, after which W. F. Gude gave the retiring official the annual chest of silver.

Henry Emunds, of Belleville, Ill., sent a box of cannas that did not arrive until the convention was well along and which did not, perhaps, receive the attention they deserved. With them be sent a letter as follows: "I sent today to my friend, Mr. L. Dintlemann, at present at the convention, a box of flowers of my new canna. Knowing that cannas are not cut flower varieties, I shall not expect them to arrive there in perfect condition. The only object was to show that they are a real sport, with green leaves and yellow flowers, of King Humbert. There are two stocks in this bunch which will prove that this is true. The first time this new canna was mentioned in The Review was June 15, 1911, in the St. Louis items, when I showed a plant at one of the St. Louis club meetings. Note the flowers and large and glossy leaves. Personally, I will say that it is a stronger grower and brings twice as many shoots to a plant as does King Humbert. The clusters of flowers, as you will see, are also much larger, being evenly spotted and orchid-like. With permission of the Queen of Italy, the canna shall be called Queen Helen."

MAKING LIQUID PUTTY.

We shall be thankful to you if you will inform us at once as to how to make good liquid putty, to be used on old greenhouses. C. A. D. C.

Putty, whether liquid or paste, is made principally of whiting and linseed oil. The addition of about five per cent of white lead increases its durability. To secure a first-class article, enough oil should be mixed with the whiting to make a fairly firm paste, which should then be run through a paint-grinding machine. Sufficient oil should then be added to bring the putty to the desired consistency, which will vary somewhat, according to the form of putty machine used for applying it. Unless one needs a considerable quantity, it will generally be found more satisfactory to buy one of the commercial brands, such as are advertised in The Review, rather than attempt to manufacture it, especially in the liquid form. AFFILIATION: A PLEA FOR UNITY

An address by A. Farenwald, of Roslyn, Pa., delivered before the Society of American Florists at the Minneapolis convention, August 22, 1913.

THE history of affiliation in our national society has not been a successful one. Present and past leaders have tried in vain to amalgamate the scattered interest, but we cannot stand still, we must advance; so when I come before you with an old topic, but on new lines, I ask you to consider it carefully. Don't be hasty in your judgment to condemn. Everyone who is in the profession should try to see his national society strong and able to take care of all our interests. The merging of the membership of the florists' clubs does not touch a special interest. It does not interfere with the workings of a rose society, carnation society or others, but the interests would blend nicely together, as most of the members of these independent societies would then be members of the S. A. F. as well, and if properly handled the merging should prove a boon to the florists' clubs as well as to the S. A. F.

Influence of Florists' Clubs.

March 29 an article by me advocated the merging of the florists' clubs' membership into the fold of our national society. I said then I was surprised that the florists' clubs had not been merged into the S. A. F. long ago, as that seems the easiest and best way of starting affiliation. I think I can say to you without contradiction that the florists' clubs are the direct offspring of the national society, and therefore we owe her something.

The oldest club in the country, the Philadelphia club, was started to entertain the national society. After this was successfully done, the most of the public-spirited and wise got together and thought best to try and keep together those men who had got acquainted by this time, and to form a permanent club on the same lines as the S. A. F., but locally only, and they won out. It was not long before other good and true men in the large cities took up the good work started in Philadelphia. Florists' clubs were started everywhere over the country. Who will estimate the good these florists' clubs have done to our profession? Again I will say, and I think without contradiction from you, that if these florists' clubs had not come to life, our profession would not have attained the high standard it has today. Well and good so far.

Holding the Members.

Now, fellow members, I do not believe that there is one among you who will not agree to this, that there is strength in concentration of effort. Here we are, members of the S. A. F., joined in convention to uplift and advance our profession. Once a year we come together from all over this great country to counsel. The most of us have not seen each other or heard from each other for a year, and in many instances for several years, because often one cannot get away to come a long distance to attend the convention. Years go by, and one loses interest in the doings of our national society. That is only natural. Now, this loss of interest of the individual member is what keeps our national society from growing to dimensions it should long ago have attained. Not that the individual member was not able to attend the convention, but to keep his interest alive is the vital question. If we can do this, he will be with us always in spirit, if not in person. At present he pays his yearly dues, and he receives the proceedings of the convention, and thereby can keep himself posted if he reads it. But how many do? The trade papers bring an account of the whole transaction and the essays as well, but that about ends the direct influence of the S. A. F. for a year with most members. With florists' clubs it is different; they meet once a month to bring their members there to listen, to think and to enjoy. That holds their interest. By merging with these clubs, we can bring the same interest to bear on the affairs of our national society in these monthly meetings. That would keep the interest alive. We could discuss and digest affairs long before we meet in our yearly convention, when we will have a proper understanding of what is wanted of us.

Fluctuations of Interest.

No more striking illustration can I bring before you of what it means to come in contact with the members and hold their interest in our convention, than by showing you the records of the S. A. F. of the last three years, regarding membership fluctuations in the states where the conventions were held, New York, Maryland and Illinois. Illinois had in 1910 seventy registered members; in 1911, the number was seventy-four; in 1912, when the convention was held in Chicago, it jumped to 195. Maryland in 1910 had thirty registered members; in 1911, when the convention was held at Baltimore, the number increased to sixty-nine; in 1912, it fell back to forty-seven. New York's membership stayed around 130 to 170 for several years; in 1910, it jumped to 238 when the convention was held in Rochester. Last year it dropped back to 220, on the downward grade again. These figures prove beyond doubt that we must get closer together and keep in touch throughout the year, so that the interest in our national society will be kept alive. As long as we are not able to hold these fluctuating members, progress, which is essential to usefulness, will be slow and half-hearted. Once the step is taken to unify our much-scattered interest, other societies will soon follow, as the benefits derived from concerted action are so many, and so obvious, that they cannot fail to appeal to societies fighting single-handed for advancement. A great and strong national society will carry a dignity with it which alone is worth a great deal to every member of our profession, and I feel quite sure it will bring about a change in the attitude of those of the up-growing generation in regard to horticulture. They will come to realize that it is a science as high in aim and as broad in scope as any. This will bring about a higher standard of men employed in horticulture, which in time will work great changes for the betterment of all.

Work of W. R. Smith.

I never had the pleasure to get close to our late friend and member, W. R. Smith, of Washington, D. C., so I cannot say for a certainty what was in his mind when for over ten years he tried his best to get the S. A. F. a national charter, a most unusual thing, so I have been informed. I think he was a great dreamer, one of those gifted men who imagine things, and I have no doubt in my mind that, when he tried to get this charter, his vision showed him the great destiny of horticulture, and while a dreamer, he was still practical enough to try to give his beloved profession the cloth of security and dignity it needed. He was successful in his attempt, and we reverence him for his achievement. We are thinking of erecting a suitable memorial for our late friend, W. R. Smith, but, fellow members, what better memorial can we put up for him than to build along the lines he dreamt about, a strong and powerful national society of horticulture, built to promote and take care of its various interests? I feel confident that such must have been his thoughts, and when once these hopes are realized, the gratitude in the hearts of thousands of men in our profession, where there are only hundreds now, for the man who long ago saw and provided, as I have said before, the cloth of security and dignity for it—this gratitude in our hearts toward his memory is the finest memorial we can bestow on him, and I feel sure he does not wish for any better.

Advantages of Affiliation.

Now, fellow members, will you help to bring about the realization of hopes and dreams, not alone of our late friend, but of lots of other members who have spent years of thought and earnest effort to crystallize our long-scattered interest? To stop the ever new splitting-up process into special societies and with it the weakening of the old mother

THE GHENT FLOWER SHOW.

Really International in Scope.

In this, the year of the great International Industrial and Art Exhibition within her gates, Ghent, Belgium, is keeping her horticultural specialties prominently before the public view. A few months ago the quinquennial show was held; August 9 an international show was opened equal to it in extent and importance, and a third show will be held in October. On this occasion there was a grand wealth of well cultivated palms, dracænas, crotons, araucarias, ferns, orchids, begonias, gladioli and many other important lines, most charmingly arranged.

The show was held in the Palais des Fetes, a large, elegant structure, and some of the finest cultures from Belgium, Holland, France, England and America were on view.

The American Representation.

On the international jury J. C. Vaughan and W. A. Manda represented the United States. J. C. Vaughan was accompanied by Mrs. Vaughan, whose health is improved. Judge Vesey was also present, and Mr. Bonnot, of Bonnot Bros., wholesale florists, New York, and his wife were also there.

W. A. Manda was eminently successful in the competitive classes and secured twenty awards. One of the most interesting classes was that for new plants, in which he was placed second. A few of the most striking in the collection were Polypodium Mandaianum, Cibotium Mandaianum, Polypodium Mandaianum superbum, Nephrolepis Alberti aurea and Calceolaria Stewarti. Other awards secured were: Second for eight new plants, first for three new plants, first for six new plants, first for ten nephrolepis, and in ten classes where nephrolepis were called for, either in collections or single specimens, he secured ten premier awards.

England.

The leading English exhibit was a collection of tuberous begonias from Blackmore & Langdon, Bath. This was easily ahead of all collections of begonias and was awarded a gold medal with the felicitations of the jury. G. Lange, Hampton, was in the front rank with carnations and was awarded a gold medal with acclamation. Sutton & Sons, Reading, received a certificate for the new red sunflower, Helianthus lenticularis coronatus x Helianthus annuus, raised by Professor Cockerell, of Boulder University, Colorado, U. S. A.

France.

Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co. were represented by a magnificent collection of gladioli, thousands of spikes, and fine strains of petunias and other annuals. L. Ferard, Paris, and Cayeux & Le Clerc, Paris, enriched the French section with fine exhibits of flowers of good strains.

Holland.

The principal exhibits from Holland were in the gladiolus sections, and the finest came from De Ruyter & Hogewoning, Noordwijk. They had some promising yellow-flowered varieties, named and seedlings. Perle des Jardins, yellow; Glory de Noordwijk, yellow; Loveliness, cream, and Princess Marie Jose, white suffused pink, were all of fine merit, among the hundreds of others shown. P. J. Van der Pol & Co., Boskoop, were awarded a gold medal for roses.

Belgium.

The leading prize for new plants was awarded to Sander & Sons, Bruges and St. Albans. Among the number were Alocasia Michalitzi, Heliconia insignis, Trevesia Sanderi, Polypodium irioides Bartelsi, Alocasia Warteli and Dieffenbachia Sanderæ. In stove and greenhouse plants, the principal prize winners included Soc. Anon. Horticole Gautoise, Ghent; A. Dalliere, Ledeberg; Jules de Cock, Ledeberg; Fr. Spae, Melle, and A. De Smet, Ledeberg. A wonderful and most extensive exhibit from the old established firm of Louis Van Houtte was awarded an Objet d'Art, value 200 francs. It was a garden in itself, with hill and dale and water scene, and the plants represented in it were those raised or introduced into commerce by the firm.

Palms and Ferns.

Forty-seven classes were provided for palms, and palms from baby sizes up to 30-foot specimens were there by the hundred and thousand, as will be readily understood when it is stated that the classes called for twenty-five, twelve, ten, etc., to a class. The finest twenty-five in large specimens were from the Flandria Co., Bruges, and their group of Phœnix Roebelenii, large plants, were simply marvelous. Others who contributed to the excellence of this section, and at the same time scored creditable successes, were: Fr. Spae, Millet-Richard, Jaeger-Baert, Van Acker & Sons, E. Van Coppenolle, J. Buyck, C. Petrick, J. P. Hartmann, De Smet Duvivier and De Smet Freres, all Ghent firms.

Wm. Tricker's Bed of Lythrum Roseum and Vinca Minor Aurea at Minneapolis.

Ferns were an important item also, comprising thirty-six classes. W. A. Manda, De Smet Freres, Arth. De Smet and Bier & Ankersmit were all prominent. Polypodium Mandaianum won as the most meritorious new fern.

Dracænas and Begonias.

The first prize for new dracænas was awarded to Vincke-Dujardin, Bruges, for Dracæna M. G. Vincke, D. deremensis Bausei and D. deremensis Warneeki. Dracæna tricolor, from L. J. Draps-Dorn, Brussels, is a charming, gaily-colored plant, with scarlet, white and green foliage.

Tuberous begonias are a strong export line with Ghent growers, and they were well represented in a series of semicircular beds surrounding a pond of water lilies. Louis Van Houtte and T. Van Speybroek were awarded gold medals. One of the best exhibits of roses came from Aug. Van Heden, Wetteren.

Orchids were exhibited on a huge scale, tier above tier, on a special platform. They formed one of the most unique orchid exhibits ever seen. C. H. Vuylstehe, Jules Hye de Crom, Theo. Pauwels & Co., M. Lambeau, J. de Heuptinne and other leading Belgium growers contributed magnificent gems from their collections. Bee.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Early Snapdragons.

Where a good Christmas crop of snapdragons is wanted, the plants should be benched by the end of August. Use a tolerably rich soil, such as would grow good carnations, and set them twelve inches apart each way. They are sometimes planted 8x8 and 10x10, but if you want to give the plants justice allow them the wider distance. The plants should be in pots or small baskets plunged outdoors, or in pots in a coldframe. They should have been allowed to produce one flower stalk, and this, when headed back, will cause the plants to break freely.

Each plant will produce a few more shoots than should be allowed to flower. Pull off all the weaker ones. This will give you stronger spikes. If, however, you desire quantity rather than quality and can utilize the flowers in design and other work, all can be left. Be careful not to plant too deeply, and, after the initial watering, let the beds dry out well before watering again. On hot, sunny days light sprayings overhead will prevent wilting and prove beneficial. Air the house freely. Of course, no set minimum temperature can be maintained for a while, but in winter 45 to 48 degrees should not be exceeded at night. It will be found that pink is far the best selling color; next to this, white and yellow. The scarlet, crimson and variegated shades have only a limited number of admirers.

Schizanthus.

For an early batch of schizanthus for midwinter flowering, seeds can be sown now. The only variety of a suitable habit for pot culture is S. Wisetonensis. There are a number of so-called improvements of this now on the market. Some have flowers quite a little larger than the type. Sow the seeds in pans or shallow flats. Keep them close to the light in a coldframe or cool greenhouse all the time, to prevent the seedlings from becoming drawn. Later transplant into flats and from these into 3-inch or 3½-inch pots. I have found this much better than potting off directly from the seed pans. Schizanthus requires a rich compost, being a strong feeder. It must be grown cool and airy all the time; anything like a close forcing atmosphere will speedily ruin it. Anyone who saw the many beautiful plants of these at the New York International Show last April must have been impressed with their beauty and their great value as decorative plants.

Biennial Seeds.

If a sufficient stock of double daisies, wallflowers, forget-me-nots, pansies and violas are not yet sown, no time should be lost in getting them in. The seeds will germinate quickly now, if they are kept shaded, but be careful not to shade too heavily during hot, humid weather, or damping off will result. It is not yet too late to make a sowing of hollyhocks, if this has been omitted.

Take advantage of spells of damp, cloudy weather to transplant seedlings of various biennials and perennials before they can become too crowded, and keep the cultivator or hoe constantly at work among such as are already in the field. Weeds grow apace now and some hand-pulling of them will be necessary in addition to cultivating; otherwise many small plants will soon be smothered. The soil can hardly be stirred too frequently to keep plants growing well.

PROPAGATION OF PRIMULAS.

Will old plants of Primula malacoides do to use as stock for the coming season, dividing them and potting small rooted pieces? I have kept them through the summer in an open cellar or pit, where they bloomed along much later than they would have done in the greenhouse. They also thoroughly seeded the surrounding sandy soil in which they were plunged, and now I notice hundreds of little seedlings just starting. Of course I shall pot these seedlings, but what about the old plants? K. W. H.

While it is possible to divide and pot up the old plants of P. malacoides and have them flower tolerably well, you will have much better success if you pot up the little seedlings and grow them on. This primula makes much more rapid growth than such varieties as P. obconica, Sinensis, Forbesi and Kewensis, and most of the failures made are directly due to too early sowing. Your seedlings are just obtainable at a time when they can be grown on into nice 5-inch or 6-inch plants, and with stock started thus late there is far less liability of the foliage damping off than in the case of larger plants. C. W.

FRUIT TREES IN POTS.

Will you kindly give me some information about the growing of pot fruit? I have a few pots of pears, peaches, nectarines, cherries, etc., and also some pot-grown grapes, and I shall be much obliged if you will give me some points on their treatment after they have finished fruiting. Most of them are past their season now and I have placed them outside. Should they be plunged in the ground in the pots and left there until I bring them in, and what time of the year should they be brought in, to get early results? Do they need protection while they are outside, in this Massachusetts climate? Is it necessary to repot them when bringing them inside for forcing, and what temperature do they require? Will knocking the trees set the fruit sufficiently, or is there any other method of setting it? F. L.

With the exception of the grape vines, all the fruits named will do much better if plunged outdoors. The grapes, if you can afford space for them, will ripen their canes harder under glass. If, however, you have no room for them, they also can go outdoors. By far the best way is to plunge them all to the brims. Coal ashes are the best material for this purpose, if you have these in sufficient quantity. If not, plunge in loam, and place a shovelful of ashes at the bottom of each hole to improve the drainage and help to keep out worms.

The proper time to repot is not when you are starting the plants, but in August or early September. The roots are then active in the new compost when you want to house them. Larger pots are not usually necessary. The use of fresh drainage, removing some of the surface soil and loosening up all around the balls a little with a sharp-pointed stick, and then replacing in the same size of pots with new compost, usually suffices. Fibrous loam, with some of Thomson's Vine and Plant Manure, or with some bone and a little lime rubble, makes a good compost. It is better to have the plants moderately dry at the root when repotting them. It will be well to overhaul the grapes not earlier than December; all other sorts, now.

Cherries require a lower temperature than the other fruits, to set them satisfactorily. I have found that 45 degrees at night suits them when in flower. All varieties when housed need a temperature of 40 degrees. This should be gradually raised as growth advances. A temperature of 50 degrees at night will set peaches and nectarines. Give pears, apples, apricots and cherries the cooler end of your house. You can start these fruits any time after Christmas, but I would suggest waiting until the end of January; you will then be more certain of a good set.

Tapping the trees often suffices for a set, but not always. A safe plan is to go over the flowers with a camel's-hair brush, a piece of cotton-wool tied on a stick, or a rabbit's tail, and impregnate them early in the afternoon each day. If you do this you are sure of a heavy set and will have to thin your fruits severely.

It will not be safe to leave any of your plants outdoors over winter. No matter how well mulched, they would get too wet at the root and would suffer great injury. Store them in a shed or cellar which is not too dark. Never mind if the temperature falls 10 to 15 degrees below freezing occasionally, so long as you have plenty of straw or hay about the pots. Also be careful not to let the plants become dry during the winter, or you will lose about all your fruit buds; quite a few growers have found this out to their sorrow. Pot-fruit culture is interesting, is not difficult and seems to be growing in favor.

C. W.

A NOVEL POWER PLANT.

Brains that bring success in the florists' business can be profitably applied to other lines of work; so thought Heinl & Weber, of Terre Haute, Ind., and they went to work to apply them. They found that in building new houses the old-fashioned way of drilling holes in cast-iron gutters was back-breaking work and too hard for ingenious florists. So they set to work to let their heads save their heels, or rather their backs, and got an electric drill. They found, however, that the electric power to run the drill was not at hand and hard to procure. The solution to this was their electric automobile, which was fully charged and run up back of the greenhouses. Upon connecting up the automobile and the drill as shown in the illustration, Messrs. Heinl & Weber found everything running smoothly, and with their unique power plant can now drill 300 holes a day.

ANOTHER PRIZE-WINNING CAR.

Florists are making use of their decorative genius to gain fame as well as profits, and are picking up first prizes right and left for unique and good-looking floral floats. Another winner to be noted is Chas. A. Simonson, of McPherson, Kan., who took first place in the parade July 4, with the car shown in the illustration. This scarcely does it justice, as there was almost a gale blowing when the photograph was taken.

The car was loaned by a local garage in return for the display of its card, which hung from the running-board. The surface was covered with floral sheeting and the trimmings were of natural roses and carnations. Baskets of roses were placed on each running-board and on the hood. Not easily distinguishable in the illustration, the name of the decorator was on each side, made of chenille. Mr. Simonson is shown at the wheel and his wife and daughter in the back seat of the car.

LANCASTER, PA.

The Market.

There has been little change in this market since the last writing. Outdoor flowers of all kinds are everywhere seen. The weather has been so extremely hot the last few weeks that asters and gladioli are the only flowers that can be recommended to give satisfaction. These two, however, are arriving in good shape and in large quantities. The demand for roses is not heavy, and when one gets a rose order he has to go some to get stock that is up to the mark.

Florists' Club Meeting.

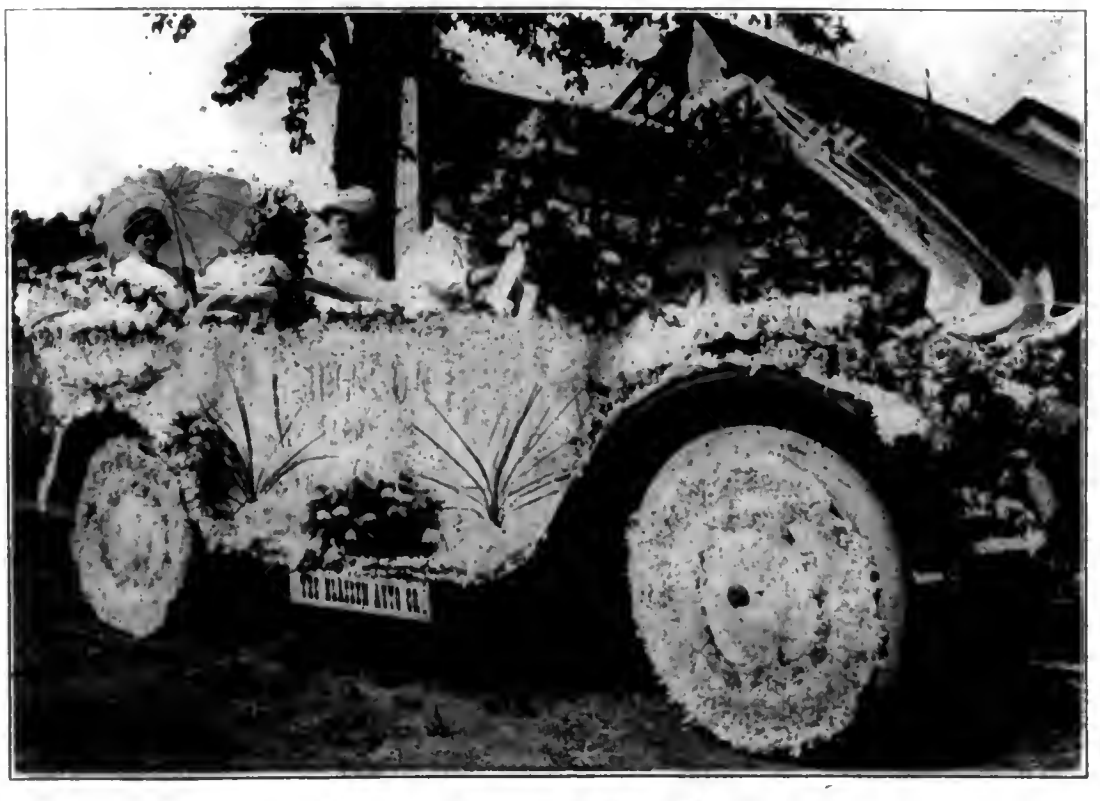
Thursday night, August 21, was aster night at the Lancaster County Florists' Club meeting, held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. The exhibition table was covered with vases of beautiful asters in all their many wonderful shades. Walter R. Denlinger, of Vintage, showed vases of Vick's Early Branching, in white and rose, and Vick's Royal Purple that deserved a medal for culture. B. F. Barr staged vases of Vick's Violet King, Imperial Giant Purity and German rose pink, all high quality blooms. John R. Shreiner, of Greenland, showed a vase of Crego asters which for size and variety of tints were unsurpassed.

An interesting discussion followed, and varieties and general culture were thoroughly discussed. The worst enemy of the aster growers is the black beetle that appears about the time the flowers show color, and in a few days can ruin acres of blooms.

An invitation was received for all the members to attend the field day inspection of Henry F. Michell's flower farm at Andalusia, Pa., north of Philadelphia, August 27. The meeting was attended by some thirty-five members. Edward Reid, of Philadelphia, gave a valuable talk to the florists on the careful grading and packing of cut flowers of all kinds; he stated that a grower should make it a point to have regular days for shipping his stock and in this way the commission man could book orders in advance to good advantage.

President A. M. Herr appointed B. F. Barr, H. K. Rohrer and C. F. Edgar to arrange resolutions on the death of Francis Bachler.

Various Notes.



George Goldbach is cutting some good Golden Glow chrysanthemums.

B. F. Barr & Co. have been making a specialty of a dollar basket of flowers, and they find this line has brought better results than the dollar box this season, as a larger amount of short-stemmed stock can be worked up to good advantage.

Miss Katherine E. Seibert, of B. F. Barr & Co., has returned from a four weeks' vacation trip in the south.

Visitors last week were George Auegle, manager of the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co.; A. T. Clough, for James H. Matthews & Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. Cohen, for Wertheimer Bros., New York, and H. C. Yeager, Norristown, Pa.

VIOLET GOVERNOR HERRICK.

Please give us information about the treatment of Violet Governor Herrick, as to temperature. Can it be grown in the same house as Princess of Wales?
R. & S. F. S.

Violet Governor Herrick is now largely discarded, as Princess of Wales is a much superior variety. Governor Herrick did poorly in a night temperature of 40 degrees, which suits Princess of Wales, but a Review reader last year stated that Herrick did well in a night temperature of 50 degrees. Perhaps some reader who is successful with this variety can give more information.

VIOLET ROOT ROT.

Please tell me what causes black roots on violet plants. I received two different lots of the same kind of violet plants, grown by different men. The plants looked fine; they were all set by one man in the same house and looked after by the same man. One lot of plants grew finely, but the other lot all got black roots. I inquired of a man who had been in the violet business for fifteen years. He told me he had never been troubled with the disease until this year. His own plants, which he set, grew finely, but he wanted to change stock in one part of his house, so he bought 1,800 plants that looked even better than his own, and yet the 1,800 all got black roots, while his own were all right. My case is just about the same. The cuttings were fine and the roots were apparently sound, with not a bit of black on them, yet one lot flourished and the other lot got black roots. Can you give me any information in regard to this? F. M.

This disease is commonly called black rot, root rot and black root, and in the New York violet growing districts is so deadly that it takes the name of "the violet disease." Its scientific name is Thielavia basicola. The same disease occurs on sweet peas, field peas, cyclamens and asters, and is destructive on tobacco. It was first discovered and described in America by Prof. R. Thaxter in 1892. It was known in England in 1850, and in Germany in 1876.

Attacked plants have a dwarfed appearance and the foliage is crinkled and of a yellow cast; sometimes an entire crop will die. A parasite is the cause of all the trouble and, to fight it, sanitation of a scientific nature is necessary. Use only cuttings of healthy plants. Even one or two runners, apparently healthy, taken from affected plants and thrown, as is common, into a pail of water with others, will spread the disease. Water the cutting benches with formaldehyde, one quart to twenty-five gallons of water, as a sterilizer. Cover with an oilcloth after applying.

The soil should, if possible, be sterilized in the violet houses. Lime, it has been proved, tends to spread the disease, as an alkaline soil favors it. Experiments with manure and fertilizers have proved that stable manure gives the best results and that acid phosphate ranks next in value. Lime and wood ashes gave the least number of healthy plants. There is a great deal yet to be learned about this disease, on which experimental stations are still working. C. W.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

Business is fair for August. Roses are the mainstay, there being a good supply; and they clean up well. Some asters are seen and sell at fair prices considering the quality. Gladioli are in oversupply.

Various Notes.

E. S. Drake, Joseph F. Coombs and D. A. Spear will serve on the jury of the Superior court.

The Connecticut fair will open September 1. Vice-president Marshall will be in attendance. Liberal premiums are offered for cut flowers and plant displays. A silver cup will be offered for the best and most appropriate wreath suitable for presentation to the winner of the Charter Oak race. Alex Cumming, Jr., will have charge of the horticultural department of the fair. Mr. Cumming has resigned his position as superintendent of Elizabeth park and will take charge of the retail department of A. N. Pierson, Inc., at Cromwell.

Wolfgang Swartz, who for the last nineteen years has had charge of the palm and decorative plant department of A. N. Pierson, Inc., has tendered his resignation and will take charge of the greenhouses of Holm & Olson, of St. Paul, Minn., September 1. Mr. Swartz is considered one of the best plant growers in New England.

Lewis Gaskill, of Cromwell, has accepted the position of head gardener at the Massachusetts State Hospital, at Worcester. He is a graduate of the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Carnation planting is now completed at A. N. Pierson's. The plants are looking fine and will soon be producing flowers. Most of the plants have been grown inside, and are superior to field-grown stock. R. C. S.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—The Sunnyfield Nursery Co. has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $5,798 and assets of $6,724, the latter consisting of nursery stock at cost, $4,500; office fixtures, $300; wagons and implements, $225, and accounts, $1,699. Frank B. Lown, the president of the company, is a creditor for $2,470.

Augusta, Ga.—A ten per cent adjustment of all claims has been accepted by the creditors of the Alexander Seed Co. According to an involuntary petition in bankruptcy filed August 1, the assets are $3,236 and the liabilities $21,042. H. H. Alexander and Irvin Alexander are not now connected with the firm, as the interests of the family were sold ten years ago.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

John Clark, 82 years old, has been named acting superintendent of the National Botanical Gardens, to fill the vacancy made by the death of C. Leslie Reynolds. At the time of the death of Mr. Smith, Mr. Clark was promoted from the position of propagator to that of assistant superintendent, succeeding Mr. Reynolds, who was made superintendent. Mr. Clark is a Scotchman by birth and was a lifelong friend of Mr. Smith. In 1854 the latter wrote to him in Scotland, offering him the position of assistant superintendent if he would come to America. He declined and did not come to America until about fifteen years ago, when he accepted a position as propagator. It is probable that he will be made the superintendent of the gardens.

There will probably be some little demand for store decorations during the week beginning September 29. This has been designated as Fall Trade Week and is being advertised extensively, with a view of drawing the people of the surrounding country into Washington at that time to do their season's shopping. This will also give the local trade an opportunity of demonstrating their ability to handle mail and telegraph orders.

Preparations are being made for the holding of the fall flower show at the propagating gardens of the Department of Agriculture on a larger scale than ever.

Fred H. Kramer and Adolphus Gude, with nine other Washingtonians, sailed last week for Germany, where they will act as color guard for the German-American organizations of veterans who will go into camp with the German troops. They will visit France and England and will return in the last part of October. C. L. L.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

Toronto florists have been popping in and out frequently during the last fortnight, their visits forming probably part of their holiday program. They tell us of the change in proprietorship of George Allin's greenhouses, at West Toronto; Hamilton Milligan has just taken over the business and placed M. Bullyment in charge of the growing department.

Dunlop's new Lord & Burnham buildings at Richmond Hill are covered in, but planting has not yet begun.

W. J. Lawrence has made two houses of the single long-span that suffered so badly from the storm last January, and they are now filled with a variety of healthy-looking stock.

It is also reported that the Steele-Briggs Seed Co. is arranging to remove its greenhouses from Toronto to Oakville, nearly twenty miles out.

Some of the growers in Brampton had excellent crops of tomatoes during the early summer and are now busy getting ready for the fall. W. Calvert's and Mark Henderson's new houses are almost in shape for planting.

At the Dale Estate the six new houses, covering two and one-half acres, have made splendid progress, owing to the magnificent weather experienced throughout the spring and summer. Scarcely twenty-four hours have been wasted during the entire period of building. The benches are already planted with violets and the glaziers have begun work. Stock is extremely scarce in all lines, but the supply trade keeps all hands busy in the shipping room. Edward Dale, his daughter, Bessie, and Charles Norton returned from Europe last week. H. G. Mullis also got home from British Columbia. All enjoyed their trips immensely.

W. G. P.

NASHUA, N. H.

This has been an exceptionally busy season for George E. Buxton. He has just completed a new greenhouse 32x188, and planted it with carnations. He has 22,000 carnations benched in all. Plants in the field had a hard struggle for existence this season, as no rain fell for sixty-three days, but they are now of an average size. Mr. Buxton has sold and delivered over 60,000 plants of his famous new pink snapdragon, of a Killarney shade of color, and orders keep arriving daily.

Gaedeke & Co. report a fine summer business in the line of funeral work. Their carnations in the field, however, are not up to the average, owing to the drought.

C. H. Blake is rebuilding one of his greenhouses, replacing one that has been in active service for thirty years. Mr. Blake reports a good summer business.

W. W. Powers is busy most of the time with funeral work. In fact, he has been so closely confined that a vacation has been out of the question. Mr. Powers has recently taken up his residence on Concord street, Nashua's most select residential district.

W. N. C.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The week has been a good one for the majority of downtown florists, with a great deal of funeral work. The state of the flower market is about the same as recorded last week, with no great amount of good stock arriving. There is an influx of gladioli and many go to waste. On account of the hot, dry weather, they burst into blossom all at once and cannot be sold fast enough. The same is true of other outdoor stock, and many are begging for a good, soaking rain. The asters are extremely scarce, and only a few good ones get into the commission house. The rest are small and so short-stemmed that they can only be used for design work. There are a few growers who, by having a good water system, are making good prices for their cut stock, and the demand is far beyond what the plants will produce. Sweet peas are good or bad, according to the grower, and the best have a hard task to realize a respectable price. Carnations can almost be classed with the peas; their quantity is limited. Roses are about the best thing on the market; their only fault is that they burst open too quickly. Harrisii lilies are fairly plentiful, but valley is scarce. Japanese lilies, both white and pink, are numerous and are used freely. Water lilies, which do not sell so readily in the stores, are obtainable in the streets. Ferns are scarce. Asparagus, maidenhair ferns and smilax sell well.

Various Notes.

Miss Lilian Wheeler, of the Rochester Floral Co., is away from business on a two weeks' vacation. Miss Rose Ella Brown commenced her vacation August 25, for a period of two weeks.

Milton Selinka, of Schloss Bros., New York city, called on the trade during the week, expressing his satisfaction with the amount of business done.

Burglars entered the store of Crosman Bros. on the evening of August 21, by climbing through the transom over the front door. Their efforts did not get them much; only a few old coins were left over night in the cash register.

So far, this month has been the busiest that the Lord & Burnham Co. has experienced in this territory. Arthur Elder, a son of the manager of the Lord & Burnham head offices, is one of the office force, and additional help has been put on. Among the firm's recent sales are a rose house, 52x200, erected complete and heated, for J. H. Gould, Middleport; for Fred Burki, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., a house 41x583; for the Indiana Floral Co., Indiana, Pa., a house 35x150; for S. D. Pritchard, of Phelps, N. Y., who is starting in a small way, a service house building, complete, 18x25; for J. H. West & Sons, Irondequoit, N. Y., an additional house, 40x183.

The death of Charles M. Hooker, senior member of the firm of C. M. Hooker & Sons, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week was convention week, and its record has been invariable for years. With it comes the end of the dog days and the first evidences of an awakening begin to manifest themselves. Employers and employees are nearly all back from their vacations, brown and energetic and ready for the coming season, which Labor day inaugurates. Schools will soon open and flower buyers return to the city.

A tremendous lot of roses are coming to the market, but most of them are short-stemmed and can hardly be cleaned up at any price. The few that are worth while, from American Beauties and Shawyers down, bring fair returns, and the retail demand is slowly but perceptibly increasing. There will be few carnations of value sent in before next week. The growers express the certainty of a good stock by that time. Nothing is arriving at present that sells above $1 per hundred. Valley and lilies are firm at present quotations. Some fine rubrums are seen, and longiflorums are gradually advancing above the starvation level of July and August.

Dahlias, cosmos and goldenrod have just stepped through the open door. A few Golden Glow and Smith's Advance mums are here, and of gladioli and asters there is no end. Only the best of these bring even respectable prices, and some of the new asters and select gladioli are worth much more than it has been possible to realize on them.

Orchids have not been overabundant, and prices have been higher for cattleyas. There will soon be a fine assortment of orchids to select from.

Various Notes.

Conventionists are returning gradually. The charms of the boundless west, the Great Lakes and the Windy City have held a few of them. Those who are back are loud in appreciation of the splendid men and women of the Twin Cities, and of the unlimited entertainment and generosity accorded them.

Frank L. Moore, of Moore, Hentz & Nash, was in the city August 22. Cattleyas and Maryland roses are his present contribution to the wholesale market. The added conveniences of this firm in the Coogan building are now complete. Mr. Moore's daughter, Miss Muriel, is a prominent teacher in the New York School of Music and Arts.

Paul Rigo, of the Henshaw & Fenrich force, will be married September 3. His bride will be Miss Ethel Wilson, daughter of Lieutenant Wilson, of General Sheridan's staff. The honeymoon trip of four weeks will reach as far as Winnipeg, Manitoba.

E. Bonnot, of Bonnot Bros., will return next week from his annual European holiday.

Frank Duggan, seedsman, is away on a yachting trip to Atlantic City and Virginia Beach.

Angelo Dentale, of Young & Nugent's force, entertained the stork August 12. A boy was left by the same busy bird August 20 at the home of Maurice Glass, manager of the Henry M. Robinson Co., of New York.

The H. M. Robinson Co. will be comfortably settled this week in its new and spacious quarters on the ground floor of the Coogan building. From the size of the ice-box, the firm evidently anticipates an immense shipping as well as local business this season.

Badgley, Riedel & Meyer displayed some fine Smith's Advance chrysanthemums in their windows last week, the first of the season.

Walter R. Siebrecht is back from his vacation and will move downstairs next week into the store formerly occupied by Russin & Hanfling. The new home of this progressive supply house is nearly ready for occupancy, and it will be one of the most complete establishments in the country in this department of the florists' business.

J. K. Allen devotes his week-ends to his family at Ocean Grove, N. J., and his spare days during this week to his shippers on Long Island.

The Hinode Florist Co., of Whitestone, L. I., has sold its property to Dreyer Bros., Woodside, L. I.

Samuel Woodrow is busy with the store and conservatory enlargement at his place of business, and will have more space and conveniences than ever before for his plant display. He seems quite hopeful as to the fall and winter outlook.

Joseph A. Fenrich will continue to make Bradley Beach his home until October.

Herbert Kruschka, son of the leading florist of Asbury Park, N. J., is now with Poehlmann Bros. Co., of Chicago.

Adam Miller, formerly of the New York Botanical Garden staff, and later in charge of the Hotel Astor's flower department, is now in the landscape business on his own account.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. expects to be comfortably settled in its new store and with all its conveniences in running order Saturday, August 30.

The new combination now concentrated at the old store of George Cotsonas & Co. promises to be a strong and aggressive union of forces under the name of the New York Florists' Supply Co., Inc.

The Kervan Co. continues to ship large quantities of wild smilax and other greens daily to Newport, where the society season is now at its height.

Paul Meconi's new store and office are completed, and he has a wider glass frontage than any other wholesale house in the city. The Coogan building has been almost completely metamorphosed this summer, and it now looks as if those in it intend to stay there.

Siebrecht & Son, of New Rochelle, had a large exhibit of evergreens, palms and specimen box trees at the Greater New York Fair at Yonkers, for which they received many prizes.

Fifteen cases of goods, the first of Russin & Hanfling's importations, arrived August 25 and were housed in their new store.

J. J. Fellouris is repainting and getting the store into shape for fall. He says the outlook in the green goods line is excellent.

H. M. Robinson, of Boston, was in town August 25 to attend the opening of his company's new store.

There will be the usual influx of out-of-town buyers and retailers shortly, stocking up for the winter. The growers are well prepared for them. Over at Rutherford, N. J., the Julius Roehrs Co. has a hundred houses filled with the choicest stock, from ferns to orchids, the latter exceptionally promising. Julius Roehrs, Jr., who has been practically in charge of this immense establishment for some time, gives every promise of maintaining the high standard it attained during the life of his father.

This is an appropriate week to visit the grand display of outdoor beauty at the big nurseries of Bobbink & Atkins, their hybrid hibiscus especially absorbing one's interest and admiration, as well as the enormous variety of roses, unequaled in any collection in the country.

The new and unique building of the F. R. Pierson Co., at Tarrytown, approaches completion slowly, but promises to be finished before the snow flies. When it is done, there will not be anything better in its line. It will be sixty feet deep, forty-two feet wide and thirty-five feet high. Marble staircases, brass railings, Corinthian pillars and prismatic glass will accentuate its beauty. It will be built entirely of stone and absolutely fireproof. The surroundings will be in keeping with the building, and all will reflect the enterprise, independence and ambition of the tireless and prosperous mayor of Tarrytown. J. Austin Shaw.

Dolgeville, N. Y.—R. B. Poole is opening a greenhouse in this town, the first that has been undertaken here.

St. Joseph, Mo.—The Stuppy Floral Co. has purchased a 1,500-pound motor truck of the Dorris Motor Car Co., St. Louis.

Jackson, Tenn.—F. A. Byrne, who for two years has had charge of Metcalfe's branch here, got a column write-up under a two-column head, in the Jacksonian, on the discovery of a white gladiolus in "a bed of the common specimens of the flower."

Hamilton, O.—Theo. Bock has gone out of business after selling everything, even the ground his plant occupied, which went for building lots. Mr. Bock, who has been a florist for fifty-two years, found his health breaking down and therefore retired.

OBITUARY

Charles M. Hooker.

The death of Charles M. Hooker, senior member of the firm of C. M. Hooker & Sons, Rochester, N. Y., occurred on Monday, August 18, at his home in Brighton, N. Y. Mr. Hooker was one of the foremost figures in horticulture in western New York for sixty years. The Hookers are descended from Rev. Thomas Hooker, who, with his people, founded the city of Hartford. Charles M. Hooker was born November 9, 1832, and was a son of Horace Hooker, who traveled to Rochester by stage in 1820, and who made large investments in property in St. Paul street and in the district north of the city, then known as Carthage.

Charles M. Hooker, when a young man, entered the employ of Bissell & Hooker, nurserymen on East avenue, Rochester. On reaching the age of 21 he became a member of the firm of Hooker, Farley & Co., on St. Paul street, his father being the senior partner. In 1856 the business was removed to Brighton and the farm of the late Roswell Hart was purchased. Subsequently the father retired, but the business was continued for some time under the old firm name. Afterward the name became H. E. Hooker & Bro. In 1877 the partnership was dissolved. Later C. M. Hooker entered into partnership with his sons, under the present name of C. M. Hooker & Sons.

In 1861, in Penfield, Mr. Hooker married Miss Kate Lewis, daughter of Daniel E. Lewis. She died nearly seven years ago. Mr. Hooker leaves three sons, Horace, Charles G. and Lewis Hooker, and three daughters, Misses Mary, Kate and Edith Hooker. Mr. Hooker was one of the oldest trustees of the Brighton Presbyterian church. For more than half a century he was a member of the Western New York Horticultural Society; he was chairman of its executive committee for a long time and also of the legislative committee.

In speaking of the death of Mr. Hooker, W. C. Barry, president of the Western New York Horticultural Society, said: "Mr. Hooker was one of our most esteemed members. He attended the meetings regularly for fifty years and took the greatest interest in the proceedings, cheerfully lending his aid and influence to the building up of the organization. His death is a personal loss to me and to each member of the old Western New York Horticultural Society."

The burial, which was private, was made in Mount Hope cemetery.

H. J. H.

Richard Hopps.

Richard Hopps, who was in the florists' business at Youngstown, O., for many years before his retirement four years ago, died at his home, 400 Warren avenue, August 15, after a week's confinement to his bed. Mr. Hopps had been suffering for the last three months with kidney trouble.

He was born in Ireland, May 6, 1840, and came to this country when he was a young man. He settled in Youngstown thirty-two years ago and was actively engaged as a florist and gardener until four years ago. In 1876 he married Miss Jane Bryson, who, with their sons, Charles H. and William R. Hopps, of this city, and Robert Hopps, now living in Ireland, survives him. The interment was August 17, at Oak Hill cemetery.

Charles Krombach.

Charles Krombach, for many years one of the foremost florists of Brooklyn, N. Y., died suddenly of heart disease August 18, at his home, 161½ Twenty-third street. He had been ill for some time, but had rallied and was sitting up in a chair when he died.

He was born fifty-six years ago, not far from his late home. His entire life was passed in the same neighborhood and he took an active part in its politics and social life. His places of business were located on Twenty-fifth street, Ninth avenue and Fort Hamilton avenue. He was a member of the Greater New York Florists' Association, as well as of many other clubs and lodges. He is survived by his wife, two daughters and a son. His death was quite unexpected and his wife was away in the Catskills at the time. The interment was August 21 in Greenwood cemetery.

Paul Kase.

Paul Kase died by his own hand August 19, on the steamship Massachusetts, en route from Boston to New York. He put a bullet through his heart. The body was not discovered in the stateroom until some time after the boat had docked. Several notes were on it, one to his wife, one to his stenographer and one to the coroner, in which he said it was "a very ordinary case."

Mr. Kase was 38 years of age. His home was at Bloomfield, N. J. He married the daughter of Wm. Hagemann, who was one of the widely known men in the bulb trade, and at that gentleman's death, a few years ago, became the president of the company, the offices of which are at 30 Church street, New York.

Russell Allyn West.

Russell A. West, only son of James H. West, a well known gardener of Irondequoit, N. Y., died August 21, at the age of 21 years. He met his death by drowning, and three others narrowly escaped a like fate, in a canoeing accident at Conesus lake. He graduated at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., last June. He was a young man of high character, and his untimely death put an end to a promising career. Mrs. West, mother of the lad, witnessed the accident from shore. Besides his parents, he leaves a sister, Maude West.

H. J. H.

Mrs. G. W. Vreeland.

Mrs. Albertine Vreeland, wife of Geo. W. Vreeland, of Athenia, N. J., died August 15 of cancer of the stomach. She was formerly Albertine Brägger, of Switzerland, and was in her fifty-eighth year. For over twenty-two years she had worked with her husband in the florists' trade and was well known as an excellent business woman.

The deceased is survived by two daughters, Misses Bertha and Ida Vreeland, besides her husband. The funeral services were held August 17, from the home on Van Houten avenue. Interment was in Ridgelawn cemetery.

Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

AN account of the passage of the seed, plant and bulb schedule by the Senate appears in the Seed Trade Department of this week's issue.

ALEXANDER CUMMING, JR., superintendent of parks at Hartford, Conn., will join the staff of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., September 1.

THE St. Louis Mid-Continental Flower Show has been declared off. Frank M. Robinson advises that the present plan is to hold it in the autumn of 1914.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THERE was not a latania in the trade exhibition at the S.A.F. convention this year. Only one exhibitor had Livistona rotundifolia. The kentia, areca and phœnix have the field practically to themselves.

THE date for the next annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society is January 28 and 29. Since Cleveland was selected as the meeting place, Adam Graham was placed in charge of the local arrangements.

DEATH TO SOW BUGS.

About once or twice a year we think it about time to reduce the number of sow bugs that are hiding in the benches and damp places around the greenhouses. So we take fifty pounds of granulated sugar and ten pounds of Paris green, mix the entire quantity thoroughly and put it in cornucopias made out of stiff brown paper, with a half-inch hole in the bottom to allow the mixture to run out slowly along the top edge of the bench board. Then we send a gang all over the place, to run the mixture along every bench in the houses; it is all done at the same time, so as to give every bug a chance to help himself.

We have just got through with one of our semiannual cleanings and you will please note the result. As the bugs were lying close together on the walks in the houses, we estimated that there were six bugs to a square inch, which is a conservative estimate. This would make 144 to the inch on a 2-foot walk, 1,728 to a foot and 345,600 to a 200-foot walk. And, as there are 105 such walks on the place, the grand total would be 36,288,000 dead sow bugs from fifty pounds of sugar and ten pounds of Paris green, not counting those that crawled back into or under the benches before they died. Such a systematic campaign as this disposes of most of the sow bugs, notwithstanding the fact that they do not show themselves until after dark and hustle for cover as soon as the first streak of daylight appears.

EXCEEDS EXPECTATIONS.

Expectations are apt to be high, and especially so in regard to returns from money paid out. The man who pays for advertising wants to get his money's worth, and usually expects a great deal more. What must be his rating of the paper in which a classified ad brings a call that "exceeds all expectations"?

Will have to ask you to discontinue fern ad. More orders than I can fill. Call exceeds all expectations.—L. B. Humiston, Parsons, Kan., August 11, 1913.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

As a result of several days of cool weather, the local supply has decreased somewhat since the last report. While there are enough roses to go around, the situation is much better and the wholesalers find it possible to clean up on all grades except, perhaps, shorts. The cuts hardly exceed what have usually been the case at this time of the year, when the first cuts are made from the newly planted benches. Carnations have again become a factor, small quantities of outdoor flowers, as well as the first cuts from the young stock on the benches, now being offered. There are enough to fill all needs at present, when there are so many asters and gladioli around. The carnations, however, show excellent quality and, while they are, of course, short-stemmed, they are nice, clean flowers.

Beauties remain plentiful, but mostly in the short and medium lengths. The longer ones are most easily sold and for anything around three feet there is no trouble in getting a fair price. In the shorter lengths large numbers are being cut and, while they have moved well last week, there are more than enough to go around. The glut that was in effect just previous to the last report has moderated to some extent and with the cool weather putting a check on the crops the wholesalers have not been forced to make the sacrifices that were necessary ten days ago.

In roses, Killarneys and Marylands, especially, the supply is not any too large and the demand is fully heavy enough to enable the dealers to secure good returns on the better grades of stock. The new roses are finding a popular demand from the local retailers

HERE'S WHERE YOU CAN GET

Asters THAT ARE Good

IF YOUR LOCAL ASTERS are not up to your requirements, by ordering of us you can get stock that will come up to the needs of the most critical trade. In many places the aster crop has been practically a failure this year, but the growers of the stock we now are offering have seldom had better success. We can furnish fancy asters in all colors. Prices are not high, considering the superior quality of the stock; indeed, equally good asters bring these prices even in a season of good supply.

FANCY ROSES

This week we want to call special attention to our crop of Milady. This is a rose that we think will have a tremendous popularity as soon as the buyers become acquainted with it. The crop is large and the quality distinctly the best of any rose now in the market. We also can supply fine stock of Sunburst, Ward, Bulgarie, Killarney and White Killarney. Our roses are business-builders; try them.

BEAUTIES

We want the standing orders of all the Beauty buyers who appreciate first-class stock and a dependable source of supply. Write us, whether your needs are a dozen a day or five hundred. While we specially want the standing orders, we aim never to be without Beauties in the ice-box for the man who wires late.

WHITE DAISIES

We still have a large supply of big white daisies. You can book orders with confidence that you can get all the daisies you need by wiring Amling.

FANCY GLADIOLI

Our stock is made up largely of the three varieties the trade wants in quantity: America, pink, the best seller of them all; Mrs. King, the best red, and Augusta, the best white. The prices are low for such fine stock. Order enough.

FANCY VALLEY

You can depend upon us at all times for valley. If you run short, a wire to Amling will bring the valley you need.

EASTER LILIES

We can supply fine Easter Lilies in large quantity every day in the year. A specially good crop now on.

and Mrs. Russell and Milady appear to move almost as fast as they can be cut. That is to say, the good ones do. The poor ones receive little attention, but there are less of the inferior roses of any variety on the market since the weather improved. Sunburst, Melody, Radiance, Lady Hillingdon and the rest of the novelties are not in abundance and those that are being cut sell rapidly.

Fancy asters now are available in quantity, there having been a marked improvement since the cut began coming from the later varieties. The poor stock sells at almost any price the buyer cares to offer. Gladioli continue abundant. The best varieties do fairly well, but the clean-up is at a price that pulls the average down. Greens are in good supply and valley is fully abundant enough to take care of any demand. Lilies are not in oversupply, but there are enough to fill orders with and produce a fair return for the growers. An occasional dozen mums is seen.

way, Mr. Zender is now a full-fledged grandpa. He and R. J. Windler made the rounds of the wholesale houses Saturday, August 23.

Zorn & Gaertner, of Saginaw, Mich., are shipping a fine lot of asters to this market, which are being handled by the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., which readily disposes of all it can handle.

Souvenir post-cards were received daily from St. Louis florists at the S. A. F. convention, saying that a splendid time was being shown them and telling of the good things they saw in the trade's displays.

A. Jablonsky, of Olivette, Mo., was unable to attend the convention owing to a bad case of poisoning, which he contracted a month ago. It was his intention to go with the St. Louis delegation.

Muskoff & Irish, landscape architects, are busy laying out the Tesson tract, in St. Louis county. Charles Fullgraf, William Bouche, L. Baumann and William Mehl are other landscape architects who also have plenty of business on hand.

Ed. Kalisch got back from his northern fishing trip last week. Mrs. Kalisch is visiting relatives in Kansas City. Mr. Kalisch announces his readiness for the opening of the fall season, as all renovations here are completed and the show house restocked with new decorative plants.

The St. Louis Seed Co. will move from the present quarters to 415 Washington avenue, November 1, where quarters are being prepared. There the company will have the necessary room for its fast growing business.

The North St. Louis Business Men's League's annual parade last week gave a lot of work to florists in the north end, in the preparation of floats. Among the busy ones were the Brix Floral Co., Tower Floral Co. and Bentzen Floral Co. A lot of surplus stock was consumed.

Fred H. Weber has everything in shape for the opening of the fall season. Everything has been refreshed, and a new Cadillac delivery car is ready for service. He says special business kept him from attending the convention this year, but to count him in for Boston.

After three weeks in obscurity, J. Pluvius called and gave us a good rainfall for a few hours last week, but since then is again in hiding. More rain is badly needed in the county.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will hold its regular monthly meeting Wednesday, September 3. President Vennemann says there is a lot of important business to transact and he would like to see all the members present.

Album OF Designs

[SECOND EDITION]

It sold so much better than was expected that the First Edition, intended to last a year, was sold out in eight months.

This Album was published in response to many requests from Florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book to be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it is not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it will be when ready for use. With this Album you can show the finished work, in beautifully printed pictures.

The Album has been THOROUGHLY REVISED for the Second Edition and contains a large number of designs not shown in the wonderfully successful First Edition.

NINETY-SIX PAGES, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy glazed paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear.

The price has not been raised for the Second Edition, although everybody says the First Edition was worth more money, and this is a better book in every way.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

There is a theory afloat that the end of August is the dullest time of the year in the flower market, something like the dark cloud having a silver lining, September standing for the silver. Be this as it may, the market has been dull, extremely dull. There are some cheering features. The early asters are over. With them has gone much of that poor stock so distressing to everybody. Semple's form the main body of the asters now and Semple's are mostly fine quality. Gladioli have taken a new lease of life; there are some magnificent flowers coming into market. Red is particularly fine. The scarcity of cattleyas continues. The stock for the order for fifty that can be filled is apt to come from a number of different sources, while he who fills it wears a smile or gives a sigh of relief, according to temperament. There is no other special change in conditions, but a change for the better is expected soon.

An Inspection Trip.

It was noticed in the Broad Street station an hour before noon, August 27, that many persons had little, square, yellow cards attached to their coat lapels. There was printing on the cards, difficult to discern at a distance as they bobbed up and down with the motion of the wearers. Most of those tagged were hearty, bronzed individuals, who seemed to find plenty of friends among those similarly tagged. The center of attraction for all was a gate marked "Special train for Henry F. Michell Co.'s Seed House inspection trip to Andalusia, Pa."

Both members of the house were there welcoming their guests, the one gracious, the other cordial. The hope of the house was there, just returned from the Minneapolis convention. The secretary of state was there, and with him a stall from Five-eighteen, designed to form the commissary department. The guests numbered nearly 500 gardeners and florists, a stag party of eminent horticultural standing. The train left Broad Street station at 11:30 a. m. By a little after noon the whole party was swarming over the trial grounds, their interest centering in the efforts of the commissary so thoughtfully provided for them by their host. Then came the inspection; I must pass lightly over the words of the silver-tongued orator. It lasted until 4 o'clock, when train time arrived.

There are eighteen acres of level, treeless land in the trial grounds of the Henry F. Michell Co. at Andalusia. They border directly on the Pennsylvania tracks, a pebble's-throw from the station, affording excellent advertising opportunities that were quickly seized. The center of that side of the ground that borders on the tracks is occupied by a raised circular bed containing no less than 1,200 clumps of King Humbert cannas, their brilliant coloring contrasting effectively with the smaller beds of 500, of the yellow Mrs. Alexander Wallace, and with the thick greensward. Doubt as to the origin of the sward is removed by a large sign, not out of sight of the tracks, that reads, "Always Sow Michell's Evergreen Lawn Grass Seed." Cannas have been given an important place at Andalusia. Their increasing popularity, their easy culture and the frequency of rogues in the stock received, caused the selection. There are many fine varieties, Mrs. Alfred F. Conard, rosea gigantea, Egandale and Pink Beauty of Hungaria, partly rechristened to clarify, are a few among the many sorts. Salvias, Bonfire, Zurich, et al., add their dazzling scarlet to the rich riot of color.

A great part of the grounds is being devoted to perennials. An increasing number are grown each year. Some are planted out in neatly cultivated rows; some are plunged in foundry sand, which is preferred to ashes. Then there are an immense number of miscellaneous plants, suited to the special needs of the house—carnations, violets, celery, strawberries, hardy shrubs, and so on ad infinitum. The blue flowers of buddleia, with two more difficult names, called the butterfly bush lest the would-be buyer go into a trance at its sound, form a pleasing bed. Dahlias have been taken up extensively. The large, well formed flowers of Kaiserin Augusta Victoria were much admired.

The seedsman's greenhouse problem is what to do with his space under glass from June to December. This is being solved by the indoor culture of the chrysanthemum for cut flowers. Paul Applegreen, the manager, has a fine lot of well-grown plants, the Chadwicks especially so.

The water system, the heating, the wonderfully fine anemones, the million or more gladioli, all came in for their share of attention before the visitors reluctantly wended their way back to the railroad station through an avenue of many varieties of climbing roses, each trained on a pillar. train pulls out there are just two more of the many interesting things that must be mentioned. One is the pretty block of roses; Maman Cochet was particularly pretty. The other is that wonderful new geranium, Helen Michell, now in full glory.

Various Notes.

Gerard Kruijff, of the firm of Van Waveren & Kruijff, Sassenheim, Holland, has been in this city this week. Mr. Kruijff spent Sunday at the city by the sea.

Aaron Bassett, son of J. Murray Bassett, Hammonton, N. J., is in the Atlantic hospital suffering from a bullet wound in the abdomen, the result of an accident. The surgeons have decided not to attempt to remove the bullet.

F. W. Kummer, of Charleston, S. C., who was here last week, says that Maman Cochet is largely depended upon for pink and white roses outdoors in the south.

Henry R. Brown, Mrs. Brown and a friend, all from Lynchburg, Va., were here this week.

W. W. Scholtz, of Charlotte, N. C., was among our recent visitors.

Cornelius van der Breggan took off every bud and flower on the plants of the new geranium, Helen Michell, under his care, just before going on his vacation recently. Upon his return, in a week or so, the plants were again covered with bloom.

The loss sustained by August Doemling, of Lansdowne, in the blow of August 10, was not nearly so great as reported two weeks ago. The houses were speedily repaired and reglazed.

Choice flowers in the market this week are the showy red gladioli of Berger Bros., the fancy asters of the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co., and the pretty snapdragons of William J. Baker.

society, every one of you before me and each one of those who read these lines should feel it his solemn duty to bring about a betterment of these conditions. The obstacles are mostly imaginary, and fanciful, when closely looked into. There really is only one, but an obstinate one, and that is the lethargy and disinterestedness of the men who will be mostly benefited by this change. "I should worry. It is good enough for me. It has been that way for over twenty-five years." This and other sayings of men who should take a keener interest in such affairs is the real stumbling block, but to men of this class I want to say: Do you realize where progress in this world would be if we kept on that platform? We would be living in a cave and wearing fig leaves for clothes. No, sir; we must advance, and this craving for better conditions and facilities is what brings about progress. Don't think because you are a member of some florists' club, or a member of the Carnation Society, that that is all that is needed of you, that there is no necessity to be a member of the S. A. F. That is wrong. You should take in the whole situation. Always be broad in your view. Think of others as well. We are all together in the same boat. So let our motto be, "One for all, and all for one."

Here are the suggestions I have to make in regard to the duty of the florists' clubs toward the S. A. F. Of course, this depends on the action of the S. A. F., to reject or recommend as best suited for this purpose. The florists' clubs are to pay for each member from $1.50 to $2 into the treasury of the S. A. F. These members of the florists' clubs become automatically members of the S. A. F. by paying this extra fee. Anyone not a member of a florists' club is to pay the dues which now prevail. As this would bring quite a large sum of money into the treasury of the S. A. F., it would be able then to start that so much needed press bureau, which is to advertise nation-wide, or rather, to educate the public through magazines and newspapers. To protect ourselves from excessive freight and express rates; to keep in touch with legislation regarding duties on plants, seeds, bulbs, and whatever pertains to our business; to keep in touch with experiment stations and schools for gardening; to obtain recognition by the government in its mail departments, the parcel post, and the census, and to prove to them that we are worth looking after; these are some of the most important issues and enough to show anyone that affiliation is needed. Of course, all this takes money, and only a large membership can bring about this change.

Work to Be Accomplished.

Our national society would not have to change its by-laws to any great extent, unless to accept the florists' clubs as part of the S. A. F. for mutual help and advancement. Of course, the dues would have to be regulated to suit the occasion, and the florists' clubs main change would be in the yearly dues as well. To show the working of my suggestions in this merging of the two societies, I will suggest some of its advantages. The secretary of the florists' club is informed of all matters pertaining to the interest of our national society affairs, giving us all chances to keep in close touch with such matters. The florists' club acts as agent for the members in case of trouble; for instance, an article appeared in one of the Philadelphia papers, stating how costly flowers were to be at Easter, and that the rose growers had formed a trust and were to boost the prices for Easter. Such foolish statements should be turned over to the secretary of the florists' club, by members of the club who read the article, the secretary of the club in turn giving it to the secretary of the national society, who would turn it over to the press bureau to correct with the proper article in these papers, to counteract the damage done. For another suggestion take an overcharge on expressage that I experience. I pay approximately from $75 to $100 per year more expressage than the company has any right to ask for, as the Interstate Commerce Commission regulated these rates for us five or six years ago. But what can I, or one or two others in my locality, do to prevent this extortion by the express company? Nothing.

A strong national society could take this matter up and get us redress in short order. Is not that worth $2 a year to anyone? How much harm was done to the trade through such an article as I have just mentioned? It is beyond estimation. Truly, it is worth it to the Philadelphia florists to pay $2 extra per year, to have this protection from our national society. Of course, these are personal suggestions, and it is up to the committee on affiliation to work up proper rules and have them enacted at this meeting. But the less red tape the better. The main thing is to get together in as easy, convenient and common-sense a way as possible. I am plain in my talk and suggestions; anybody can see quickly where the benefit for himself exists in this movement. For after all is said and done, the question of how much it is worth to each one is the ruling spirit of the majority.

Results to Be Gained.

Take, for instance, Pennsylvania, which in 1912 had 163 registered members in the S. A. F. The Philadelphia Florists' Club has nearly 300 active members. We have possibly over 600 members of florists' clubs in Pennsylvania. There are about five or six clubs in this state, yet only 163 florists are members of our national society. You will find it so in all states. The proportion of our men in business who are members of the S. A. F. is extremely small. I think we shall have no trouble to get from 8,000 to 10,000 members in a short while if this affiliation takes place.

Now, I most earnestly request all officers and members of different florists' clubs to take notice of this: We must make a start and do this. Make the essay of the January meeting on affiliation, and at the February or March meeting take a vote and see how your club stands regarding this movement. I think by that time everyone should be able to understand the vital question of this movement. Then we shall be able to see whether the indifferent and it-is-good-enough-for-me fellow is still in the majority. But, fellow members, I feel confident that the realization of affilia-

THIS IS THE TIME TO BOOK ORDERS FOR LYCOPODIUM, or Ground Pine. I gather it fresh from the woods in Michigan and Wisconsin. Prices, $5.50, $6.50, $7.50 per 100 lbs., selected stock, graded as per prices. Cash with order from unknown parties. I am shipping large amounts of Cut Ferns all the time, and have ready for fall work the largest crew of fern-pickers of anyone in the business—80 working now and over 500 ready for fall, when storage work commences, gathering Ferns, Lycopodium and Sphagnum Moss.

E. H. HITCHCOCK, Glenwood, Mich.

tion is near at hand. I know that all the best and ablest men in our profession are backing it. Several of our former presidents have tried to bring about some step toward such amalgamation—Philip Breitmeyer, F. R. Pierson, W. F. Stewart, Wm. F. Gude, R. Vincent, and our present president, J. K. M. L. Farquhar. The first time I met our present president after his election last summer, in a committee meeting in New York last fall, he said to me: "How can we bring about affiliation?" showing what was foremost in his mind and most essential to the future success of our national society.

Duty to the Trade.

Fellow members, the time is here to do something. We owe it to the mother society, we owe it to ourselves and to our chosen profession. Shake off this indifference and lethargy; look around you, see what other business interests are doing, and you will find that they are all solid to their interest. Are we less in need of it? I say no! Are we less intelligent? Again no! Are we slow and selfish? Here I have to shout no! I feel sure you will answer these questions the way I did. Then why in the name of common sense don't we go to work and unify our interest and take the place we should occupy in the front rank among other business interests? Horticulture is large enough, with its many millions invested in it, and tens of thousands of fellow workers. The object of a convention is to better our conditions in business and to help one another. It is not fair for 1,500 members, or less, of the S. A. F. to do all the work and pay the cost, while the other ten or fifteen thousand interested in our business get the benefit of whatever comes from it, without giving their share of work or money. By amalgamation with the florists' clubs, we will get thousands of such delinquent florists, who at the present time do not seem to see the point at issue, or do not care, but who will, if this is properly explained to them at their home club meeting, I feel sure, vote for affiliation.

In conclusion, I once more appeal to all before me and to all those who read these lines to prove their loyalty to their profession by helping to put our national society on such a basis that its value to all of us will be ever so much greater than before. Although it has been a stanch friend to us for twenty-eight years, its usefulness can be increased many times if we all do our share of work.

Fellow members, we have a duty to fulfill toward the destiny of our profession, toward the welfare of our children. Do not let us fail, but work so that the realization of this movement will soon be an assured fact, is the earnest desire of all its well-wishers.

EIGHT PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists — has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

Business was quiet last week, and the present week opens with no change from these conditions. Asters continue the flowers par excellence and are seen in large quantities. Most of the early varieties have now passed, and midseason varieties, such as Victoria, Comet, Vick's Royal White and Ostrich Plume have taken their place. The loose flowered varieties sell the most slowly. Prices are a little better, some fancy stock bringing $2 to $3 per hundred, but a larger number sell at 50 cents to 75 cents. Gladioli are too plentiful and are hard to move. Sweet peas are nearly over, only one or two growers sending them in.

Roses are not yet abundant and move fairly well, especially Beauties, Killarney Queen, Wards, Tafts, Russells and Dark Pink Killarneys. A few carnations of the new crop are seen. These are small and short-stemmed. Some of the old crop also still arrive, but sell slowly. Lilies are abundant. Longiflorums are extra fine, and so are auratums. Cattleyas are scarce. The first labiatas have appeared. Gardenias are also in short supply. There is not a great call for valley. In the way of miscellaneous flowers, double hardy sunflowers, physostegias, white statice, globe amaranths, montbretias, cornflowers and many other flowers are seen. Trade in green stock is dull.

Various Notes.

The news that the S. A. F. convention of 1914 would be held in Boston gave general satisfaction, and it is now up to the commercial growers of Boston and vicinity to make the next convention a record-breaker in every way. The selection of the genial, inimitable and popular Patrick Welch as vice-president pleased his host of friends here, who know that P. W. will make good, both in his new position and a higher one later.

James Farquhar has some large contracts now on hand. One for Thomas G. Plant, at Ossipee Mountain park, Moultonboro, N. H., will furnish work for a small army of men for several years. Over 600 men are now employed in making fifty miles of drives on this grand and romantically situated 7,000-acre estate, commanding magnificent views over Lake Winnepesaukee.

Joseph Margolis is the only member of the firm of H. M. Robinson & Co. now at Winthrop Square, H. M. and C. E. Robinson being away on a vacation. He showed me fine long-stemmed Christie Miller, Dark Pink Killarney and Killarney Queen roses, and reported trade as fair for August.

At the Rockingham fair, at Salem, N. H., Penn was a large exhibitor of floral designs and cut flowers, and captured numerous blue ribbons. J. K. Alexander was the largest and most successful exhibitor of gladioli. Robert Cameron and James Wheeler judged the flowers and vegetables, the work occupying three days. There was an attendance of 75,000 on the leading day.

The Boston Coöperative Flower Market has reduced the rental of the stalls from $25 to $20 per year, the $5 being in the nature of a dividend to all stall-holders. They anticipate a lively auction sale August 30, and the market is being made trim for it.

William S. Grassie, of Waverley, has some grand asters now. He has Vick's Royal White on 3-foot stems, the flowers bringing $3 per hundred easily.

Charles Evans, of Watertown, is one of the best natured and most popular young growers and salesmen in Boston. At present he has a fine lot of Physostegia Virginica, double helianthus and asters.

At T. F. Galvin's Tremont street store I noted one window filled with masses of Augusta and Mrs. F. King gladioli and longiflorum lilies, which looked well.

At the emporium of Welch Bros. Co. business is fairly good for the dull season. David Welch is as full of enthusiasm as ever over his late trip to Ireland, and it does one's heart good to hear him expatiate on the beauty of the Cork and Limerick maidens, the carmine tints in their cheeks and their bewildering eyes.

James Tulis, of Sudbury, is the first to send in new crop carnations to the Boston Flower Exchange.

Fred H. Houghton, of Park street, always has a prettily arranged and not overdone window. Just now he uses oak sprays freely, and these in baskets of gladioli are pleasing.

who grew all his carnations in solid beds last season, has planted half in raised benches this season, feeling that he will get a better winter crop from them. He will grow antirrhinums and yellow marguerites in quantity again.

Norris F. Comley speaks glowingly of his new forcing tomato Terrace Hall, of which he grew several houses last season, and of which he states he has sold $20,000 worth of fruit from May 1 to August 1.

George Cartwright, treasurer of the Boston Flower Exchange, had a pleasant surprise August 20, when he was presented by his many florist friends with a beautiful life-size framed bust painting of himself, which will long serve as a pleasing reminder of his many good friends in the trade. Mr. Cartwright wishes, through The Review, to thank the many friends who joined in making the gift.

The New England Florists' Supply Co. is doing a good business and feels much elated at the patronage it is receiving.

At the salesroom of the Flower Growers' Sales Co. some fine roses are being received from Thomas Roland's new house at Nahant.

The twenty-second annual auction sale of stalls in the new and commodious market of the Boston Flower Exchange, Winthrop square, will take place Saturday, September 6. There is a quarter acre of floor space. The contrast between the conditions here and at the former location at Park street are marked. There is a well-lighted and ventilated area, with continuous glass fifteen feet high on both Winthrop square and Otis street. There are four large ice-rooms, seven telephones, trucks for carrying boxes through the wide aisles, etc. The management says the cost of operating the exchange here will be much less than at the old Park street location.

LOWELL, MASS.

The Lowell florists held their first annual outing Thursday, August 22. They went to Bass Point by automobile and had dinner there, after which came athletic contests of all kinds, including a hot ball game between the married men and single men, in which the former were victors by a score of nine to eight. After the game they all went in the automobiles to Revere beach. There they took in the sights and went in bathing. Ed. Bushnell, of R. A.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

REPORTS are to the effect that the Wright Realty & Seed Co., of Orlando, Fla., is going out of business.

ACCOUNT of the adjustment of claims against the Alexander Seed Co., of Augusta, Ga., will be found under the head of Business Embarrassments.

THE following is the official roster of Wood, Stubbs & Co., Inc., Louisville: President, C. F. Wood; vice-president, W. P. Stubbs; secretary and treasurer, C. Z. Strunk.

THE untimely death of Paul Kase, of Hagemann & Co., New York, occasions a feeling of genuine and general sadness in the trade. Mr. Kase was well known among bulb buyers and was liked by all.

LAST year eight Holland bulb salesmen made the tour of the Pacific coast, and this year there were ten. It is said some of them did not get business enough to reimburse them for their carfare. But doubtless next year there will be twelve.

THE firm of E. F. Spears & Sons, Paris, Ky., a member of the American Seed Trade Association, now consists of Woodford Spears and Catesby W. Spears. The business consists althogether of the wholesaling of Kentucky bluegrass seed.

CONSIDERABLE interest is being manifested in the trials of a variety known as Michigan Hard Red wheat, which was raised by the S. M. Isbell Co., of Jackson, Mich. It is of Russian origin and raised with a view to adapting it to the Michigan climate.

SEEDSMEN at Oklahoma City, Okla., were interested in the exhibition of the flowers grown by school children from seeds distributed a year ago. The Barteldes Seed Co., the Enterprise Seed Co. and the Stiles Co. each decorated a window in the Terminal Arcade, where the show was held. The judges were Charles Stiles, W. O. Church and Lon Foster.

IT was the consensus of opinion among the bulb growers present at the meeting of the American Gladiolus Society at Minneapolis last week that the tariff on gladiolus bulbs 5/8-inch and up should be $5 per thousand, with bulblets ½-inch and under free. A tariff committee was appointed to seek to get these rates incorporated in the now pending bill.

DURING the summer Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, have had a crew of forty college boys covering the north and west on the consignment box proposition. In general the business last season was good, but in Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska the prospects for next season have not appeared so promising. Three weeks of inordinately high temperature following continued drought destroyed many a man's interest in the future.

PLANS for a storage room 50x100 feet to be added to the Hayes seed building, at Topeka, Kan., have been completed, according to Eugene Hayes, manager of the concern.

MICHIGAN peas are evidently to have a fair year, although beans are not doing so well. "We are having the finest weather for harvesting and threshing peas we have ever experienced," write F. G. Johnson & Co., Harrisville, Mich., "and we shall have the best sample of seed to offer the trade we ever had. The recent hot weather has affected the bean crop materially, which lessens our expec-

SENATE PASSES SCHEDULES.

The seed, plant and bulb schedule of the revised tariff bill was passed by the Senate Friday, August 15. When the schedule was reached, Senator Brandegee, of Connecticut, wanted to know why the changes were made in the schedule, as he noticed the law provides ''and all other decorative greenhouse plants,'' twenty-five per cent. Senator Williams, of Mississippi, said that this was transferred from paragraph 215 to 216. The former asked if it covered decorative plants and greenhouse plants. ''We thought so,'' said Senator Williams. ''The greenhouse people told us it ought to be there and not in the other place.'' Senator Brandegee noted that it gave a lower duty. He said the old law provided that azaleas should come in at twenty-five per cent ad valorem and a change is made so that Azalea Indica comes in at that rate, but nothing is said about other azaleas. ''From the same authority we gather that this would cover the azalea,'' said Senator Williams. ''It was intended to cover the flowering plant.''

Senator Townsend wanted to know what greenhouse authority was consulted by the committee. ''I do not know the people's names,'' said Senator Williams. ''There were several of them before us. I have the names over at my office. I will give them to the senator some day if he wishes.'' The provisions were then adopted without further debate.

Senator Jones, of Washington, said he understood the finance committee was considering an amendment with reference to the admission of flowering bulbs free of duty. He had called this matter to the attention of the committee some time ago. If the committee was considering the amendment, he would not offer one, but would wait until the committee had time to consider it. Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, said he had examined the amendment of Senator Jones, and he asked that the paragraph be passed over to another time, which was done.

Senator Poindexter, of Washington, spoke about admitting flowering bulbs free. He said the only attempt to grow bulbs in this country with any promise of success is in the state of Washington, near Bellingham. Though meeting with success, it is an infant industry. Although just beginning, it has an excellent prospect of becoming an established industry of great value to the farmers in that section. For the purpose of facilitating and encouraging it, it is proposed to allow these farmers entering upon this new enterprise to get the mother bulbs, which require a cycle of years to mature, free of duty. Senator Poindexter offered an amendment to cover the matter, providing that mature mother bulbs imported specifically for propagation and not to be used for any other purpose shall be admitted free of duty. Senators Jones and Poindexter presented the following statement on the subject from the bureau of plant industry of the department of agriculture:

So far as known, hyacinth bulbs are propagated in this country only at the bulb garden established by this department near Bellingham, although hyacinths are the most important of the so-called Holland bulbs, because the areas in which the soil and climatic conditions are suitable for growing them are extremely limited, and wherever they can be grown successfully the land becomes extremely valuable.

The department established a bulb propagating garden in the autumn of 1908 on ten acres of land near Bellingham, Wash., which was furnished by the chamber of commerce of that city, with the necessary buildings and improvements, rent free, the coöperative agreement to run for a period of ten years, and the department to furnish the necessary bulbs, labor and expert management. The object of the department in establishing the garden was twofold, namely: (1) To propagate Holland bulbs for the congressional distribution in lieu of importing large quantities of these bulbs from Holland annually; and (2) to make the propagation of these bulbs a demonstration that Holland bulbs can be successfully grown on a commercial scale in the Puget Sound region, with a view to establishing a new and profitable industry.

Results so far obtained are quite encouraging, and there is every reason to believe that in a few years the garden established by the department will furnish all the bulbs required for the congressional distribution and sufficient data will have been accumulated to enable the department to publish explicit and detailed instructions for the information of anyone who desires to grow these bulbs commercially. However, several years will be required to complete the cycle of operations involved in treating the mother bulbs and bringing the young bulblets to maturity, and there are many minor questions of importance to be worked out, such as special methods of treatment, cultivation and handling, use of machinery, and so forth, so that it is now entirely too soon to make any statement regarding the work, except that the progress made has been quite satisfactory and we know absolutely that Holland bulbs can be propagated and grown in this country, but we are not justified in saying now that they can be grown with profit, which will be the most important point in the minds of prospective growers.

We therefore think that prospective bulb growers in this country will want the duty retained on all the so-called Holland bulbs except, possibly, mature mother bulbs imported solely for propagation, and that if bulbs for propagation purposes are admitted duty free, such importations should be surrounded by such rigid restrictions as will prevent importations for other purposes without payment of duty. If such an arrangement can be enacted into law, it will undoubtedly encourage the establishment of a new industry in this country. It is understood that bulbs valued at approximately $1,000,000 are imported annually from Holland, and it is be-

BODDINGTON'S "QUALITY" CHRISTMAS-FLOWERING

Sweet Peas

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once.

Mr. Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great Winter Sweet Pea Specialist, sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stocks of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliness of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions grown for seed, from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3000 lbs. No kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality germination and trueness to type.

lieved that most of these bulbs can be propagated and grown in this country, provided that our growers can meet the competition of cheap labor in Holland.

When paragraph 217, containing the duties on poppy and other seeds, was reached, Senator Smoot, of Utah, asked that the items canary seed, caraway seed and anise seed go over until the next day. Senator Williams hoped there would be no delay and that the senator might make his suggestion and have the paragraph disposed of. Senator Smoot said he would take little time in discussing these three items and asked that they go over. The committee amendments in the section were agreed to, excepting those on the seeds Senator Smoot wanted to discuss. The amendment, that seeds of all kinds not specially provided for be taxed 5 cents a pound, was then adopted.

HIGH HEAT AT SACRAMENTO.

Although the extreme heat in the Sacramento river district, in which important seed crops are grown, is not now so vital a factor as it was earlier in the season, the conditions are not in any way favorable. Here is the official record at Sacramento for the first three days of this week:

August 25.....	88	84	S. 10

DUTCH BULB ARRIVALS.

The shipments of Dutch bulbs are steadily becoming heavier, this week's arrivals far exceeding all previous ones. The steamer from Rotterdam which reached New York August 18 brought a large number of cases and the boat which arrived two days later brought one big consignment. The consignments on both boats were as follows:

DUTCH BULBS.

Tulips were in at the time of the last report from Holland, and, although the crop is fairly good, there is not such an abundance as last year, and of the cheaper varieties fully one-third less. Darwin tulips are in good demand again, and will be sold out before long, while many of the May-flowering cottage varieties are scarce.

The hyacinth crop generally is short and really first-size bulbs are scarce this season. The prices on blue and yellow sorts are considerably higher than last year, and some of the early varieties, that have suffered most from the unfavorable spring, are not to be had in good size.

Crocuses are a fine crop, but will hold their own, as too many of smaller sizes were sold last year. Narcissi have suffered from last year's late planting, which caused many stocks to root poorly, and the bulbs ripened off too soon this spring. Many of the irises have suffered from the same cause and are likely to give only a light crop.

Cold and rainy weather has been

SOWING REAPING

SOUNDS like ancient Bible times. But the rule still holds good. He that sows well reaps well. Likewise, the man who spends his money and energy on poor, uncertain stock can foretell the results. The rule is, and ever will be, the same—use good goods for best results. Silver Pink Snapdragon from seed has the backing of many of the largest and strongest florists in the world, for it is growing all over the globe. It is no longer an experiment, but an established commercial fact. It gives up two dollars to one of any snapdragon in existence, and you can have a bed of it at very small cost. Our free cultural directions will make the growing simple. Price of seed, over 500 to packet, $1.00; 3 packets, $2.50; 7 packets, $5.00.

We will have for October delivery 25,000 seedling plants. When they leave us they will be ready for the bench and their flowering season without further topping. We do the simple trick for you. The price is $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000. Cash, please.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Though Pittsburgh had pleasant weather the greater part of last week, there were several severe electrical and wind storms. Fortunately, no damage was done to greenhouses. There is not much good stock coming in, but enough to supply the demand. In gladioli, however, there has been a decided glut, and the prices are away down. Good asters bring a fair price, but so far there have been few good ones. The wholesale houses are loaded with all kinds of inferior stock, which is really not salable. But, taken altogether, it is a time when neither wholesaler nor retailer has enough to do to care much about what sort of stock comes.

The vacation period is about over in most of the stores and the boys are just getting settled down and will be ready for the business when it comes. All the growers have about finished planting carnations and they report the plants about up to the average.

Various Notes.

A team of horses belonging to the John Bader Co. became frightened by a sharp clap of thunder during one of the storms last week and ran away, plunging into the river. It took the assistance of several men to get them loose from the wagon and harness and prevent their drowning.

T. P. Langhans and family left August 18 for a tour of the east in their auto. They will spend some time in Atlantic City.

Thomas Fitzgerald, of Beaver, Pa., was a visitor last week and reports a good summer trade. His stock for winter is unusually good.

Mrs. Glenn, wife of J. W. Glenn, Kittanning, Pa., has been seriously ill for some weeks, but is reported as somewhat better.

P. S. Randolph & Sons have been cutting some excellent asters, but the bugs have now arrived and it is "all off" with the asters. Clarke.

Onarga, Ill.—C. Gould has leased the Westfall farm, near Graysville, where he intends to build greenhouses and grow peonies and other flowers for the city trade.

New Ulm, Minn.—Fred Herleman, of Greensburg, Ind., is the latest addition to the force at Christ Boock's greenhouses. Another house, 20x100 feet, has just been added to the plant and will be devoted to roses.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Bullrun, Ore.—W. L. Crissey entertained the Portland Floral Society, August 10, at his gladiolus farm, where in two acres he has more than 20,000 plants in bloom, of over forty varieties.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is down to summer level; only an occasional funeral relieves the monotony. There is a scarcity of choice stock. Asters are the choicest flower of the season and sell well. Gladioli have been plentiful, but are gradually becoming poorer in quality. Sweet peas have about passed out of the market. The new cut of roses is increasing in quantity, but the blooms are short-stemmed and prove poor keepers. Salable carnations are scarce. Mums are more in evidence in the windows, but it is too early for them to be good sellers.

Various Notes.

S. H. Forshaw, of Pendleton, stopped here on his way home from an extensive eastern and southern trip.

C. T. Kipp spent a day here en route to Spokane, after a stay at the beaches.

Mrs. R. M. Greig, of Anaconda, Mont., was a week-end caller.

Mr. Keegan, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., San Francisco, is calling on the trade this week. E. R. C.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Business is improving, especially the shipping end of it, while good funeral work has also called for a lot of stock. The best flowers are scarce, but there is a lot of second-rate stock that drags somewhat. Asters are not selling as well as they were, and carnations are being sold in the street when a day or two old at 5 cents per dozen. Gladioli are still fine in every respect except that there are too many of them. Roses are of fair quality, but the outdoor supply of good stock is short. Ferns in 3-inch pots and upward are more plentiful and make a pretty show, selling fairly well. The funeral of a well-known millionaire here made a great deal of work, which was well distributed.

Various Notes.

Polder & Groen have entirely remodeled their water appliances. A wire has been brought in from an adjacent high-power line and a new motor and pump have been installed to force the water to a gravity storage tank. Plenty of water, at a good pressure all over the place, is now at command—a great improvement over the old conditions.

J. Rennison, formerly of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. and more recently manager of the Arizona Seed Co., of Phoenix, has been on a visit in this and other near-by cities in the interests of his firm.

The Freeman-Lewis Co. had a fine order last week for a casket cover of lily of the valley and white phalænopsis for the funeral of the late C. Canfield, the oil magnate of this city. Mr. Lewis had charge of the arrangement of the flowers at the funeral August 21.

Carl S. Knopf, son of Albert Knopf, of the Redondo Floral Co., on Spring street, was married August 20 to Miss Florence Nelson.

Anton Soethout, of the Hollywood Nurseries, left recently for a two weeks' tour through Oregon, Washington and other northern localities, in the interests of his firm. He handles a considerable quantity of northern stock at his nurseries and likes to be early in the buying field.

S. Roberts, lately of the nursery department of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., died in the east, where he had gone in search of health. Mr. Roberts had long been ailing and great sympatry is felt for his wife. There was no family.

Gage & Co. are showing fine rubrum lilies, and as we frequently see Mr. Gage en route to Montebello, we conclude he puts in plenty of time at the ranch now.

Both C. Morton and F. Sperry are back on the job at the Los Angeles Flower Market, taking care of big consignments of magnolia and other perpetuated material for the coming season.

Carl Brose is leaving the staff of J. W. Wolters at the end of the month. Such a good artist as he will soon be in the harness again after a short vacation.

Mrs. Avery has no connection now with Ye Abbey Flower Shop, at Eighth and Figueroa streets. Mrs. E. M. Dundas is now the sole owner of the business.

Albert Weedhall, of Bakersfield, was visiting here last week.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The weather continues cool and stock of all the seasonable flowers is getting better daily, in length of stem and in color and form. Chrysanthemums, though not yet plentiful, are good and are moving rapidly. Asters are a shade past their prime, but, owing to the favorable weather, are really better than those of one year ago. Amaryllis are everywhere in evidence and are being used largely for decorating. Japanese lilies are not quite so plentiful as they have been, but they are certainly good sellers this season.

The carnation beds are all planted and the stock cut from them is daily becoming more like what it should be. Roses, too, show the results of the cool summer weather, and never has there been seen in this neighborhood better stock than is being offered to the retailers now.

Dahlias are being used in large quantities for decorative effect. Gladioli, though not so numerous as they have been, are still brought into town in fairly large quantities. Valley moves well. Orchids are scarce and will probably remain so for some weeks. Other lines of stock remain about as last reported.

Various Notes.

Oscar Prager, horticultural expert for the city of Oakland, has returned from a three months' trip to Europe.

A visit to the greenhouses of H. J. Kessel, on Thirty-second avenue, shows large quantities of stock in splendid condition, with many thousands of young ferns being grown on for the coming holiday trade.

The Gleadell Dahlia Gardens, on Geary street, are using the windows of the Trumbull Seed Co., on Market street, in which to make an exhibit of their new varieties of dahlias.

Fred Bertrand, recently with the Art Floral Co., on Powell street, has removed to Oakland and is in the new establishment of the Thorsted Floral Co., on Broadway.

Malcolm Lamond has been appointed head gardener for the city of Oakland.

R. L. Scott, representing Lion & Co., of New York, has been interviewing the local dealers in the interest of his firm.

J. C. Craig, florist and grower of South Wabash avenue, Chicago, is in town, having spent several weeks sightseeing on the Pacific coast.

PRESIDENT VAN KIRK'S ADDRESS.

[The speech of acceptance delivered by F. A. Van Kirk, of Portland, Ore., on taking the chair as president of the Portland Florists' Club.]

Having elected me to preside over the meetings of our society for the ensuing year, you are entitled to know at once whom I have selected to assist in the work of the society. No set of officers that you select can ever be the whole thing, and it is up to you, each and every one as members, to assist the various committees in their work to the best of your ability; also to support your officers in every legitimate way, especially by your attendance at our meetings. It is vastly more pleasant and satisfying to transact the business of the meetings with the members personally than it is in the spirit, or rather with empty chairs. We have had an extraordinarily prosperous first year, and we cannot expect too much for this, our second year. Our officers and committees worked hard and faithfully, and they are one and all entitled to your thanks for their efficiency. Let us try to keep the standard up and growing, as we all know that a check of any kind during young growth is a dangerous thing. We must congratulate ourselves on this one thing, that our meetings throughout the last year, without exception, have been harmonious, and it is to be hoped that harmony will continue with us.

LOOMIS, CALIFORNIA

tion, as it were—that we have pruned some of them down, others we have added to, and in some cases appointed new ones. I have done this with a view to favoring myself somewhat on rulings and decisions, but more with the purpose of expediting the regular routine business of the meetings, so that we may devote more time to sociability and the enjoyment of the various programs that I am sure will be presented by the committee in charge of that line. I believe that we will put up a motto, a good old standby, for the ensuing year, "Charity begins at home," and devote the major part of our light finances to the entertainment of our membership and any visitors who may favor us with their presence.

There will be both a program and an entertainment committee, and I would recommend right here to the program committee that they do not strictly confine their attentions to our own membership; anything legitimate from the outside I know will be appreciated by the members in general. To the entertainment committee I will simply say, "Entertain," not in too costly a way, but the society will stand for the expense of pipes and tobacco, ice cream and cake, or a sandwich and something to go with it at every meeting. This generally gets the boys out, and naturally gets them better acquainted, and that is what we want. I believe our money will be spent in this way to as good advantage as in any other.

Publicity Sadly Needed.

I hope I have selected a good publicity committee. At present we do not seem to be on the map of Portland, as it were. It seems almost incredible that a society like ours, composed of the expert men who have the "know-how" to create beautiful objects and their surroundings, and men who have accomplished so much in the last year by showing the public what they could do in the way of floral exhibitions, ets., should be one and all ignored when an opportunity came to make public use of their life-long study and experience. I refer to the recent appointments to handle our city's annual rose festival. Almost every club, etc., in the city received notice except the men behind the guns, the florists.

We already have a competent board of trustees to look after the welfare and property of our society, but I have appointed an auditing committee to pass on expenditures, etc., at time of meeting.

Growers and Retailers.

Our society is formed for mutual good, but there are occasional things brought up that are of interest only to the members in that particular line; therefore I have appointed a committee from the retailers in our association, to whom I shall refer all matters pertaining to their branch of the craft;

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

H. S. King, of the Harrison Nursery Co., of York, Neb., was a recent visitor at Grand Island, Neb.

G. F. Green is in active charge of the Conkling Nursery Co., at Fellsmere, Fla., while R. A. Conkling is in the New Orleans hospital.

The account of the passage by the Senate of the nursery stock schedule of the tariff bill will be found in the Seed Trade Department of this week's issue.

Notice of the petition in bankruptcy filed by the Sunnyfield Nursery Co., of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., will be found under the head of Business Embarrassments.

Incorporation papers have been issued to the Kimura Nursery Co., of Oakland, Cal., capitalized at $25,000. The incorporators are K. Kimura, K. Nishiyania and Y. Sakada.

Drought will not mean disaster hereafter at the nurseries of J. H. Skinner & Co., of Topeka, Kan., as an irrigation plant has been installed, which has so far proven itself a success.

After presiding at the meeting of the Georgia State Horticultural Society, R. C. Berckmans, of Augusta, Ga., addressed the Southern Nurserymen's Association, at Mount Eagle, Tenn., last week, on "The Influence of the Stock on the Bud."

Efforts are being made to form an organization of nurserymen of New York state and a meeting is planned for September 4 at the Hotel Utica, Utica, N. Y. There is at present a tentative organization and it is hoped to put this on a firm basis at the meeting.

At the third annual meeting of the Mississippi Nurserymen's Association, at Starkville, August 27 and 28, two interesting papers were presented, one by James Brodie, of Biloxi, on "Propagation of Nursery Stock," and one by Frank Lewis, of Pascagoula, on "Commercial Pecan Growing."

A bill introduced in Congress by Representative Broussard, of Louisiana, provides for an experiment station at or near New Iberia, La., and appropriates $50,000 for the station. The purpose is to demonstrate the character of plants, shrubs and trees best adapted to the soil and climate of that section.

GEORGIA SOCIETY MEETS.

The annual midsummer meeting of the Georgia State Horticultural Society was held at Clayton, August 19 and 20. President R. C. Berckmans, owner of the large nurseries at Augusta, addressed the society in his official capacity and also presented a discussion of "Results Obtained from Orchard Heating." Others who addressed the society were J. B. Wright, of Cairo; A. C. Lewis, of Atlanta, and J. D. Price, commissioner of agriculture of Georgia, in addition to the presentation of the following papers:

"The Practical Side of Horticulture in the South," by E. J. Watson, commissioner of agriculture of South Carolina.

"Things Horticulturists Should Study," by C. C. Newman, Clemson, S. C.; H. P. Stuckey, Experiment, Ga., and I. C. Wade, Cornelia.

"How Are We to Improve Horticulture in the South?" by Charles T. Smith, Concord, and J. W. Firor, Athens.

"Orchard Management," by B. W. Hunter, Cornelia, and T. H. McHatton, Athens.

"Orchard Enemies and Their Prevention," by E. L. Worsham, Atlanta.

"The Ornamental as Applied to the Home," by B. W. Hunt, Eatonton, and W. B. Marquis, Augusta.

"Marketing the Apple," H. R. Howard, Chattanooga, Tenn.

"North Georgia as a Future Apple Section," by E. F. Cole, Washington, D. C.

"Floricultural Possibilities of North Georgia," by J. W. Firor, Athens.

"The Best Package for Apples," by M. J. Yoemans, Dawson, and Julian P. Fields, Atlanta.

"Cherry Culture in Upper Georgia," by J. P. Fort, Mt. Airy.

"What Can We Do with Our Waste Fruits?" by H. R. Staight, Demorest.

A NEW QUARANTINE DECISION.

A paragraph has been inserted in regulation 7, headed "Foreign Certificate of Inspection," in the rules and regulations for carrying out the plant quarantine act, as published in circular No. 44, issued May 26, 1913, by the federal horticultural board. The amendment, which went into effect August 1 and is noted as "Plant Quarantine Decision No. 4," provides for the cancellation and refusal of permits to import nursery stock from foreign countries in case the inspection there is not thorough. The inserted paragraph reads as follows:

Permits may be canceled and further permits refused for the importation of nursery stock from any given country whenever such stock, in the judgment of the federal horticultural board, is found to be so infested as to plainly indicate that the foreign inspection is merely perfunctory, and such countries shall thereafter be classed as countries which do not maintain nursery stock inspection until satisfactory evidence is presented to show that the regulations of the board have been complied with.

MILLIONS OF TREES IMPORTED.

Figures gathered by the federal horticultural board show that during the last fiscal year 3,779,041 growing trees and 15,040 pounds of tree seeds were imported into the United States. According to members of the board, the trees include valuable species that do not grow in the United States and stock which can at present be bought more cheaply abroad. The tree seeds imported are largely for the purpose of reforesting land, though in a number of cases they are used in ornamental planting on private estates.

France leads in the number of growing trees sent here, with a total of 1,782,255. Germany is second, with 849,245, and Holland third, with 690,632. Imports are made from thirteen other countries, including India, Japan and Australia. The trees and shrubs imported are chiefly evergreens, such as pines, spruces and firs, and broad-leaved plants, such as oaks and maples. The larger part is stock of foreign origin; in a few cases growers abroad, through a special selection of attractive forms of our native trees, have developed them to such an extent as to make them desirable to purchasers here.

The Market.

Business in this city was varied last week, some days being practically dead, while others were lively. What stock there is available is of good quality. Some good asters arriving daily are cleaned up on sight. Roses are good and have fine foliage, but, of course, are small.

Various Notes.

E. A. Fetters moved into his beautiful new home on Chicago boulevard, August 26.

The visitors to the convention have all returned and give glowing accounts of the good times they had. Robert Rahaley and Michael Bloy, who brought back some of the bowling prizes, feel quite proud of their good luck.

Gus H. Taepke has become quite an automobile enthusiast, having just purchased a touring car.

George Heinl, of Toledo, O., spent several days in Detroit visiting the florists. H. S.

Amherst, Mass.—No permanent appointment has as yet been made of a successor to Professor E. A. White, who has left the Massachusetts Agricultural College to become head of the floricultural department at Cornell University. E. J. Canning, for many years curator of the botanical gardens at Smith College, will assume the instructional work this fall and Clark L. Thayer, a graduate of the college, will assist in the work of the department.

The Best That The Future Has To Offer

IT IS our custom to handle only varieties we believe to be worthy of a place in the best commercial establishments. The new Roses we have offered in past seasons have made a reputation for themselves and the character of stock we have sent out has made an enviable reputation for our firm. ¶ We offer Killarney Brilliant in the belief that it is the coming standard of perfection. We have arranged with the originators for eyes for grafting purposes. We can supply any quantity you may require.

Killarney Brilliant

A sport from Killarney, grown in the open ground in England. Killarney was introduced in 1898, and since then there have been so many sports that Killarney has developed into a type rather than a variety. Messrs. Alexander Dickson & Sons, the original introducers, are to be congratulated, sixteen years after the advent of Killarney, in giving us now this distinct novelty which is undoubtedly the best of all varieties of this type.

Killarney Brilliant has the same habit of growth and the same freedom of bloom as its parent, while the flower is twice as large, having 25 to 40 full-sized petals. It will be as useful for Summer blooming as for Winter forcing. The color is a very brilliant pink and varies like Killarney; in bright weather it is almost crimson, and in dull weather, when Killarney is so pale, it is as bright as Killarney at its best. The sale of Killarney Brilliant a year before its introduction has been larger than that of any other Rose ever sent out in this country.

Grafted Plants, 75c each; $7.50 per dozen; $35.00 per 100; $300.00 per 1000.

New Carnation Gloria

(H. W. Field and A. N. Pierson, Inc.)

In offering this new Carnation to the trade, we offer what we believe to be a paying commercial variety; strong in growth, making a quantity of flowering shoots rather than wonderful length of individual stems. In color, the brightest pink we have ever seen in a carnation, and a color that will sell, which, combined with good calyx, fair-sized bloom and great production, makes this an attractive proposition to a man who knows Carnations.

Rooted Cuttings for December, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

Enchantress Supreme

As the best of the Enchantress family it needs no description. An improvement in color, in form of flower on a race of Carnations that have stood the test of time. We have a large stock.

Rooted Cuttings for December and later, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

The Market.

Business continues good and, everything considered, the summer has been one of the busiest seasons ever experienced. Outdoor stock has been scarce, and the florist who has had plenty of indoor flowers has reaped a harvest. Last week we had good rains, the heaviest for two months, and since then the weather has been cooler. Carnations and roses should improve rapidly now.

Various Notes.

Everything at Julius Niednagel & Sons' is in fine shape. The roses, carnations and mums are especially fine. Miss Elsie Niednagel has returned from a delightful visit with relatives in New York city.

The William Blackman Floral Co. is still enjoying the best summer business it has ever had.

The Evansville Floral Co. is selling roses and carnations at 25 cents per dozen and is doing a good business.

Mrs. M. L. Doerr continues to have something to do each day. She is using locally grown flowers as well as some from Chicago and New Castle, Ind.

J. C. Elspermann is having his usual good business.

Louis Fritsch has most of his carnations planted, and they surely look well.

Miss Nellie Goodge seems improved in health since the weather has turned cooler. E. L. F.

The Market.

A slight improvement in trade conditions gives promise of a busy autumn. Asters seem to be the queen of the market, for roses and carnations are scarce. Easter lilies are somewhat in demand now. Mexican poppies, tritomas and centaureas are finding favor as cut flowers. Roses still are high in price and the blooms are small. Boston ferns are coming into the market again, but it will be September before great quantities will arive and the price will be away down.

Various Notes.

The fruit and flower show held August 18 and 19 was a decided success. This is the first time the Improvement League and the Horticultural Society have joined forces. The attendance was good and there was a large number of exhibitors in both flowers and fruits.

Miss Taylor, who resigned her position with N. F. Higgins, begins new duties with a Boston firm, September 1.

Osterman & Steele are showing some fine Golden Glow chrysanthemums. It looks good to see yellow mums again.

Connie Hassell is enjoying his vacation, which will last two weeks.

Mrs. Paul, of Chicopee, has been quite busy with funeral work recently.

The asters at the greenhouses of N. F. Higgins are thriving nicely since the installation of the Skinner system of watering. His gladioli have been fine this year.

R. W. Cartter has begun to plant his carnations indoors for early blooming.

Mark Aitken and his family are spending a short time at Black Point, Conn.

C. S. Hopkins, of Brattleboro, Vt., and his assistant, C. P. Griffin, have been looking over the florists' stores in this city. Mr. Hopkins intends to open a new store this fall.

Clifford S. Kempton, of Longmeadow, is selling fall-bearing strawberry plants.

Visitors: E. F. Martin, with the Sefton Mfg. Co., Chicago, and Thomas Cogger, with N. F. McCarthy & Co., Boston, Mass. E. C. A.

WHOLESALE GROWER, IMPORTER AND SHIPPER OF POT PLANTS

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Business has shown an improvement. Funeral work has become heavy for this time of the year. There are a few asters grown in this city that are good, but the majority were hurt by the long dry spell, when no water could be had. Roses are coming in better, which is a big relief to the retailers. Everything in the green line, such as ferns, Asparagus plumosus, etc., is scarce.

Various Notes.

Ed. Humfeld is back from his trip through southern Missouri.

Ed. Ellsworth is still spending a great deal of his time fishing out at Forest Lake, about twenty miles from the city.

A. F. Barbe had a good run of funeral work last week. He is cutting some fine snapdragons and they helped him out considerably.

W. J. Barnes put his share in on the good roads, August 21 and 22, by putting around his place a concrete drive 310 feet long and nine feet wide. He will begin to cut Golden Glow mums this month.

Arthur Newell last week experienced the best business of the whole summer. He was busy on funeral work.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Asters are now the whole show, and the show is a satisfactory one. A few dahlias are to be seen in the florists' windows, while handsome spikes of gladioli form a pleasing contrast. In the latter the flaming red or delicate pink are the favorites. Aside from funeral work the business is dormant.

Various Notes.

Albert Holscher will begin cutting his first chrysanthemums in about a week or ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Nils G. Pierson, of Norwood, are members of a party that are camping out for a few weeks at Cole's Station, overlooking Narragansett bay.

Frederick C. Green, superintendent of parks, was among the attendants at the Minneapolis convention.

Oscar Leistner, of Chicago, was a recent visitor in this city.

Frederick Hoffman, with William Hoffman, of Pawtucket, is enjoying his annual vacation in the White mountains for a couple of weeks.

Eugene Appleton is having an exceptional run of work on the local estates.

Thomas A. Houlihan, head gardener for Senator W. A. L. Beazley, of Woonsocket, for the last four years, has resigned to accept a position as superintendent for A. F. Costello, at Beverly, Mass. W. H. M.

Champaign, Ill.—Thomas Franks, who has been ill for several days at the Burnham hospital, is steadily improving.

READY NOW.
We do a very large business each season on carnation cuttings and field-grown plants because we never ship out stock we would not be willing to plant on our own benches. The field-grown plants are ready. This is not surplus stock, left after selecting the stock for our own use, but is stock grown especially for sale to the trade. If we did not know it was good stock, strong, stocky, well branched, and free from disease, we should not offer it for sale. Last year's customers will be back—and this is an invitation to those who have not yet bought here to order of us this year. Immediate shipment.

PEONIES—Continued.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

RETURN WATER UNUSUALLY HOT.

I am about to build a violet house, 16x100, with no glass in the sides. It will be a duplicate of another grower's house in this vicinity, which is heated by a Wilks hot water boiler, 36x48, in a pit two and one-half feet below the surface, with two 3-inch flows and four 3-inch returns. While this gives excellent results, the owner claims that the water returns to his boiler rather hot, and we are both curious to know whether it would be better to use three 3-inch returns on each side instead of two. I have the 3-inch pipe on hand. I shall be much obliged for any information that you can give.

A. E. B.

From the facts presented, it would appear that the principal reason for the water in the returns being unusually hot is the large size of the boiler. To heat a house 16x100, in your Massachusetts climate, to a temperature suitable for violets, not more than 500 square feet of radiation will be needed and twenty-five per cent of this can generally be cut out, except in zero weather. To supply this amount of radiation, the boiler need not be more than twenty to twenty-four inches square, according to its construction. Two 3-inch flow pipes and four 3-inch returns would be ample, and valves should be placed upon two of the returns so that they can be cut out in mild weather. A better way of piping the house would be to use two 2½-inch flows and six 2-inch returns.

PIPING SWEET PEA HOUSES.

I have just built three houses, each 14½x75 and six and one-half feet high to the gutters. I heat with hot water. I intend to run two 2-inch flows and four 1½-inch returns in each house. Would this be sufficient to maintain a temperature for sweet peas in this part of Colorado, where the outside temperature sometimes drops as low as 20 degrees below zero? Would it be better to place the returns near the ground or near the gutters? The beds are solid, so I cannot lay the returns under them, but I intend to hang them on the gutter posts.

H. J. W.

By firing heavily when the outside temperature is below zero, it will be possible to grow sweet peas successfully by using two 2-inch flow pipes and six 1½-inch returns, provided a closed system is used. There are several so-called generators or circulators on the market, by means of which the water is run under pressure, and, by being able to raise the temperature of

MISSOURI VEGETABLE HOUSES.

I intend to build a range of greenhouses as shown in the enclosed diagram. I have a Capitol boiler, No. 825, Improved, almost new. I also have some 4-inch cast pipe. I want to grow lettuce and vegetable plants in house No. 1 and flowers in some of the other houses, but I want to build Nos. 1 and 2 now and add the other houses later. I wish to know whether I can arrange the pipes in Nos. 1 and 2 so I can get a temperature of 65 degrees in zero weather without using benches and without putting any pipes under the ground. The land slopes to the south about two or two and one-half feet in a distance of twenty feet. I was knocked out of business by hail and am obliged to move. My houses never have been properly piped and there is no one in this neighborhood who knows how to do the work.

L. M. S.

I have no catalogue of the Capitol heater at hand, and do not recall its rated capacity, but for economical heating it is generally advisable to use a boiler twenty-five per cent larger than the radiation actually calls for, basing the boiler's capacity on the rating made by the manufacturers.

The diagram shows five houses, each 20x75 feet. As a rule, houses designed for growing lettuce and vegetable plants are not piped for more than 55 degrees, and this temperature can be secured in a house 20x75 feet by using three 2½-inch flows and eight 2-inch returns. In case 65 degrees is desired, twelve returns should be used. With 4-inch pipe, use two flows and six returns for 55 degrees, or two flows and eight returns for 65 degrees.

A MINNESOTA ROSE HOUSE.

As I am about ready to do my steamfitting, I should be glad to get a little advice as to how many pipes will be needed for a rose house 18x100 feet. I intend to put in a 2-inch main and 1¼-inch returns. I have a steam boiler, which is set down seven feet below the level of the ground; that is sufficiently low, I think, to secure a good return to the boiler.

J. P. D.

The winter temperature outdoors is not stated, but if it does not drop lower than 30 degrees below zero, one 2-inch main, which may be a foot or more under the ridge, and eight 1¼-inch returns would answer, provided there is no glass in the side walls. The top of the boiler should be at least two feet below the returns.

HEATING SYSTEM A FAILURE.

I have a greenhouse 8x50 feet and six feet high to the eaves, with a one-third-pitch roof and two feet of glass along the sides. I desire to maintain a minimum temperature of 70 degrees in this California climate, where the outside temperature occasionally drops to 24 degrees at night in winter. I have an upright hot water boiler, three feet in diameter and five feet high, set in a cellar seven feet deep and tapped on the side for two 3-inch pipes, one at the top and the other at the bottom. Attached to the 3-inch outlet are two lines of 1½-inch pipe, which run the full length of the house and return. The outflow pipes are directly under the benches, with a rise of a foot to the far end of the house, where they arch over the door and return to the boiler a foot below the outflow pipes.

This arrangement is ridiculously inadequate. The circulation is poor and I could not get the temperature above 40 degrees last winter. How many lines of 1½-inch pipe should the 3-inch outlet supply and how should the outflow pipes be placed above the benches? Should I tap the boiler for a larger pipe or is a 3-inch pipe sufficient? Would the fact that the boiler is necessarily tapped on the side, with the great number of angles in the pipes, account for the failure of the water to circulate? I hope you can inform me how to arrange this small system so it will work properly and give results. As it is, it is only a source of annoyance.

C. L. W.

The trouble experienced in heating the greenhouse is evidently due to several causes, one of which is the insufficient amount of radiation, which is but one-half what it should be. The fact that the flow pipes have several angles will make less difference than placing them under the benches and running them uphill.

The simplest method of heating the house would be to run a 2½-inch main under the ridge, and at the farther end of the house branch it in either

It only takes a few words to express the good quality of your boilers and they are as follows: "Of all firms handling boilers and advertising them truthfully, the party buying a boiler would have to get the Kroeschell, as you are certainly advertising nothing but facts."

In regard to the No. 13 Kroeschell Boiler, we are now using it for the fifth season. KROESCHELL REPLACES TWO CAST IRON BOILERS

Range of H. M. Totman, Randolph, Vt.—the largest cut flower establishment in Vermont. No. 7 Kroeschell heats the entire plant.

Your No. 7 Kroeschell Boiler rated at 15,000 sq. ft. of glass is carrying my entire range of 17,000 sq. ft. of glass—it might heat more. We maintain a temperature of 50° and have no trouble to keep the proper temperatures in the coldest weather. During the cold snap of 1912 we fired every three hours during the night; I find it a saving in fuel to fire often. I have the Kroeschell Boiler six years and the only expense is one set of grates. No other but a plate boiler for me.

January, 1912, Randolph, Vt. (Signed) H. M. TOTMAN.

The customers' interest first—is the basis of the Kroeschell standard, and this principle makes the Kroeschell policy the most liberal of all in the greenhouse boiler business.

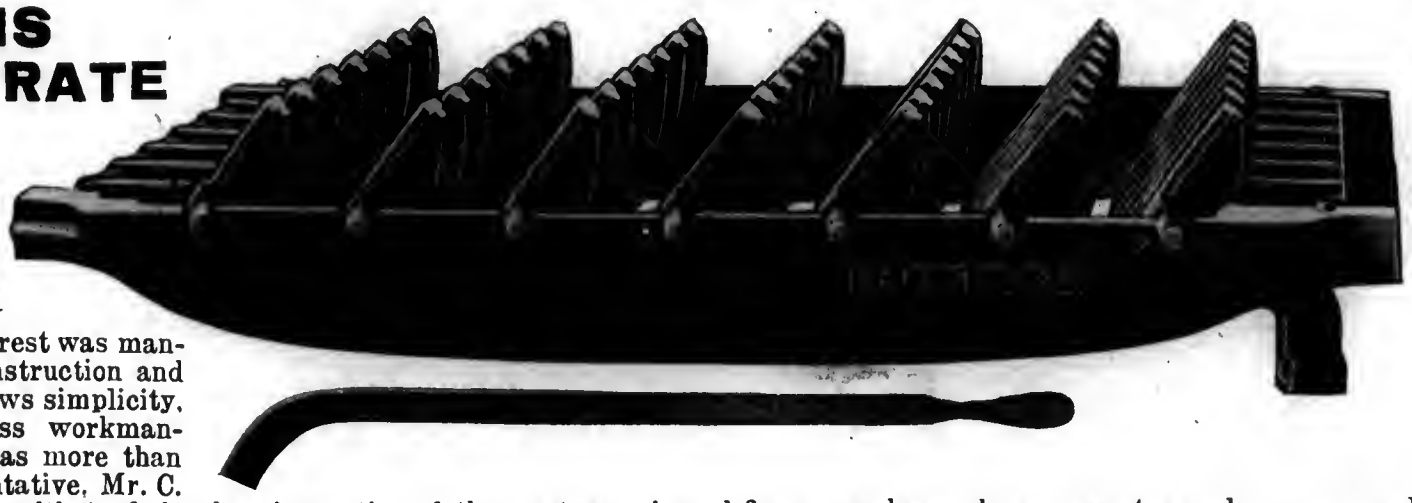
direction and connect with two coils, each containing three 1½-inch pipes, which can be either on the walls or under the benches. In case the top of the boiler is below the level of the returns, it will answer if there is a 2-inch flow pipe on each wall, each of them feeding a coil of three 1½-inch pipes. In either case the flow pipes should be given a slight fall.

PAINTING THE PIPING.

What is a good paint for hot water pipes? Y. P. C.



While asphaltum makes a good paint for greenhouse pipes, so far as looks and durability are concerned, yet its use is not recommended, from the fact that a smooth, glossy surface does not radiate heat as rapidly as a rough one. Above all, avoid the use of coal tar in any form. A satisfactory paint can be prepared from lampblack mixed with equal parts of linseed oil and turpentine, and if more body is desired some of the cheap dry colors can be added.

REMEDY FOR BOILER SCALE.

Will you kindly tell me of some remedy for a scaly formation on the inside of a hot water boiler? The scale cannot be easily reached, unless there is some acid or other chemical that can be used. It is hard to heat the boiler under these conditions. —— H. C. J. W.

There are on the market a number of patent preparations for this purpose, which can be obtained from machinists' supply houses. A comparatively inexpensive and fairly effectual remedy is to use a gallon of kerosene for each 1,000 square feet of radiation once a month. This should perhaps be Any new issues or business propositions presented at any time by the chairmen of these various committees I know will be given every consideration by the members in general.

The standing house committee I have dispensed with, as we now have our by-laws, etc., to work under, and the board of trustees can attend to anything further in that line. I have also dispensed with the committee on general awards; in their place I have selected a permanent exhibition committee, and to them I wish to refer everything pertaining to exhibits and exhibitions of whatever nature, leaving to their judgment the feasibility of all matters in that line. I have endeavored to embody in this committee representatives of all our lines of work, and men who are capable of handling their individual lines to the best credit of the society.

Committees Acting in Unison.

I wish that the publicity committee would keep in touch with all the various committees, but more especially with the exhibition committee, and in time of need I would recommend that these two committees be consolidated by mutual consent of the individual chairmen.

Now, gentlemen, I hope you who have been appointed will all serve the society for the ensuing year and show no hesitancy in asking at any time the help of the entire society in any matters that you as committees wish to "stand fathers to." Under the modern rules of order which govern most societies, clubs, etc., the presiding officer is a member ex officio of each committee appointed, and as your president I promise you that I will endeavor to carry out the wishes of each committee that I have appointed, and I hope to have things stirring right along the lines and all the time.

As far as possible I would ask the chairmen of all committees to make all suggestions, etc., in writing, so that they may be filed by the secretary, in order to avoid any confusion. I would state, also, that we have had in the last year some excellent papers on various subjects, and I believe they should become the property of the society. In the future I shall ask the authors to leave them in the hands of the secretary, who is authorized to purchase an ordinary letter file for the purpose of saving them for future reference. I hope the file will soon fill up.

Last week's business was slow. Some wholesalers report the close as pretty fair, but even that could not make up for the dull days early in the week. There was plenty of stock of all kinds, but not a strong enough call to take up any considerable quantity of the offerings. Prices were hardly fair. The rose supply still is large, but not quite so large as it was the preceding week. A large part of the stock still is short-stemmed. The gladiolus cut still is at its highest point, but indications are that it will soon ebb. The lighter shades, particularly America, have been selling fairly well. The aster cut is entering its prime. Many fine large blooms are coming into Third street and are finding ready sale. The smaller and shorter stock does not move so quickly. The offerings in giganteums are large, but there is no special call. A limited quantity of valley is to be had. Good hardy hydrangea blooms are coming in daily.

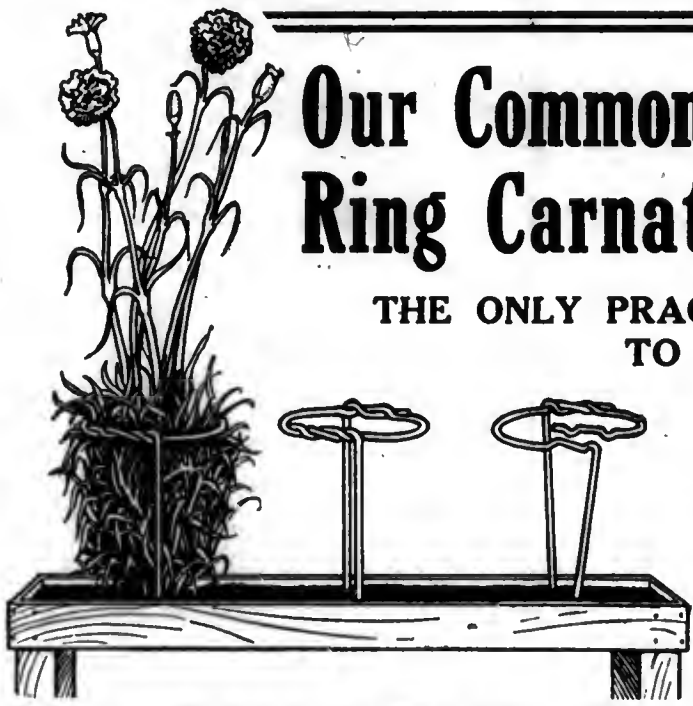
NEW ORLEANS.



Club Meeting.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting August 21, at the Association of Commerce building. P. A. Chopin presided and Paul Abele acted as secretary, in the absence of C. R. Panter. The attendance was good and the members took a keen interest in all the proceedings.

The discussion of a spring show in 1914 was the main topic and all the different points for and against it were carefully considered. It was finally decided to hold a chrysanthemum and general plant show at Horticultural hall in conjunction with the opening of the Southern States Fair in the fall of next year. This being the first flower show given here for several years, the local florists, no doubt, will use all their skill and energy to make it an artistic success.

To arouse more interest and to have a large attendance at each of the monthly meetings of the society, it was decided that the somewhat neglected custom of awarding prizes for plants exhibited at these meetings be taken up again, the judging of the exhibits to be followed by a general discussion of the stock exhibited. The reading of papers on horticultural subjects was also advocated and several prominent growers present promised to prepare papers during the ensuing year. If these instructive and highly beneficial customs are kept up, the society will surely make a name for itself among the local florists, and can be assured of a full house at every meeting.

E. A. Farley and A. Verlander were elected members of the society. R. E.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The last week has been about as unfavorable for business as could be imagined. The heat has been intense at all times, and it has been extremely hard to get good results from roses. There is no outdoor stock at all at most places. Gladioli are practically a thing of the past. Asters from outdoors are absolutely a failure, while those in the houses are not much better. Roses are in better supply than they were a week ago, but they lack quality. Lilies, especially rubrum, are plentiful. Carnations are not in as yet. There has been a good demand for designs, so that everyone has kept fairly well cleaned up.

Various Notes.

Tom Joy, Jr., left for the convention at the Twin Cities, August 14. He intends to visit several of the large growers while he is away.

Mr. Johnson, rose grower for the Joy Floral Co., is at the city hospital with typhoid. The reports are that he is doing well.

C. P. W. Nims, representing the Hews Pottery Co., was in the city last week. He reports the sale of three carloads of pots.

Oscar Geny, of Geny Bros., has been confined to his home the last week. It is to be hoped that no serious illness will develop.

We were much interested in the report of an experience one of our growers had some time ago with the cotton boll weevil in his carnation houses. He says that the weevils destroyed the carnation buds in the same way that they do the cotton bolls.

Haury & Sons are cutting some good asters at present from the open field. They were planted in partial shade and so have not been burned out by the intense heat. They are also cutting some good American Beauties at present. Their new houses are rapidly nearing completion.

McIntyre Bros. say that they have had the best summer business this season that they have ever enjoyed. Their new automobile delivery cars went into commission last week. They are cutting a good lot of asters grown in coldframes. They say that they have discontinued trying to grow in the open field. They have been fortunate in having all the rain they needed for the last three weeks from local showers that did not reach the other growers. They are cutting a lot of good Mexican everbearing tuberoses. F. B.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—J. G. Crozer has opened a new store at 209 South Third street, which has many fine features. Among them is the accommodation for ladies who wish to use it as a place to keep appointments or to rest.

The utmost care enters into the construction; only the best of materials and workmanship are used, in conjunction with the latest improved machinery.

Prices are right. RINGMETER is the Garden Hose to show you economy. Strong, durable and quality that spells long service.

FARMERS & FLORISTS TANKAGE FERTILIZER

Is acknowledged by the majority of florists and farmers of the United States to be the best balanced commercial fertilizer manufactured. It carries in its composition a percentage of the ten Basic Salts constituting soil, and it would be an impossibility to use it on any farm, field, lawn or bench without enhancing fertility and productiveness. It carries a very high percentage of the principal plant foods, as certified in its guaranteed analysis of:—Nitrogen 2.90%, Ammonia 3½ to 4%, Phosphoric Acid 8 to 10% and Potash 3%.

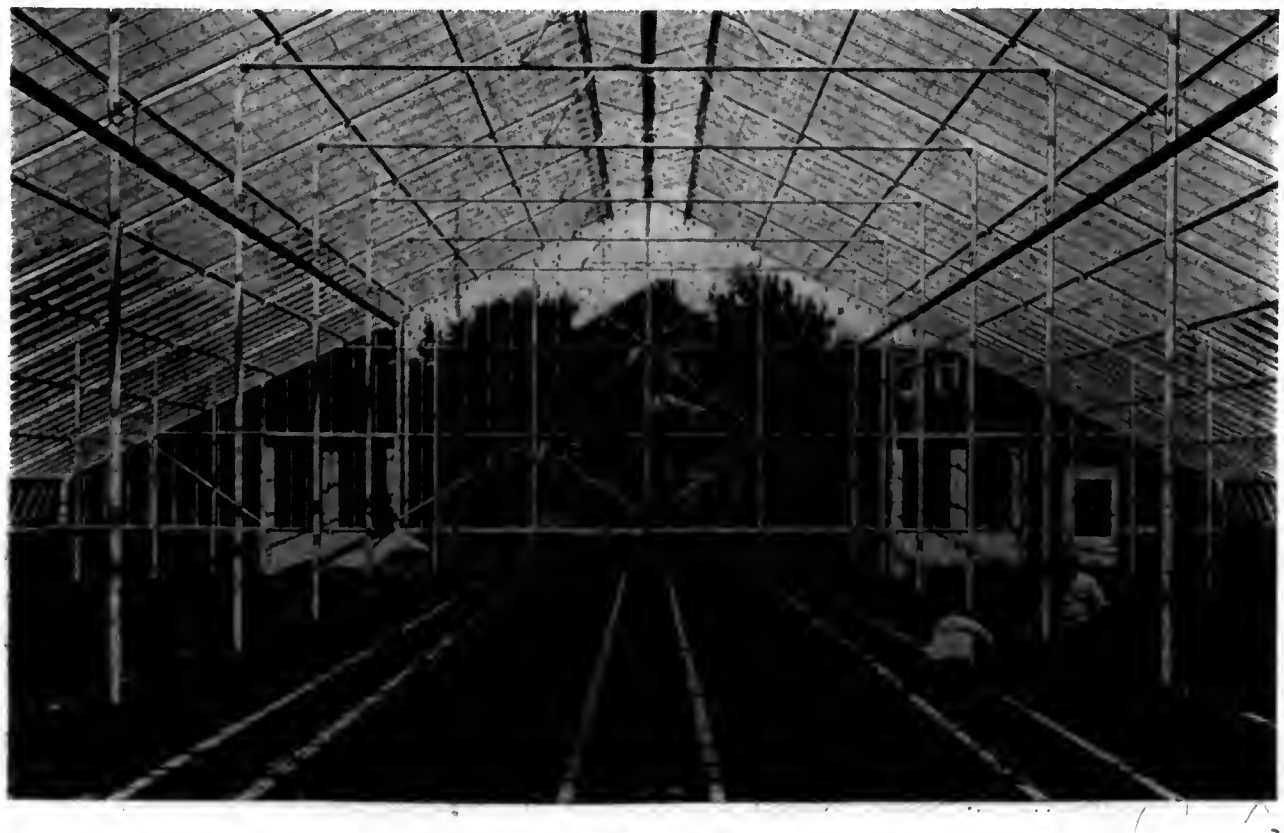
Our AETNA BRAND OF TANKAGE FERTILIZER is giving universal satisfaction wherever used, and as we believe in the law of live and let live, and that honesty is the best policy, we have placed this fertilizer within the reach of all growers at the low figure of $22.00 a ton, f. o. b. One of Mr. John Dunlop's big Iron Frame houses, 61 feet wide by 400 feet long, in process of erection at Richmond Hill, near Toronto.

Big Houses for Big Business



BEFORE Mr. Dunlop placed his order with us for two Sectional Iron Frame houses, each 61 feet wide and 400 feet long, he went to the States and visited many prominent plants. He met men who had houses of varying widths and different constructions. He went at the matter in a logical thorough way.

Everywhere he found the same things true. The large separate houses have proven themselves easier to handle, more economical to operate, and produced the highest quality of stock. He also found out that although the materials for our Sectional Iron Frame construction cost more than for Pipe Frame or Truss constructions, the cost of erection was less.

As an assurance of its durability, he saw at the F. R. & P. M. Pierson plant, houses thirty years old that are good for half a century more. In all his inquiries he was unable to learn of a single Lord & Burnham Sectional Iron Frame house having ever been blown down. Mr. Dunlop concluded our houses were worth the money.

We believe he is absolutely right in claiming to have one of the most up-to-date plants in Canada.

We tell you these things because, backed as they are by the action of a conservative, careful business man like Mr. Dunlop, they mean much. We should like to send you our catalogue, or if you are thinking of building, we will gladly come and talk things over with you.

This gives you somewhat of an idea of the way we frame and brace the gables of these wide houses.

HERRINGTON on the Mum, sent by The Review for 50 cents.

HAPPY GREENHOUSE FACT:

"With CYPRESS You Build But Once."

"With any other material you're 'billed' perpetually."

You save many times over (by avoiding repairs and replacements) what slight premium you pay a high-class contractor for using Cypress at first. It is worth good money to you if you will but profit by the following suggestions:

DON'T buy sash or other woodwork that is painted. Paint covers sap, checks and a multitude of other wood sins. Insist on seeing the raw wood.

DON'T buy excessively kiln-dried wood—air-dried is immeasurably better. Greenhouse lumber that has to travel 3000 miles may be excused if it is kiln-dried to death to save freight over the mountains, but that excuse doesn't make it any better for you.

DON'T forget that you are wasting valuable time whenever you stop and listen to a whimwham about some "substitute" wood for heart Cypress. There can't be any substitute until nature invents a new species of wood. (Nothing to it but PECKY Cypress for Benches.)

DON'T fuss at the building contractor if he insists on putting a smooth surface on your work—it is to your advantage. Cypress takes that smooth surface. And takes paint perfectly if you want it to. Yet lasts generations without any paint.

DON'T laugh at the statement that Cypress sash has been in uninterrupted use in a greenhouse for 45 years. It can be proved. Can a "substitute" wood equal the record? Isn't that a money-saver?

JUST FIGURE your construction costs by the year and you'd pay twice the slight additional price of "The Wood Eternal" over the short-lived woods.

Send us your name, Mr. Greenhouse Man, for one or more of the valuable booklets in our free Cypress Pocket Library. Vol. 3, "The Greenhouse Wood," Vol. 16, "Cypress for Porches;" Vol. 30, "Cypress for Pergolas, etc.," and Vol. 28, "Cypress for Trellises and Arbors." Free as grace. WRITE. Also get the Barn Book, Vol. 4; and the new Silo Book, Vol. 37.
